Farm Experiment Said Providing Valuable Data

ST. JOHN, July 19.-Mr. R. C. Parent, supervisor of illustration farms under the Dominion Illustration Station at Fredericton, which in turn is a branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, was the special speaker at the Kiwanis Club yesterday, taking for his subject, "What is an illustration station?" John H. Vaughan, chairman of the club's agricultural committee, presided.

Mr. Parent, who was in the city last week superintending and in the construction of and filling of a new-style silo on the illustration farm of Fred Shillington, Silver Lake, told the number of branches of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, its experimental farm branches and subdivisions of these experimental farms devoted to cereals, forage, etc. Speaking of privately-owned farms scattered throughout the province, the speaker spoke of pasture work and cereal-testing, which are identical with those conducted at the central station, Fredericton, and other farms over widely-scattered parts of New Brunswick, covering a period of years, submerging data, in order to make the most efficient use of the ground under study. Particular attention is paid to types of soil, slope of land, water supply. Usually more than one-half of a farm is arranged into a root crop rotation, such as roots, grain, clover and timothy. The remaining half is divided into hay and pasture. The speaker said one could easily understand that every farm has its own problems and has to be studied individually. It is usually the plan to make larger and more regularly-shaped fields than one sees on the older properties at present. Central lanes are advisable for easy access and time-saving.

Mr. Parent claimed that many farmers pay too little attention to soil erosion—the washing away of good soil by heavy rains—on hill-sides where permanent pastures have an important place in the farm economy. Fields that are too rough for plowing and too fertile should be allowed to revert to timber growth, which in turn assists the control of erosion.

The speaker also mentioned that Brunswick, all over Canada, in fact, he said, who are attempting to farm thousands of acres which are under cultivation. This he said might well be considered the major agricultural problem of the province. For the reason that many projects conducted on illustration stations have dealt with this study: The value of cultural practices of hayward, ground limestone and commercial fertilizers, have all received their share of attention and each year New Brunswick farmers are able to produce a million dollars in fertilizing goods alone. Back in 1930 the amount spent was half as great again, without attempting a million dollars in fertilizing goods alone. Back in 1930 the amount spent was half as great again, without attempting a million dollars in fertilizing goods alone.

The speaker dealt with the choice of varieties in crops, referring to soil and climatic conditions, which have a wide variation in this province because of its inland and coastal temperatures. A particular crop may not give equally good returns in all sections. Near Saint John moisture is excessive and cereals rust is prevalent. At present 12 varieties of oats are being tested on the Shillington farm at Silver Lake.
