

City Restaurant Struck By Fire

The Granada Lounge of Milton's Old Spain, 151 Kent Street, last night sustained heavy water damage and fire damage as the result of a blaze which broke out at approximately 10:30. The fire originated in the back kitchen of the second floor beside the dummy waiter. The firemen arrived on the scene a few moments after the fire broke out and the blaze was extinguished almost immediately. The actual cause of the fire wasn't known for certain; however, Fire Chief Gordon Stewart commented to the effect that wiring in the dummy waiter could have been the cause. Another possible cause may have been electrical equipment in the kitchen.

Firemen gained entrance by means of the front doors and by use of a ladder truck which aided them to enter through a side window. There were several panes of glass broken in entering and firemen were forced to tear up the wall in which the fire was located in order to get at the blaze with their hoses. The fire was extinguished within a few moments but water damage which followed was reported to be extensive in both the first and second floors. Most of the fire damage was confined to the wall adjacent to the dummy waiter and to the roof directly above it. However, Old Spain proper suffered only water damage and is expected to be open for business today as usual along with the Granada Lounge.

SEVERED ARM

Doctors at DeKalb General Hospital near Atlanta have expressed optimism that an operation to restore the severed arm of Deborah Sheppard, 10, will be successful. Doctors say Deborah—whose right arm was severed by an automatic washing machine last Friday—has some sensation in the fingers. The arm was restored in a two-hour operation.

Basic Income Seen Possible

VANCOUVER (CP)—Federal Health Minister Allan MacEachen suggested Saturday consideration of a guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians. The suggestion came in a speech to the British Columbia Young Liberal forum in which he called for a "bold and imaginative" examination of the long-term goals and policies of the Liberal party.

Mr. MacEachen said the guaranteed income principle applies in legislation to be introduced into Parliament in the fall. The legislation will guarantee a monthly income of at least $105 to all old-age pensioners. He added:

"Granted, we are only applying it in a limited area. But we are going to look at this approach to see whether it may have wider, even universal, application."

"It seems to me, at least, that the guaranteed minimum income offers at one and the same time a more comprehensive approach to social security and a more acceptable measure to assist the disadvantaged members of our country."

Text of Mr. MacEachen's speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

have been on strike for more than a week.

The ambulance was allowed past the pickets. Nurses treated the burns but no doctor examined Mr. Swavola and his sons, although one was called. Mrs. Swavola said.

The ambulance and the Swavola car then drove 100 miles to Ottawa General Hospital, arriving at 4:30 a.m. Saturday.

The hospital Sunday night listed Tim's condition as serious, with third-degree burns to his arms and other less serious burns. Mr. Swavola and Wayne, with less serious burn, were listed as "satisfactory."

The late Mrs. Gordon leaves to mourn her husband, one daughter, Elsie, Mrs. Leslie Lecco, Abney, and two sons, Ivan and James, both residing in Abney. Also surviving are two step-daughters, Eunice, Mrs. Wilfred MacNeill, Beach Point, and Katie, Mrs. Hazen Moore, Abney, and two step-sons, Ralph, residing in Murray River and Warren in Alberta.

Tonight's show is a benefit sponsored by the Prince Edward Island Hospital Ladies Aid and will be followed by a meet-the-cast reception in the Green Room.

"Turvey," the last of this season's three Summer Festival shows to open, is the story of a trouble-prone private in the World War II Canadian Army. The musical comedy was adapted by Donald Harron and Norman Campbell from Earle Birney's novel, "Turvey," which won the Stephen Leacock medal for humor in 1950.

Jack Duffy stars as the likeable hero; other principal players in the show are Jane Casson as Peggy, Dean Regan as Wilcox, Bill Cole as Mac and Robert Ainslie as Ballard. Kate Reid, Barbara Hamilton, Donald Harron and Eric House play cameo roles.

The production is directed and choreographed by Alan J. and who also worked his inventive skill on "Anne of Green Gables."

Last night's dress rehearsal was viewed by students of the theatre section, Atlantic Summer School of the Arts, and members of the Kings Theatre (Georgetown) Summer stock.

