"The Corps Turned Down"

Under the above heading the Toronto Globe and Mail comments on the rejection by the King Government of the Canadian Corps Association's national vocational plan which, it says, "apparently means that nothing of a comprehensive nature is desired for dealing with youth unemployment. No substitute is offered on a similar scale. Ottawa seems to prefer to do a little here and a little there, making a gesture with the problem while waiting for conditions to right themselves."

The plan of the Canadian Corps, which is composed of war veterans' organizations, is to provide for vocational training centres where 50,000 young men could be restored to moral and physical vigor and taught useful occupations. "It was," says the Globe and Mail, "too big an idea for the Government to grasp, too costly, and besides it had not been worked out as a political policy."

Copies of the booklet containing the plan were sent to all members of Parliament, Federal and Provincial. Only two members of Parliament communicated with the Corps as a result. Not a private member rose in the House of Commons to sponsor it. When the Government's unemployment relief measures were discussed only twenty-five members of the House were in attendance.

The Minister's reply to the Corps states that the cost of the scheme would be from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 annually. A carefully prepared estimate by the Corps placed the first year's cost for 20,000 men at $26,220,000, the second year's for 30,000 at $30,580,000, and the third for 50,000 at $29,150,000. The correspondence revealed also a difference of opinion as to the extent of unemployed youths, the Corps' estimate being 400,000.

"Herein" says the Globe and Mail, "lies the crux of the whole matter. The Government lacks authoritative up-to-date data. Add this to the comparative non-interest in Parliament taken in the subject. Compare the plea that $50,000,000 is a prohibitive cost for the reclaiming of youth with the pork-barrel handout of $100,000,000 in the final days of the session for the reclaiming of Parliamentary seats, and the reasons for inaction are plain."

Unemployment

The current monthly letter of the Bank of Nova Scotia is devoted entirely to a subject which is of great importance at the present time. It deals with the extent and nature of unemployment in Canada. It starts with the truism that while the level of employment is the best monthly measure of the trend of Canadian business, the amount of unemployment is even more general in scope, and is, in fact, the nearest thing available to a measure of national welfare.

The figures and accompanying diagrams portray vividly the rapid growth of unemployment following the onset of the world depression, to a point in 1932 and 1933 (the mid-term of the Bennett Government) when the downward tendency was stayed and recovery began. From 1933 onward there followed a gradual reduction in unemployment up to and including 1937, since when unemployment, except for a slight drop in the latter part of 1938, has been continually rising. It is now greater than it was in the fall of 1935, when the last federal election took place.

The intense period of industrial prosperity (1926-1929) is shown in the analysis to be a prime cause of the subsequent unemployment problem. For it created a new body of wage-earners, particularly in the heavy industries and construction trades, which could not be supported once the boom came to an end.

It is also noted that although employment in 1937 momentarily regained the peak level of 1939, unemployment remained considerably greater than at any time during the twenties.

The review includes a detailed analysis of relief figures, which while not fully comparable with those of unemployment are nevertheless of value. In March of this year, out of a total of 243,700 persons on relief (exclusive of dependents unfitted to work and farm operators and their dependents) 192,200 were listed as fully employable. Of the remainder, 29,000 were classed as partially employable and 22,500 as fully unemployable. Over four-fifths of the fully employable persons on relief were males. Over one-quarter of the total were young persons (from 16 to 25 years of age). No less than 13 per cent, or 23,300 persons, of the fully employable in receipt of relief have never been gainfully employed.

Air Force Pigeons

The British Air Ministry is establishing a national pigeon service to recruit pigeons for the air force. The military authorities know that times may come even in this age of mechanized warfare when troops may have to depend on the humble support of the cooing pigeon. The message that the defective two-way radio is unable to send can be flown by the homing pigeon. Every aircraft will not have a pigeon for passenger, but certain ones engaged under special conditions will have pigeons to release in emergency.

The pigeons used by the British Armies during the Great War, says an exchange, safely delivered 95 per cent of the messages entrusted to them. The courage shown by many of these birds when wounded has been commemorated. One pigeon numbered among the heroes of the Menin Road in October, 1917, struggled home late the morning after the day it was released. The bird had one leg broken and the message carrier was driven into his body. Pigeons carrying a plea for relief saved 1,500 Italians surrounded by Austrians on the Piave in July, 1918. A British pigeon that lost a leg in a museum at Washington. It lost a leg while flying 25 miles in 25 minutes to bring the information that saved the "lost" American battalion on the Argonne.

It is odd and yet appropriate that an air force should be aided as a last resort by the bird whose flying it has exceeded. Nature intervenes when invention succumbs. The bird on the wing, as the soldier on foot, must still be trusted to bear the brunt of battle.

Editorial Notes

Cecil Rhodes born this date, 1834

Today the great Scottish Gathering and Sports at Caledonia.

Dominion Day, Independence Day of the U. S. A. being now over and done with, the next big event will be Confederation Week.

