Rotarians Challenged To Encourage Others

Neil A. Matheson, Provincial and Farm Editor of The Guardian-Patriot was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of Rotary in the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday. He was introduced by chairman John Ledgerwood and thanked by co-chairman Reg. MacNutt.

His talk centered mostly on unusual and humorous incidents and stories he had encountered and heard in his travels in search of column material.

Mr. Matheson threw out a challenge, though, to Rotarians as leaders in their spheres of activity, to serve a most useful human purpose by lending a hand, or speaking a word of encouragement and understanding to any one of their acquaintenances who may be facing serious problems, although everything seems to be going smoothly for them.

"I recall that a leading businessman of the time helped me recover from a serious problem with nerves and morale some 30 years ago, when he stopped one day to share with me a similar experience of his own which he had overcome some years earlier," the speaker explained.

"It was the fact this man took the trouble to stop and talk with me and give advice fashioned from his own experience, that meant all the difference. That was the start of a complete recovery for me. You may be able to help someone the same way," Mr. Matheson suggested to the club members.

INTRODUCTION

Mr. Matheson was introduced as "a former member of this club, who has recently received international recognition through an award made by the American Society for State and Local History."

The citation reads "For carefully researched articles on local history in his newspaper column 'Across the Island' and extends congratulations 'on making such a significant contribution to the study and understanding of our heritage'."

More recently Mr. Matheson was honored by the Dairy Farmers of Canada when its president, John K. Dickson presented a national award for "Writing which correctly interprets the work and the problems of dairy farming".

$3,000 VOTED

On the recommendation of the board of directors, the club approved a vote of $3,000 to the Rehabilitation Centre.

Guests of Rotary were John Dickson, Ormstown, Que.; Dr. James Woodward, Ottawa; James Fox and J.O. Hornby, City.

Visiting Rotarians were Dr. Waldo Walsh, Kentville, N.S.; William Hurd, Melfort, Sask.; Larry R. Gray, Weyburn, Sask.; Louis A. Boileau, Regina, Sask.

AT ALL DRUGGISTS

Gov't To Meet ARDA Official

A meeting between government officials and A.T. Davidson, the federal government's agriculture rehabilitation and development program director, is expected to take place in Charlottetown, Jan. 30 and 31.

He will be accompanied by J. C. Lanctot, who is also associated with the ARDA program.

It is expected that discussions will centre around the province's resources development program and the type of federal assistance available for the program.

Meanwhile, former ARDA official Walter Packman was expected to arrive in the province yesterday for discussions with provincial research director Reid Sangster.

Official Auditors Busy At City Hall

With the presence of the official auditors preparing for the annual statement, matters at City Hall are almost at a standstill waiting until after the annual meeting. When the auditors finish their task, the city finance commttee will prepare a budget for the coming year and set a tax rate to meet it. This year the rate will be based on the new assessment.

Several factors will have to be considered in this budget for the first time. Among them will be the fact that personal property taxes (household furniture) are being dropped to relieve householders of one phase of the tax burden. Another item will be the compulsory city-wide garbage collection, which will be paid for out of general revenue.

One of the reasons for little council activity is that only five of the present councillors will be in the new Council, for certain. This is due to the new election system whereby half the councillors come up for re-election each year, instead of all of them every second year.

Those who will be back for another term are Councillors H. E. Hyndman, W.R. MacNeill, Walter Cox, John P. Nicholson and Allison Gillis. They represent Wards four and five. The other five councillors, representing Wards one, two, three and six are Arthur Gormley, Mrs. Dorothy Corrigan, Arthur Wright, Elmer MacRae and Edmond Arsenault.

Memorial Bldg. Work Progresses

R. M. Rickard, construction superintendent for the Pigott Construction Company Ltd., said yesterday that progress on the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Building is good, despite frigid temperatures and heavy snowfalls. Some 250 men are now employed on the project.

It is expected the first step in the pouring of the roof of the library section will be taken this week.

The main ceiling slab is in place and the balcony 'firmed up' in the theatre section. Many members of the finishing and stage rigging crews are busily engaged in their respective tasks.
