NEWLY INTRODUCED.

Sensation Caused in Barnaby River, N. B., by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Barnaby River, N. B., May 14.—Quite a sensation has been caused here lately by the introduction of a new medicine—Dodd's Kidney Pills. Although there had been many deaths in this village and surrounding district from Bright's Disease and other kidney troubles, yet strange to say Dodd's Kidney Pills had never been tested. Our people had little faith in patent medicines.

Now, however, Dodd's Kidney Pills are creating a sensation. A large number of people are using them and expressing surprise and delight at the result. "From the first week I began to improve," says Cornelius Crotie, of Barnaby River, who had been given up by the doctors. The fact seems to have surprised him, but it is always true where Dodd's Kidney Pills are used.

MAFEKING'S FIGHT.

Lee-Metfords. To the town guard may be added the strength of the Protectorate Regiment, the Bechuana-land Rifles, and the native contingent, numbering in all some eight hundred men. Against these were massed an enemy from five to eight times as strong, whose artillery fire was admirable, whose guns were numerous and first-class. They stood off five miles and shelled the town with perfect safety. While under cover of their fire they protected their advanced trenches daily a few feet nearer the town. The defenders endeavored with artillery and by night sorties to check their progress, but the sapping of Mafeking in the course of weeks became a very serious danger. Although the defenders threw up bales of compressed hay and sacks of oats to act as shields against the enemy's bullets, and the flying splinters of passing shells, there was no hour in the day in which the streets of the town were not sprayed by Mauser bullets.

A DESPERATE SORTIE.

On December 27 the garrison varied the monotony of the siege by an attack on one of the attacking positions known as Game Tree Fort. But, when the men approached within 300 yards of the fort, rifles rang out from every possible point, and the ground was swept by Mauser and Martini bullets. One who was present says: Captain Sandford was the first to fall, mortally wounded with a bullet in the spine. He fell down calling to his men to continue the charge; but where he had fallen he died. Our men now began to drop rather rapidly, and Captain FitzClarence was disabled with a bullet in the thigh. His place was taken by Lieutenant Swinburn, who at once continued the charge. The steady rush of our men, underflected by the worst that the enemy could do, was rapidly demoralizing those who were firing from behind the loop-holes in the fort, and it may have been that, had we not had our responsible officers shot or killed before we reached the walls of the fort, a different story might have to be told. As it happened, when Captain Vernon, with whom was Lieutenant Paton, steadied his men for the last charge, a bullet struck him in the body. For a brief interval he stopped, but, refusing the entreaty of Lieutenant Paton that he should fall out, he joined that officer once more in taking the lead. From the point which they had gained the character of the fort was seen and the heavy fire under which it was defended, showed it to be impregnable. It rose some seven feet from the ground, from the edges of a ditch with sides that it was almost impossible to climb. It was certain death which stared them in the face within 25 yards, but not a man was dismayed. They continued. The ditch was before them, the fort before them, and through three tiers of loop-holes came the enemy's fire. Our men from one side of the ditch fired point blank at them. Here those who had survived until now were either killed or wounded, and it was here that Captain Vernon was hit again, as he, with Lieutenant Paton and the scout Cooke, whose tunic at the end of this engagement was found to be riddled with bullets, endeavored to clamber into the fort. Captain Vernon and

Lieutenant Paton managed by superhuman efforts to reach the loop-holes, into which they emptied their revolvers. Their example was eagerly copied by the few who remained and who were shot down as they plied their bayonets through the apertures. Here Captain Vernon, Lieut. Paton, Corporal Pickard, Sergeant Ross, and many others were killed. Captain Vernon was shot in the head, the third wound which he had received within 200 yards. Lieutenant Paton was shot in the region of the heart. Bugler Morgan, who was the first to ply his bayonet, was shot in three places. Then a mighty roar rose up and we who had not taken part in the charge thought that the position had been carried. But it was the triumphant shout of the Boers. Those of men who were left fell back. When they fell in again, out of 60 men that had been engaged in the charge only nine were unwounded. Our killed were 21; our wounded 35, of whom four have since died. There were also three who were prisoners in the hands of the enemy.

THE LAST EFFORT.

A fortnight ago the Boers made their last effort to take the place by assault. The garrison allowed them to seize one fort, and then surrounded and overbore them before the large forces near at hand perceived the stratagem. The Boers admit losing 24 killed and wounded, and a number of prisoners, one of these, Sarel Eloff, being President Kruger's grandson.