Private radio stations have been notified that commencing September 24, the C. B. C. would take complete control of private networks, including advertising and other matter broadcast.

The Rev. Dr. Burkwall, of Canton, China, who is accompanied by Mrs. Burkwall, a successful Island Missionary in China, will be the principal speaker at the Bible Society's annual meeting at Geddie Memorial Church, French River today. What these two do not know about China and Japan, after 40 years in the mission field, is hardly worth knowing.

There is a definite firmness noticeable in canned vegetables right now with many canners easing their prices upward 2-1/2 to 5 cents per dozen or more, says the Canadian Grocer. First acreage estimate is that the tomato crop is from 30 per cent to 35 per cent less than a year ago and that it will not be as good, resulting in a pack approximating 60 per cent of 1938 when it was 2,375,000 cases. This would bring it under the million and a half mark. Export business to the Old Country is coming along in steady strides with some quantities of the 1939 pack already sold.

Business in retail hardware stores has been greatly improved during May and June, following what was rather a quiet early spring period, according to Hardware and Metal, Toronto. Both seasonal and staple lines, for city and farm use, have been steadily increasing in sale in the last two months. County trade is particularly bright in outlook, while city trade has picked up considerably during June. Early preparations are under way for the harvest, and haying time is not far off. Many items of farm equipment are coming into much heavier demand.

Coming events in government officialdom here are casting their shadows before in Australia. The Federal Government there has ordered an airplane, with a seating capacity of six, for Ministers travelling to and from Canberra. Ministers will no longer have to waste time waiting for mail planes. The Government plane will be used by the Civil Aviation Department when it is not flying Ministers. We can imagine, Mr. Mackenzie King, Mr. Dunning and others hastening to and fro from Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island to headquarters at Ottawa almost every time a call is sent out from their respective constituencies. It will be nothing for Ministers to spare an hour or two to visit their constituents on urgent business.

They do things in a big way for the farmers at Washington. The House of Representatives has just accepted the Senate's unbudgeted $338,000,000 farm air proposals, thus raising to more than a billion dollars the Agriculture Department's 1940 Supply Bill. A score of advocates of large relief appropriations from New York, Boston and Chicago voted with the farm group in an effort to obtain rural support for their demands that restrictions on amounts and methods of expenditure of funds be removed from the relief bill. Party lines failed to hold on the roll-call vote of 180 to 175, by which the House accepted the Senate's $225,000,000 appropriation for parity payments to farmers. On the standing vote of 145 to 100, by which it adopted the $113,000,000 Senate proposal for surplus-crop removal, the same condition obtained.

"The eighteenth Parliament elected in October, 1935, (says the Montreal Gazette) has run its course and from the standpoint of taxation and expenditure, of successive surrenders to socialistic importunities, it has been a disastrous record. The federal legislature, under the present Government, has achieved unenviable leadership in a general orgy of prodigal paternalism which has resulted in the diversion of one-quarter of the national income for expenditure by governments, 31 per cent of such expenditure being upon so-called social welfare enterprises. This is the old story, written in large type, of attempting to purchase public favor at public expense. So far as the Dominion Government is concerned, it has failed to produce the results desired. Not only has the Government lost prestige throughout the country but the Liberal party itself is by no means the compact and cohesive force that it was in 1935, nor has it the same confidence in the leadership given in its name."

NOTES BY THE WAY

Ascot has come again. I have won a few races with some that have cost much money. They were not "gift" horses, and it was necessary, therefore, to look in their mouths, but whenever I have put any money on them they could not carry it. As they never won two years ago last January a thunderstorm passed over my stud farm at Colesberg, South Africa, and the lightning singled out, struck and killed Lady May, dam of good winners and my best mare. This year horse sickness broke out at Colesberg and only one horse died. But it was my best mare, Honolulu, dam of a Derby winner. And now on top of this loss I hear that my best yearling colt by Valerius has killed itself by jumping into a wire fence. One of my best stallions, Ceel, who I thought might be a second Son-in-Law, has passed on. Now at Mr. Cottrill's racing stable, which he has bought, look at one of my horses, Brave Warrior and Deep Level, were burnt to death. Not one of the above was insured. Such is luck and such are my thoughts on the eve of the Ascot meeting. I feel like a Jew called Lazarus in Salisbury, Rhodesia, who, hearing someone talk about his luck being bad, said: "You talk about it, but look at me. One of my best stallions, Ceel, who I thought might be a second Son-in-Law, has passed on. Now at Mr. Cottrill's racing stable, which he has bought, look at one of my horses, Brave Warrior and Deep Level, were burnt to death. Not one of the above was insured. Such is luck and such are my thoughts on the eve of the Ascot meeting. I feel like a Jew called Lazarus in Salisbury, Rhodesia, who, hearing someone talk about his luck being bad, said: "You talk about it, but look at me.
