DR. FITZGERALD'S FUNERAL.—The remains of the late Dr. Fitzgerald will be taken to St. Paul's Church to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 and will remain there until 3 o'clock, where his old friends and parishioners may see him for the last time.

WINDOW BREAKING.—Yesterday afternoon James Kilboy visited John McLeod's house at the east end of the city, and smashed the glass of the windows with a chair. Later on in the afternoon Peter Kilboy (a brother of James) while passing Thorpe's saloon on Richmond street kicked in the glass of the large window. Both were under the influence of liquor at the time. They will likely appear at the Police Court on Monday.

NEW ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.—Plans for a new church for the congregation of St. Paul's are being made. The church will be built on the land adjoining the present edifice, and work will be commenced the coming summer. It is understood that the new church will be of stone, and it will probably front on Grafton Street. It will be of modern design and will seat about 500 or 600 people. The cost will be about $20,000.

THE SNOW STORM of yesterday was very severe along the line of railway, and drifts of from three to six feet are reported in many of the cuttings. The snow is packed hard. In many places the plow cannot get through the drifts and a passage has to be cleared with shovels. The trains are very uncertain in their movements as a result. At latest accounts the Georgetown train was laid up at Cardigan; the Souris train was stuck at Marie, and the mail special was detained half a mile west of Albany. The train for the west only succeeded in getting as far as the Junction; and the Tignish train did not move out at all. There will be no train going east this afternoon.

RATHER MIXED.—A rather amusing incident happened yesterday, in which a young man from a rural district about thirty miles from town, played an important though unpleasant part. Having driven some friends in, and landing at the western approaches to the city, he stabled his horse in the vicinity of the jail square, and proceeded up town. Some time afterward he met with some friends from the same part, and they intending leaving town together proceeded to get his horse; when, lo! the intricate mazes through which he had been winding his way had completely bewildered him. Not knowing the name of the party with whom he left the horse, it took the company over an hour playing detective before the mystery was unravelled. Poor Bruce, and he wasn't drunk either.

MR. DOULL'S ADDRESS.—The practical talk last evening on static electricity was, as expected, an interesting affair. Mr. Doull has made a thorough study of the science, and, although somewhat handicapped by the dampness of the room, succeeded by the aid of experiments and blackboard, in presenting the subject clearly to his audience. Mr. Doull's style of talking is easy, but never easier than when talking on his pet theme. Static electricity, he explained, was to the electrical science what the alphabet is to the language. The protection of houses by lightning rods was shown, and a plea made for their use. Intensity and quantity were illustrated by diagrams on the blackboard. Some of his experiments were very pretty, while an apology had to take the place of others. At the close an interesting discussion took place, which was taken part in by Dr. Leeming and Messrs. Bullman, Pope, Morrison, W. C. Harris and F. W. L. Moore.

REMARKABLE LONGEVITY. — A letter written in the Moniteur Acadien points with pardonable pride to the pre-eminence of Buctouche as the home of old people. A list filling a column and a half is given, the oldest person being 103 years of age, and the youngest 80. The widow of Gabriel Albert is the centenarian. Another woman—also a widow—is second on the list; she is 99. Next comes Michael Carroll, an Irishman, who facetiously remarked the other day: "Well, sir, very hard winter! So much snow to shovel, I begin to think that I am getting old. Yet I am only 98 years next spring."

FUNERAL NOTICE.—The Sons of Temperance are requested to meet in Division Room, Wright's Hall, on Sunday afternoon at 2.30, to attend the funeral of their late brother, Rev. Dr. Fitzgerald, P. G. W. P.—W. N. Tanton, R. S. Vic. Div. No. 4.

The members of Orient Division are requested to meet in their Division Room, Masonic Temple, on Sunday afternoon at 2.15, to attend the funeral of their late brother, Rev. David Fitzgerald, P. G. W. P.—John Ross, R. S.

'TWAS A DRY PLACE.—The Halifax Chronicle says: About 11.30 on Tuesday evening, a man, considerably intoxicated, walked into Undertaker Snow's shop and asked for a drink. An inquest was going on and there were two police officers present, one of whom showed the man to the door, and told him they didn't keep anything strong for sale.

At This Season

many people are compelled to take Cod Liver Oil. It is not very palatable at best, but an adulterated or rancid article is about the worst stuff anyone can swallow; besides, it's just as expensive as to price. We get our Cod Liver Oil direct and guarantee it to be absolutely pure. We have it on draught; so bring your bottle and have it filled.
