Air Force Veterans To Observe Battle Of Britain Sunday

It was announced recently at a meeting of the Charlottetown Wing of the R.C.A.F. Association that Battle of Britain Sunday would be publicly observed this year in the City by all Air Force Veterans. The anniversary falls on September 19th.

It was approximately this date 14 years ago that the gallant and courageous personnel of the Royal Air Force stemmed the onrushing tide of the powerful Nazi Luftwaffe in the skies over England. It was their heroic and victorious last stand with Spitfires and Hurricanes that accounted in no small measure for the final success of the Allied Forces in Europe in 1945, and that prompted Prime Minister Churchill to proclaim: "Never in the history of human conflict has so much been owed by so many to so few."

The Air Force veterans will parade under colors from the club rooms over the Bank of Commerce building to the Cenotaph on Grafton Street where a fitting ceremony will be carried out. A poppy wreath will be placed on the monument and the Last Post will be sounded in memory of those courageous flyers from all parts of the Empire who gave up their lives in the grim struggle over England in 1940.

Solves Old Murder Mystery

MCALISTER, Okla. (AP)—The murder of a Penn State college co-ed 14 years ago was solved by a deputy sheriff who worked six months gathering bits of evidence that revealed a bizarre story of illicit love and dope pushing on the campus.

Deputy sheriff Abner Dear of Pittsburgh county said his investigation ended with a signed 600-word confession by Jack Ray, 34, who now is serving a life term in the McAlester state penitentiary for another murder.

Ray confessed he beat to death Rachel Taylor, 17, who he said had a letter which detailed the campus dope ring and would have caused his imprisonment.

Miss Taylor was an innocent victim—unfortunate enough to get the letter from a girl friend who was involved.

Ray now is serving a life term at the McAlester state penitentiary for the murder of George Goodman at Cordell, Okla., after a fight Oct. 6, 1939.

The deputy sheriff refused to tell how he received the tip that led to solving the murder of Miss Taylor March 28, 1940. All he would disclose is that it came from behind the wall of the prison.

Divide On

countries which had subsidy systems that stocks of Canadian milk probably would rise to 20,000,000 pounds by the end of 1954.

The milk powder industry felt that the government should have a two-way support program, purchasing sizeable stocks to clear surplus and supporting prices so that private enterprise could compete in foreign markets.

At the same time, the industry felt that tariffs on imports of milk powder from Australia and New Zealand should be boosted to 3 1/2 cents a pound from one cent—making it the same as the rate applicable to non-Commonwealth countries.

ASKS STANDARDIZATION

L. A. Atkinson of Vancouver, speaking for milk processors, said there is a trend in the large cities towards increased sales of bottled milk in stores and increased use of paper containers.

The industry felt it would be well if the size of milk bottles could be standardized across the country. Some manufacturers felt that home deliveries of milk every other day would suit the industry best, but they realized this might be impossible "because we've got to do what the unions say."

Mr. Atkinson said that in the west there is a greater use of sanitary bottle covers made of aluminum foil and this did not boost production costs by any appreciable amount.

J. P. Nadeau of Valleyfield, Que., speaking for butter manufacturers, said the government must close the price gap between margarine and butter. There were several ways of doing it, but it was up to the government to decide what method should be employed.
