Canadian Informs Yanks Investments Cause Concern

PHILADELPHIA (CP)—James M. McAvity, president of the Canadian Export Association, said here Canadians are "suddenly becoming nervous" about the sheer scale of U.S. investment in Canada which threaten their political sovereignty.

He said total U.S. investment in Canada today amounts to about $20,000,000,000. Americans controlled 85 per cent of Canada's automotive industry, 80 per cent of rubber products, 64 per cent of electrical apparatus, 70 per cent of petroleum and natural gas, 52 per cent of mining and smelting, 43 per cent of pulp and paper, and for all manufacturing industry in Canada's close to 60 per cent.

Speaking to the part of Philadelphia Maritime Day luncheon, he described Canada as a "foreign" country it was "perhaps not as foreign as others, but certainly more foreign than it was 20 years ago."

He believed this was because of what he called the recent upsurge of nationalism and the growing aspiration of many thinking Canadians to maintain their national identity as a free and independent country.

Mr. McAvity quoted Robert M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, as saying it is not surprising that with such a concentration of foreign investment some Canadians have begun to believe that "something should be done to resist the friendly pressure that seems likely to engulf us."

By contrast with their Canadian operations, said Mr. McAvity, American businessmen in Mexico or Europe are well aware they are dealing with foreigners and conduct their business, often with local partners, with an eye to the sensitivities of the people and the government, consciously aware of national interests and aspirations.

He said:

Survey Revealed Underway Of Nfld. Bay D'Espoir Area

HALIFAX (CP)—A study of the economic potential and transportation requirements of Newfoundland's Bay D'Espoir area has been started by the federal mines and technical surveys department's geographical branch.

Ian M. MacKeigan, Atlantic Development Board chairman, who made the announcement here, said the study was requested by the Newfoundland royal commission on transportation and economic prospects.

The survey will consider the economic prospects of the area in general and will concentrate on possible future transportation links. Future transportation needs of central Newfoundland will also be included in the study. The field work is hoped to be completed this summer.

The ADB has already agreed to pay $20,000,000 toward the construction of a new hydroelectric power station and other facilities at Bay d'Espoir, on the province's south coast.

The operations will create a new townsite, port and new means of transport connecting Bay d'Espoir with central Newfoundland.

Mr. MacKeigan said it is hoped new industry will be located in Bay d'Espoir—located by the location of its harbor on the main trade routes of the world—and by reasonably-priced power.

"The study should provide a useful frame of reference for the planning of both federal and provincial agencies and the existence of the study in itself should encourage economic development in the Bay d'Espoir area," Mr. MacKeigan said.

The ADB is also contributing toward the cost of a highway being built by the provincial government, which will connect Bay d'Espoir with the Trans-Canada Highway near Grand Falls.

Bay d'Espoir harbor will be administered by the National Harbours Board. The harbor facilities now are being constructed by the federal works department. An airstrip is also being developed in the area.

Opening lead—two of spades. Some players falsecard all the time, whether the role they are playing at the moment happens to be that of declarer or defender.

Presumably these players gain by their tactics when they become declarer, since they may succeed in fooling the opponents without at the same time fooling partner, but they often come to grief on defense when their efforts boomerang and mislead partner instead of declarer.

Despite this, there is no question that a well-timed defensive falsecard can be highly effective on a particular occasion, as proved to be the case in this hand from a team of four match.

At the first table the play went smoothly and South made three notrump. He won the spade lead with the jack, ran his heart tricks, discarding three clubs and a diamond, and then led a diamond towards the king. The cards being distributed the way they were, South could not be stopped from making three notrump.

At the second table, against the same contract and the same opening lead, declarer went down one as the result of a diversionary attack by West. Here also South won the spade lead with the jack, but when he now played a low heart to the queen, West falsecarded with the jack.

This apparently innocuous play caused South to change his campaign of action. Instead of running the entire heart suit immediately, which he had intended to do, he played a low heart back to the ten, trying to protect against the possibility that West had started with the singleton jack and East with the 9-7-2.

When West followed to the second heart lead, declarer realized that he had been misled, but it was then too late for him to do anything about it. He played a club and finessed the queen, but East took the king, returned a spade, and South had to go down one.

Fisher Wants Better Liaison With Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Centennial Commissioner John Fisher has indicated he wants better lines of communication between himself and the government if he is to stay in his $24,000-a-year post.

"If a more satisfactory liaison can be found, I would like to remain with the commission," he said in a prepared statement.

There have been reports recently that the man in charge of preparations for Canada's centennial of confederation celebrations in 1967 has felt "boxed in" and was on the point of quitting.

One published report attributed to State Secretary Lamontagne, minister responsible to Parliament for the centennial commission, a remark that Mr. Fisher was a poor administrator.

Under a recent change, Georges Gauthier, formerly with the civil service commission, has taken over administration.

Construction Of New College Gets Underway

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Construction began here Tuesday on a $3,000,000 Roman Catholic women's college.

A church spokesman said the college is to be affiliated with Memorial University of Newfoundland. It will supplement the present St. Bride's College, which provides secondary school training and residence facilities to 140 girls.

The new facilities will include a mother house, a dining hall, two residence blocks, a library, four classroom buildings, and an administration building.
