

MR. AND MRS. DAVID G. STEWART

Beautiful Wedding Held At The Kirk Of S. James

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Kirk of S. James, Charlottetown, when Margaret Elizabeth Matheson became the bride of David George Stewart, in a double-ring ceremony. Rev. T. H. B. Somers officiated.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Phillip Matheson, Oyster Bed Bridge, and the groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ethan H. Stewart, Montague.

The church was attractively decorated with baskets of white gladioli and white phlox, and the guest pews were marked with large bows of white satin ribbon. Miss E. Lillian MacKenzie was in charge of the wedding music, playing the hymn, "Praise my soul the King of Heaven" for the procession, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the recessional. During the signing of the register Mrs. David Cox sang the hymn, "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden."

The young bride given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white swiss dot nylon over taffeta, with low cut neckling, empire waistline and a full skirt featuring a large bustle-like full in the back, from which fell floor-length panels. Her elbow length veil was of hand-rolled tulle held by a tiara-like satin headress, trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. She wore long white gloves and carried a bouquet of white gladioli flowers.

The bridal attendants were Misses Frances Clark, and Janet Matheson. They wore identically styled street length dresses of nylon-tricot over taffeta, with full skirts and shirred bodices in colours of ocean blue and shell pink respectively. They wore small hats, short gloves and shoes in matching colours, and carried bouquets of white and pink carnations.

The groom's mother wore a dress of tea-rose lace over taffeta with which she wore a matching hat and other accessories of navy, and a corsage of white carnations. A buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride, following the wedding. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. Nelson Henry, Misses Marcella Foley, Christine MacPhail, Joyce MacKie, Flora Woolner, Sandra Stewart, Karen MacRae, and Ruth MacLeod.

The table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with, and surrounded by, small red roses and maiden hair fern. White candles in crystal candelabra completed the table decorations.

On the lawn, immediately prior to the serving of the luncheon, a toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. T. H. B. Somers which was fittingly responded to by the groom.

Miss Austina Kennedy was in charge of the guest book. For a short wedding trip through the Maritime provinces, the bride wore a sapphire blue wool suit, white feather cloche hat, white kid gloves, black shoes and purse. A corsage of white gladioli completed her ensemble.

The bride is a Medical Technology student and the groom is studying Medicine at Dalhousie University, Halifax, N.S.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS WILSON

Lovely Wedding Ceremony At St. George's Church

On the morning of September 29th, the altar and sanctuary of the beautiful church of St. George's was tastefully decorated with potted plants and baskets of cut flowers for the marriage of Theresa Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fitzpatrick, Woodville Mills, who became the bride of John Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, Cardigan.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bennet MacDonald P.P. who also celebrated the nuptial mass serving the mass as altar boy was Norbert Morrison, a friend of the bride.

Appropriate hymns were beautifully rendered by Elaine Johnston, niece of the bride, Agnes Somers cousin of the bride, and also by the choir leader, George MacDonald.

To the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Felix Walker the church organist, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage.

The bride looked lovely in a waltz-length gown of white brocade net over satin with Chantilly lace bolero jacket. Her finger tip veil fell from a sparkling tiara of sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of dark red and white powder-puff asters with Chinese blue forget-me-nots.

The bridesmaid was Margaret Wilson, sister of the groom. She was attired in a waltz-length gown of blue nylon-net over taffeta with headress to match. She carried a nosegay of blue and pink cornflowers.

Following the reception, the bridal party and relatives joined with John Fitzpatrick, cousin of the bride, and his bride the former Joyce Sheppard, who were married the same morning serving the remainder of the afternoon dancing and singing at the Beaver Club hall.

For travelling the bride chose a brown fitted suit with beige accessories to match. They motored to Charlottetown where they now reside.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Farm Folk Speculate On Another Seasons Yield

We gathered a winter-bouquet from the flower border this morning and through the bare branches of In former Autumns we have taken a stroll along the fields to a small black-sailed slough to the far side of this farm. It is an interesting spot. In Spring the strange shrubs which grow in and about it are in their gay flowerings and there at this time of year, one may find a variety of sedges and plumed and feathery grasses such as in the long ago, housewives were wont to gather to fill the vases on the parlor mantel. Sometimes tinted artistically, or maybe left without brightening touch, these were not only fashionable bouquets but also quite pretty. But today we were satisfied with gleanings found closer to home.

We gathered here but graceful sprays of the delicate Baby's Breath, silvery-mauve rounds of the Globe Thistle, white of the Snowberry, orange of Chinese Lanterns, scarlet of rose-hipped twigs, and arranged them in a quaint earthen jar, resolving all the while to make more allowance in another year for just such plantings as these.

The wind of day lamented as it searched along the yard-paths and through the bare branches of the lawn-trees for lovelinesses gone. Clouds dipped to touch the hillslopes. No sun, no blue sky... a Fall-morning and gray. "November, you mournful fellow!" I sighed. But stars blossom now, spangling the heavens, and soon in the pretty night-blue there where over the barns the sky brightens the moon will appear, to bid the week farewell.

We count it off now, name away the days... the fair ones and those that brought disappointment to the farmer, longing to have his crop all saved, his fields tucked up for the winter. Not that the beclouded days and damp were idle ones for him, since they too served to provide him with a convenient time to attend to seasonal repairs required before the stabling of stock in barn or other building about.

"A few fine days" the younger farmer commented this evening "and we'll have the last of the turnips on the farm in the road gathered. It won't take long - in good weather, I guess" he speculated "there's not too much crop left now on fields across the countryside."

Following the reception, the bridal party and relatives joined with John Fitzpatrick, cousin of the bride, and his bride the former Joyce Sheppard, who were married the same morning serving the remainder of the afternoon dancing and singing at the Beaver Club hall.
