

Rudy Represents California Seals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rudy Pilous, former coach of Chicago Black Hawks, represented San Francisco Seals at National Hockey League meetings in Montreal Sunday, but has not been signed by the club.

A Seals spokesman said negotiations are continuing with the 31-year-old Pilous, widely rumored to become the general manager and coach of the Seals when they join the NHL in 1967. "He also is negotiating with other people, and so are we," the spokesman said although admitting the Seals are closer to Pilous than anybody else at this moment.

Norman (Bud) Poile, general manager of the Seals the last four years, said Thursday he is resigning at the end of the current Western Hockey League campaign. The Seals play at Victoria Tuesday night in the final game of the league's semi-final playoff series.

The San Francisco Examiner's hockey writer, Phil Norman, reported Monday that Pilous "will be tendered a four-year contract and will act in a dual capacity (coach and general manager) at least for the first season."

Next year the Seals will operate as a minor league club but play in the new Oakland Coliseum which will be their home when they open in the expanded NHL in 1967. They'll also be known after this season as the California Seals.

MONTREAL

Competing with Banff for the Winter Games are Sapporo, Japan; Salt Lake City, Utah, and Lahti, Finland.

Banff may lose its bid if Montreal is awarded the Summer Games.

"It is highly unlikely that one country would get both games," Sidney Dawes of Montreal, 77-year-old IOC member, said Sunday.

Montreal's offer to cover athletes' room and board would seem to dim considerably Banff's hopes.

OPPOSE BANFF

Wildlife enthusiasts have expressed opposition to Banff as the site for the Winter Games, and Health Minister Allan MacEachen has been circulating among various delegations, emphasizing the Canadian government's support for the Banff application.

Art Smith of Calgary, a former member of Parliament, who announced the Banff presentation lineup, said Monday plans for the wildlife issues had not yet been settled.

Munich concluded the day's presentations.

Munich Mayor Hans Joehel Vogel, in a six-minute speech, reiterated the West German government has already granted free entry into West Germany "without any limitation" for the 1972 Games.

He also said that as usual in Olympic Games, no passports would be needed for participating athletes and officials.

The presentations ran into the night and afterwards the talk leaking from groups of IOC delegates was that Montreal and Munich appeared to have the lead.

The STEVEN TRUSCOTT CASE

Never before in the history of Canadian jurisprudence has a criminal case aroused so much controversy, or such a furor, as the trial and conviction of 14-year-old Steven Truscott, accused of the sex-murder of 12-year-old Lynne Harper, near Clinton, Ontario in 1959. In two consecutive issues—this week and next—the Star Weekly studies the town and its people, the trial and its outcome, and the best-selling book by Isabel LeBourdais which restored this strange case to national prominence. Was a brutal murderer brought to his just deserts? Was an innocent boy convicted by prejudice and bias? Get the revealing background to the perplexing case of Steven Truscott—starting in this week's Star Weekly.
