

Saskatchewan Cattle Company Feeds Animals For Investors

HUGHTON, Sask. (CP) — Investors who can't tell one end of a cow from the other can play the cattle market through a Saskatchewan company that fattens 10,000 animals a year.

Myers Cattle Company feeds cattle for investors from as far away as the Philippines, Tom Myers, president of the firm, says investors usually expect a return of 15 to 18 per cent over a year. But they don't always get it.

Cash from investors is converted into cattle by the company. The investor pays 10 cents a day plus the cost of feed until the cattle are ready for market. Mr. Myers then sells the animals for butcher.

Mr. Myers makes his money on the 10-cent-a-day charge and the margin on the feed which is prepared in his own feed mill. The investor makes his money — if there is a profit — on the margin between the selling price and what he originally put into the venture.

EAT UP OF FEED

Feeder cattle—usually young steers that need fattening—are bought at 70 to 80 cents a pound. They eat about a ton of feed in the time it takes to reach the selling weight of 1,050 to 1,150 pounds. Slaughter cattle sell about two cents a pound higher than feeders.

"It takes from 90 to 100 days to finish a steer," says Mr. Myers, "and the investor can usually figure on making $5 an animal."

He says the percentage return of 12 to 15 per cent is based on an investor leaving his money with the company for a full year. He explained that investors were encouraged to invest on a yearly basis.

Since there are three feeding periods each year, the investor usually can recoup his losses and gain a profit over a year's operation, he says.

low death rate of the lot—less than one per cent.

Few investors ever see their cattle, says Mr. Myers, although most investors drop at the feedlot while holidaying. Most investors are from eastern Canada, but the largest investments come from the west.

Individual investments range from $50 to 10,000. Playing the cattle market, says Mr. Myers, is not unlike the stock market except, perhaps, there's a bit more risk in the cattle business.

Jack Ruby Story Is Given By Columnist From N. York

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Ruby has been quoted from purported actual word-by-word testimony before the Warren commission as insisting he killed Lee Harvey Oswald on the spur of the moment last Nov. 24.

In a copyright story by New York Journal-American columnist Dorothy Kigallen, Ruby is quoted as having told Chief Justice Earl Warren during interrogation last June 7:

"I was never a Presidential ward this person. No one else requested me to do anything. I never spoke to anyone about attempting to do anything. No subversive organization gave me any idea. No underworld persons made any effort to contact me."

It all happened that Sunday morning.

Ruby, now 53, stepped out of a crowd of newspaper men and onlookers in the basement of Dallas police headquarters Sunday, Nov. 24, and fired a single fatal bullet into Oswald, who had been formally charged as the assassin of President John F. Kennedy two days earlier.

Condemned to death by a Dallas trial jury last March 14, Ruby now is held in the Dallas County Jail pending an appeal.

Warren interviewed him three times.

"Mr. Bell evidently did not go into my case thoroughly or circumstantially. He had gone into it, he wouldn't have tried to vindicate me on an insanity plea to relieve me of all responsibility, because circumstantially everything looks so bad for me. It can happen—it happens to many people who happen to be in the wrong place at the right time."

Foreign Trawlers Ignore New Limit

WEST ST. MICHIGAN, Neb. (CP) — A Roman Catholic priest says large foreign trawlers are entering the Strait of Belle Isle—well inside the 12-mile limit—and are destroying locally-set fishing gear.

Rev. Alfred Tessier said in an interview "the trawlers come as close as one mile from shore."

He said many trawlers were destroyed recently by the big ships near West St. Modiste. Trawls set by local fishermen are broken for catching cod fish. The big trawlers catch fish.

Nationally of the ships involved was not disclosed.

Unconfirmed reports reaching St. John's in the last few weeks include descriptions of fishermen chasing trawlers out of their waters. One report said a large trawler tried to run down a fisherman after he had come close enough to take down the ship's name and number. The fisherman, who was not named, said he passed on his information to the fisheries department.

However, area fisheries director, H. B. Bradley, said in St. John's Tuesday he had received no complaints from fishermen in the area about trawlers violating the fishing limit or of broken trawls.

West St. Modiste is on Pinare Bay in Labrador, about 15 miles east of the Quebec border.

The men said they were told they would get a bullet in the head if they didn't stop bothering Richard Bisser.

Guest Speaker At Dinner Is World Noted Jersey Judge

One of the most experienced judges in the Jersey cattle world, Oliver Evans, was guest speaker at the annual Jersey Club banquet held Tuesday evening in the Towers Restaurant.

Mr. Evans comes from Chilliwack, B.C., and is not classifying cattle in Eastern Canada.

This man has judged at fairs all over Canada and the United States. He will be making his fourth appearance this year as judge of the "Jersey" show which is the United States' biggest Jersey exhibition. And he has judged recently in Australia where they have tremendous entries—some 25,000 head of cattle entered in the Jersey class.

The quality in Australia was good and the grand champion cow could be the Royal Winter Fair. She might not win the championship, but she would probably win her class, he observed.

Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae also spoke to the group which included some 60 people, including representatives from several other breed associations and a few visitors from outside the province. These included Malcolm MacKay, Rotsey, N.B., who has not missed attending an exhibition in Charlottetown for 35 years. It was stated by Chairman George MacMillan, Cornwall, who presided.

N.S. Business Said Booming

TORONTO (CP) — W. S. Kennedy Jones of Nova Scotia said the value of the province's manufacturing industry this year should exceed $500,000,000.

Mr. Jones said the value of shipments from Nova Scotia plants during the first three months of this year was 15 per cent ahead of the first quarter in 1963.

"We see no reason why this momentum will not be maintained," he said.

Mr. Jones, also responsible for the development of Nova Scotia's tourist industry, said the number of visitors in June and July this year was about six per cent more during the same two months in 1963.

"This certainly indicates that 1964 will be a record year for the tourist industry in the province. Last year we had an estimated 752,000 visitors who spent about $54,000,000 during the period from June 1 to Sept. 30."

Mr. Jones is in Toronto for the Canadian National Exhibition. More than 100 products, ranging from a sailboat to nails will be shown at the Nova Scotia display there.