"Charlie," the missing snake who escaped from the custody of his owner, Warren Duchemin, is still being sought for. Romania's Opposition To Red Policy Not New

By HANS BENEDICT
BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — "Communist aristocracy," mumbles the grizzled taxi driver, gesturing toward a cluster of luxurious villas.

The atmosphere of quiet elegance is reminiscent of the wealthy aristocracy that ruled Romania before the war. But the men living on Boulevard Ivanovic M. Kaimin today are an entirely different breed.

These are the hard, tough Communist bosses of Romania, the new dissidents of world communism.

Nicolae Ceausescu, 48, is their leader. His neighbors are President Chivu Stoica and Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer. Ceausescu, general secretary of the Romanian central committee, has been depicted recently in the West as a new Tito who wants to break fully with Russia and go his own way with an independent Romania-Romanians and his own ideas of communism.

Others have depicted him as a de Gaulle of Eastern Europe, who wants practically no part of Russian-sponsored East Bloc economic and military alliances.

CONTINUE POLICY
These are oversimplifications. Romania's opposition to Soviet policy is not new. Ceausescu, Stoica and Maurer are carrying out a policy laid down by the Romanian Communist party at least eight years ago. The party decided then that it wasn't going to let Russia relegate Romania to the role of corn-grower and cattle-breeder for the rest of the Moscow camp.

It saw Romania's great potential of oil and other mineral wealth. It voted to change Romania from a land of barefoot peasants to a prosperous industrial country.

HAD HELP
If any country has shown that communism can be successful, Romania is that country. It has pulled itself ahead economically faster than any country in eastern Europe, with the help of Western techniques and hardware.

The party's policy is to continue this. It is not a one-man decision. It is the driving aim of a "collective leadership" in which Ceausescu, a shrewd, hardened product of the party machinery, is perhaps the first among equals.

Ceausescu's predecessor, the late Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, first discovered the magic formula of persuading 18,500,000 Romanians to work harder. He stimulated a sense of national pride.

Heartbreak Ends Camping Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—A camping holiday deep in the Quebec bush some 150 miles north of here ended in heartbreak for an American family this weekend when fire swept a tent, injuring a father and his two sons, one of them seriously.

The fire struck Friday night as Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swavola and their sons Wayne, 14, and Tim, 11, of Susquehanna, Penn., camped at La Verendrye Park, some 50 miles north of Maniwaki, Que.

Mrs. Swavola gave this account in an interview Sunday: The boys had zipped themselves into their tent when an oil lantern either exploded or overturned. The tent burst into flames. Wayne rolled out of the tent on fire and rolled the flames out in the dirt. Mr. Swavola, 39, ran inside and pulled Tim to safety—both were ablaze.

The flames extinguished and with a park attendant helping, the family drove to the park entrance where an ambulance took the injured to Maniwaki General Hospital.

The hospital, along with 138 other Quebec hospitals, was being picketed by non-medical hospital employees. Some 32,500 hospital employees in Quebec

McNamara Gives Reason

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the reasons why the United States has not closed the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong given by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, were disclosed Sunday night.

In congressional testimony, McNamara said he thought the military rewards would not be impressive if the principal North Vietnamese port were mined or otherwise closed—but he could change his mind.

The defence chief's estimate of the risks of a greater war arising from such an operation was deleted from the testimony released Sunday night by an appropriations subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

McNamara said it is heavy battle casualties, regardless of the "relatively small" infiltration of supplies into the South, that will have a lot to do with the will of the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese to fight on.

The North Vietnamese could put in material over the beaches, or they could move it along the roads from south China in to North Viet Nam," he said. "So there's no assurance that mining the harbor would stop the flow, or even significantly reduce the flow of supplies from North Viet Nam into South Viet Nam."

McNamara testified March 30, when the subcommittee was considering the administration's $917,000,000 foreign military aid request. This was nearly three months before U.S. planes made their first attacks on Haiphong petroleum facilities. Advocates of tougher action have been calling for a blockade or mining of the port.
