

Glac Bay Ekes Out 2-2 Tie With Beavers

GLACE BAY, N. S., Nov. 6 (CP)—Glac Bay Miners came from behind twice tonight to hold league-leading Saint John Beavers to a 2-2 Maritime Major Hockey League draw.

The two teams battled evenly for the first two periods taking turns slapping the rubber into the opposing nets.

Each squad collected a single goal in each period and then went through the final frame without scoring. Under a new league ruling no overtime is played.

Coaches for both teams took a prominent part in the scoring with Miners' Norman (Bud) Polle showing his players the way with a goal and an assist. Beavers coach Peanut O'Flaherty also had a goal.

Beavers Ken Watson opened the scoring at 2:15 of the first period and it took Miners until 19:50 to get that one back. Polle did the trick on a three-way effort with Bob Cooper and Ron Rohmer getting assists.

In the second period, O'Flaherty followed Polle's example with a goal for Beavers at 8:53. John Ubrico and Tom Smelle were credited with helping.

John Anderson, 20-year-old left-winger from Kingston, Ont. saved the night for Miners when he beat Phil Hughes at 17:47, with Polle and Bloomer getting assists.

Millionaires To Fly Here Today

SYDNEY, N. S., Nov. 6 (CP)—Sydney Millionaires, who have done their Maritime Major Hockey League travelling to date by bus, will fly to Charlottetown for tomorrow night's game against the Islanders.

The flight will enable Don (Red) MacRae, team captain and sparkplug, to make his first road trip. Also slated to go is Earl (Skip) Frezell, who joined Sydney today from Glac Bay Miners in a trade.

Chamberlain Tries Hypnosis On Canucks

VANCOUVER, Nov. 6 (CP)—Vancouver Canucks hockey officials will try hypnosis in an effort to check a 16-game losing streak.

Owner Coley Hall and coach Murph Chamberlain yesterday submitted seven members of the club to hypnosis and the experiment was to be repeated before game time tonight.

Ray Munro, former newspaper man and now a professional hypnotist, told the Canucks he would not promise a victory against Victoria tonight, but said "hypnosis will put you in condition of complete relaxation that will force you . . . to play the finest hockey of your lives."

This evening the experiment in science was to continue with Munro holding court in a locked dressing room before the entire Canucks team.

THE GUARDIAN, CHARLOTTETOWN

NOVEMBER 7, 1951

Following Monday night's Big Six hockey contest between Halifax and Islanders, which the latter won by a liberal count of 6-1, subject not only to see how their views compared with local opinion, but also to ascertain the true reason for the changes. As far as the latter is concerned, it still isn't very clear, although it was quite evident that the three gentlemen referred to above were not particularly pleased with the executive's decision as regards the shelving of the new icing the puck rule.

In view of the fact that only an hour or two previous a few comments on those same changes had been set forth in this column (for Tuesday) particular attention was paid to what those three officials had to say on the subject, not only to see how their views compared with local opinion, but also to ascertain the true reason for the changes. As far as the latter is concerned, it still isn't very clear, although it was quite evident that the three gentlemen referred to above were not particularly pleased with the executive's decision as regards the shelving of the new icing the puck rule.

It appears that one of the major reasons for changing back to the old rule of last season, that of being able to shoot the puck over the corners, was because the Quebec Major Hockey League wanted the old rule and it would therefore complicate matters come playoff time if the Big Six were using one rule and the Q.M.H.L. the other. The reason may be true enough, but why shelve a rule that has been brought in for the betterment of the game because Quebec doesn't like it? Let them do the worrying about playoff time and let the Maritimes keep what they think is best for the betterment of our national sporting pastime.

Both referees and Judge Hudson agreed that the rule hadn't been given a fair trial. "It would take at least a year to give the new rule a fair trial" one referee stated. Yet the new rule lasted three weeks of scheduled play before it was tossed out. If the progress towards better hockey is to be so restricted, then the key is to be beyond its present stage which in the opinion of some authorities "isn't as good as it was 20 years ago."

