"DRINK HAEL."

She pledged the Roman in a costly draft,
That fierce Egyptian queen, and yet she threw
Only a pearl into the cup she quaffed—
A pale, cold, tasteless pearl. When I pledge you,
I'll cast the love I bear you in the wine.
"Drink hael," I'll say, "in this poor cup of mine!
Drink hael, dear love! Would that I could pour
My soul into the cup for you to drink
And with that wine your fainting heart restore!
Drank hael, dear love—drink hael! The cup, I think
Though all too poor, holds something else than wine,
So drink, dear love, from this poor cup of mine!"

FOREIGN MUSICIANS.

The English Style of Pronouncing Their Names Is In Greatest Vogue.

The pronunciation of the names of foreign musicians is a subject with regard to which the average Briton is disposed to claim and exercise the most unrestricted freedom. The result is not usually such as would lead to self identification by the unhappy owners of the names themselves. Several organs of the musical press have begun discussing the matter with the view of protecting the foreign musician from nominal mutilation at the hands of his admirers and of bringing something like harmony out of the present state of chaos. One writer states that at a recent conference of musicians he heard the name of a foreign musical celebrity pronounced in four different ways by as many speakers. Tschaikowsky was alluded to by one speaker as "Shy-cow-sky" instead of "Chy-koff-ski," as the composer's name ought approximately to be pronounced.

Although sufficiently serious, this is less disconcerting than the American reproach against English name orthography in general that we write a word "Beauchamp" and pronounce it "Beecham." Still, a more rational method of translating proper names from languages which, like Russian, have an alphabet entirely different from our own is much to be desired. There is really no reason why we should retain the German "w" in such names as Tschaikowsky, Paderewski and Turgeniev. The Russian letter is "v," although it has the power of "f" before hard consonants and at the end of most words. The general substitution of "v" would at least give the death blow to such mispronunciations as "Paderoosky." The adoption of the suggestion that Sir George Grove or some other authority should complete a pronouncing vocabulary of foreign musicians' names might prove useful to the student, but the infrequent concert goer would probably remain uninfluenced. The too deferential Baboo, when asked how his somewhat formidable name was to be pronounced, politely answered, "As you d—n please." This, it is to be feared, will continue to be the rule with the majority of foreign musicians.—London News.

Ancient Hindoo Guilds.

Till the time of Vishnu's lawbook, third century A. D., no one of these guilds appears as pre-eminent, but in this work "metal workers and smiths of silver and gold" are mentioned particularly, though this pre-eminence may be due to accident. But the circumstance is interesting, because exactly these guilds became the chief guilds of ordinary towns and because they were very likely the first to band together in self defense all the guilds originating in this way, but the goldsmiths perhaps first of all, since the old law in regard to smiths was so extremely severe as to call for some union on their part.

The old law in regard to a goldsmith found guilty of defrauding was based on the principle that a goldsmith can most easily deceive, and that when he does so he is "the vilest of sinners." The king is therefore directed to see to it that a goldsmith found guilty of cheating shall be chopped up into very small pieces with sharp knives, whereas ordinary thieves or cheats are merely beheaded. By uniting together and ostracizing a guilty member the guild could inflict a punishment which, if it was not so severe, probably had a still more deterrent effect.—Yale Review.

RIVALS A MIRACLE.

Mr. George C. Chalker's Terrible Sufferings Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Howsey's Rapids, Sept. 12.—Mr. George C. Chalker, of this place, tells a remarkable story of restoration to sound health, that rivals the far-famed St. Anne de Beaupre cures.

Briefly, Mr. Chalker's story is as follows: "I suffered horribly for years from kidney disease. I could do no heavy work. My pain was almost unendurable. No remedy did me the least good till I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes of this wonderful medicine have cured me completely—made a new man of me. I cannot speak highly enough of them. I can state with the utmost confidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure the very worst case of kidney disease.
