

MR. MORGAN'S CASE.

A Bridgewater, N. S., Incident that Caused a Big Stir.

A Prominent Business man Cured of a Deadly Disease after the Doctors had Failed—Dodd's Kidney Pills Again the Victors.

BRIDGEWATER, N. S., Oct. 28.—When a man endures the pains of disease, when he is confined to his house, or his bed, and suffers the misery inseparable from an attack of illness, even though it be for a few days only, he longs with an ardent longing for good health and strength.

It is only when we are ill and weak, that we realize the infinite blessings and happiness of health and strength.

Mr. John S. Morgan, one of the most prominent, and enterprising business men of this place, will endorse this statement.

For eighteen years he suffered the agonies of Kidney Disease without being able to find relief. His sufferings commenced, as in the majority of cases, with pains and aches in his back and legs. Little did he think that these were timely warnings and that had he heeded them he would have escaped eighteen years of misery.

His family physician failed to effect a cure, or to relieve his patient's sufferings. Soon Rheumatism set in, and increased the burden of his pain.

Mr. Morgan was told one day that Dodd's Kidney Pills would cure him. He, of course, did not believe it, as his doctor had failed.

Nevertheless under persuasion he agreed to try them. From that day his recovery began. After having used twenty boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, he was hale and hearty, strong and well.

There is no wonder Mr. Morgan enjoys his newly-found vigor and health. He suffered long enough to thoroughly appreciate them.

No wonder Mr. Morgan says Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine known to man. So they are, and Mr. Morgan knows it. For they saved his life.

As late as 1682 squirts or syringes were used for extinguishing fire in England, and their length did not exceed two or three feet, with pipes of leather. Water tight seamless hose was first made in Betulap Green in 1720.

GUARDING THE MINT

Probably not one person out of a hundred who pass by the Philadelphia mint, that grim looking edifice at Chestnut and Juniper streets, after nightfall realizes what is going on inside. There is nothing mean about Uncle Sam, but he is determined that any one who gets his money shall get it honestly and by process duly laid down. Therefore he has taken all kinds of precautions to properly protect, especially at night, the millions upon millions piled up in the vaults.

The doors of the mint are closed every weekday promptly at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. After that hour no one but mint employees have any business within the walls which inclose so much money, and no one can either stay in or get in without a special permit from the superintendent. Needless to say, this is difficult to obtain.

Simultaneously with the closing of the doors at 4 o'clock the first shift of the night guard goes on duty. The shift is composed of the captain of the guard and 11 stalwart men. As the men file out to begin their round each one is handed a big Colt's revolver of the most approved pattern and loaded with big cartridges.

From then on till midnight seven of the 11 guards patrol without cessation every floor of the inside of the mint, from the corridors of the gloomy vaults where, away down in the earth, are stowed eighty odd million dollars in silver and almost as much gold, to the top floor, where there is nothing more valuable than machinery. Placed at frequent intervals throughout the corridors are electrical devices for enabling the captain of the guard to keep tabs on his men. Each of these little machines communicates with the rotunda opposite the Chestnut street entrance to the mint. Here it is that the captain is stationed all through the long hours of his shift. Every two minutes and a half the central machine in the rotunda denotes the presence of some one in the guard at some particular station in the building. If it doesn't, then the captain knows that something is wrong, and he immediately proceeds to discover what it is.

But it has been a long time since the little machine failed to send forth its announcement at the proper time, for the mint guards are patrolling up and down outside the big building, carefully watching that no suspicious characters approach too near the vast treasure left in their care.

Promptly at midnight the second shift of the night guard puts in an appearance to relieve the early shift. It is also composed of a captain and 11 men, and they are split up, as the other squad, into inside and outside details. From midnight on until 7 o'clock in the morning they follow in the footsteps of the first shift, with every faculty alert to catch an intruder.

The big revolvers are not the only weapons upon which the guards have to rely. On each side of the main corridor leading from the Chestnut street entrance stands a walnut case. Through the polished glass front of one from 20 Winchester rifles. The other contains as many ugly looking carbines. To grab these dispensers of death would be but the work of an instant for the guards, and then woe be unto any man or men upon whom it might be found necessary to turn them.

For the revolvers there is kept constantly on hand in the mint 500 rounds of ammunition, and for the rifles and carbines 2,500 rounds. Each of the guards is an expert in the use of both the pistol and the gun, and each is endowed with a plentiful stock of courage: hence a combination capable of successfully resisting almost anything less than a regiment.

The superintendent and assistant custodian both talked to the reporter about the methods in use to protect the mint and its contents. Both smiled significantly when the possibility of one getting away with a portion of the vast treasure was suggested.

"It would be folly for any one to try it," was the superintendent's only comment. To it the assistant custodian nodded emphatic assent.

"I have been here for a good many years," the latter said, "and no such attempt has ever been made. It is practically impossible for any one to break into the mint from the outside, and no one could secrete himself in the building during the hours when it is open to visitors and hope to avoid discovery. We search every nook and corner of the structure carefully as soon as the doors are closed for the day, and you may rest assured if any one who had no business within these walls was found he would regret the day he was born."

In addition to the two shifts of night guards, the superintendent and assistant custodian have a habit of dropping in at the mint at odd hours of the night to see that everything is going on all right.

The mint is connected with the central telephone station, and should there be trouble the captain of the guard could communicate with police headquarters in a brief space of time.

"If you come across anybody who thinks he can get rich quickly by helping himself to our coin," remarked the superintendent in parting, "just advise him to think it over carefully first."

In compliance with the superintendent's suggestion the advice is hereby given.

And it is pretty good advice to follow too.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND GIVES THEM NEW LIFE VIGOR AND NEEDED STRENGTH.

It Purifies the Blood and Braces the Nerves.

It Gives Bright Eyes and a Clear and Healthy Complexion.

Mrs. Mabel Jenness, whose wonderful system for the correct physical training of women and girls is so well known all over the North American continent, is a firm believer in the virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. When overworked by her multitudinous duties, she always recuperates and strengthens her system by using Paine's Celery Compound. In a letter to Wells & Richardson Co., proprietors of Paine's Celery Compound, she says:

"I was induced to try Paine's Celery Compound at a time when I was suffering from overwork and the effect of an accident. I began immediately to realize tonic and bloodnourishing effects. I take pleasure in saying that, although opposed to medicine in general, I really consider this an excellent preparation."

"I have not been able to take one day's rest since I returned from my long, hard week's trip. I am sure were it not for Paine's Celery Compound, which has a tonic effect, I should not be able to keep up and work hard."

"I recommended Paine's Celery Compound to a friend who dined with us yesterday, and on leaving here she went and bought a bottle. I shall do all I can for it, for I believe in it."