The other reason given for the change intimated that it was "public opinion". In other words the public were demanding the old rule so that the players can once again pile into the corners where most of the trouble that results in games getting out of control and referees and ending up in brawls, starts. It was the same "public opinion" that was deploring the rough tactics of modern hockey for the finer points of stickhandling and pattern plays, etc., that caused the new rule to be installed. Now they don't want it. Just doesn't add up, does it??

Referees Gillis and Hefferling both agreed that the new rule was speeding up the game and would help revive the old art of stickhandling as well as cut down on much of the rough stuff as compared to the old rule, which of course is now the rule that the Big Six will play by. On being asked if the rule was voted out at the meeting unanimously, Judge Hudson stated "it certainly was not unanimous—it was by a majority vote." Well, that at least shows that all of the League officials would like to have kept in the old rule, at least for long enough to give it a fair judgment of its merits or demerits as the case might be.

According to reports, some of the teams in the present loop, protested the new icing rule on the grounds that the opposing team just lined up at the blue-line like a stone wall to prevent the attackers from penetrating. Could it be that once again the opposition forwards are finding it "difficult" to get by Islanders defensive combination of Dutchak, Vitale, Travis, Gray and McLagan? There is no doubt that it is much easier to shoot the puck past them than to carry it in. Much healthier too.

Islanders, Millionaires Tangle Here Tonight

The Big Six hockey again at the Forum tonight. Charlottetown Islanders and Sydney Millionaires will battle it out to break a fourth place deadlock that is bound to be a natural for some thrilling action.

The last time the two clubs met here the Lamoureux-coached squad finished on the long end of a 6-1 count and will be hitting the ice gunning for another such victory that will stretch their present high-flying performance of five wins and a tie in the past six starts to seven games without a loss.

But it may not prove to be an easy task. Sydney are a strengthened and improved club since their last meeting over Forum ice, and the least that can be expected is plenty of rugged resistance.

Plus the fact that they have injected new player blood into their lineup, the team will make the trip to the Province by plane that will make the Sydney club a fresh, well-rested aggregation when they hit the ice to oppose the Islanders tonight.

Don "Red" MacRae, one of Millionaires ace performers who was absent from the lineup in their last appearance, will be in battle livery with the club tonight which in itself will make the Moneymen a much tougher proposition to beat than they were last time.

Football Tarp Stays In Storage Despite Snow

TORONTO, Nov. 6 (CP)—There'll be snow in Toronto, maybe five inches of it, before Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts take the field tomorrow in the opener of their two-game total-points Big Four Football Union semi-final.

The weatherman said the snow was almost sure to come and the players can expect to perform their chores in freezing temperatures.

Varsity Stadium officials got ready by lining up 300 students to shovel snow from the field and the stands. The $12,000 tarpaulin the Canadian Rugby Union bought to protect the field for the Nov. 24 Grey Cup game is stored at the stadium but stadium officials say they won't be rolling it out tonight.

Use of the tarpaulin, they say, is up to the Canadian Rugby Union or to the Big Four, which helped to pay for it.

Bob Moran, president of the Argo Club, said because it's a Big Four playoff the Union should decide whether to ask the C.R.U. for permission to roll out the tarp.

President Charles Lawson of the Big Four said in Hamilton late today that he was trying to get in touch with T. H. C. Allison, C.R.U. secretary, in Toronto to arrange to use the tarp.

But in Toronto, Mr. Allison said he hadn't received any request. Anyway, he thought Varsity Stadium was equipped to get the snow off the field before game time.

With wintry weather in prospect, the game shapes up more than ever as a battle of wing lines.

The Tiger-Cats are confident that their front wall will turn the trick and that they'll take a comfortable lead back to Tigertown for the second game there Saturday.

She learned photography by trial and error and returned with hundreds of photographic plates. She fooled around with a tape-recorder and obtained some previously unrecorded animal and bird sounds.

"One of the major problems of jungle living is getting fresh food," she said. "There's no refrigeration or ice, and meat spoils in a few hours. Jaguar meat is delicious. Our basic diet was dried or salted beef, rice and Brazilian beans. Our fresh vegetables were palm hearts—which involves killing a whole pig for one small heart which tastes something between celery and cauliflower."

The Siemel camp consisted of the family, three Indian families who acted as servants and assistants, and an assortment of pets, including a monkey, anteaters and a peccary pig.

The system followed if the family elected to bathe in the river was to drop small pieces of alligator meat into the water. If a school of piranha—small, sharp-toothed fish—did not appear in a couple of minutes, the water was presumed safe enough for bathing. If they did appear, bathing was out—for piranhas have been known to consume a human body in three minutes.

In her spare time Miss Post typed a sort of diary of events. This she supplemented by talking her notes onto tape.

When Miss Post went into Mato Grosso, she was by occupation a publicist and had done some time as a newspaper woman. Since her return, she has done some writing and her photographs have been widely published.

"It opened up a whole new field," she said. "Now, I'm going around pulling some strings so I can go to India and shoot a tiger."

Gives Fighter To Another Man To Help Career

By Murray Rose
NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—It's not often you hear of fight managers handing over a good boxing prospect to another manager.

It happened several years ago in the case of Joey Maxim, now the world's light heavyweight champion. Today we learned it has happened again with George Araujo, one of the brightest prospects in the lightweight division.

Vic Robersak of Cleveland discovered Maxim as an amateur and guided him through his early professional days. When he felt he couldn't bring Maxim to the top he turned him over to Jack Kearns, onetime manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker. Kearns led Maxim to the title.

Angelo Pucci, veteran manager and promoter, hopes he can justify Bobby Viti's faith and do the same with Araujo, a 20-year-old from Providence, R. I.

Viti handled Araujo through his first three years of pro fighting. The kid showed great promise and lost only one fight, a decision which he later reversed.

A fine boxer-puncher, Araujo went on to win the New England featherweight and light weight titles.

"Viti felt he had taken the boy as far as he could," Pucci said. "He gave me a call and asked me if I would handle him. I had to pinch myself. Handle him? Why the kid is one of the best fighters to come along in years."

"I've had him for seven fights," said Pucci, manager of Tippy Larkin, "and he's won them all."

In beating Del Planagan in Providence Monday night he whipped a ranking fighter who had lost only twice before. It was George's 37th win in 38 fights.

Jockey Acquitted
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 6 (AP)—Jockey Richard F. Lawless, 19, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was acquitted today in a race-fixing case.

Lawless was one of six persons indicted by a grand jury investigating reports of race fixing at both Lincoln Downs and Narragansett Park racetracks in this state a year ago.

Legislature Opens Today In Quebec

By William Stewart
QUEBEC, Nov. 6 (CP)—Quebec's Legislature starts tomorrow what is expected to be its last session before provincial general elections.

The session, after adjournment for Christmas and New Year's holidays, probably will wind up its business by February.

The present legislature is Quebec's 23rd since confederation and the session will be the fourth since voters returned the government of Premier Duplessis to power in a sweeping 1948 victory.

The Union Nationale Government's 1952 election plans are a closely-kept secret.

Unofficial guessing is about dates from May, when Premier Duplessis celebrates the 25th anniversary of his election as a private member, until late summer.

More than two dozen government bills will be listed on the agenda of the Legislative Assembly, the elected house, when it meets tomorrow afternoon.

Priority will be given to pension measures—one by which Quebec will share in the Federal-Provincial plan for old-age pensions at 65. Another will increase pensions for the blind.

The Throne-Speech debate, which usually follows opening-day ceremonies, will be put off until after the pensions bills are approved.

Other bills will reorganize Quebec's pension administration and increase funds for housing aid, farm loans and rural electricity services.

St. Mary's Break Losing Streak To Tie Hawks 2-2

MONCTON, N. B., Nov. 6—Halifax St. Mary's broke a six-game losing streak tonight when they held Moncton Hawks to a 2-2 tie in a regular Maritime Major Hockey League game.

The tie left Hawks one point behind second place Glac Bay Miners. Miners and the league leading Saint John Beavers also played a 2-2 tie at Glac Bay.

The game featured speed rather than ruggedness. Only two penalties were handed out, both to the Moncton team, and neither sentence played any part in the scoring.

Hawks took a one goal lead in the first period, saw it erased when St. Mary's rapped in two quick tallies in the second and came back to knot the count in the third.

Big Hughie Campbell led the Halifax attack, drawing an assist on the first and firing the second. Lew also had a goal and an assist for the Saints. Joe Kilby opened the scoring.
