WELCOME ROBIN IS IN TROUBLE.

Very often you will find
Trouble just a state of mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Welcome Robin was in trouble. He had been hurt. He had been hurt by a boy who didn't think. Welcome Robin had been sitting high in a tree, singing "Cheer-up, cheer-up, cheer-up cheer," as he is so fond of doing. A boy with an air rifle had spied Welcome Robin, and had shot at him just to see if he could hit him. He did hit him, though he never had the satisfaction of knowing that he did. You see the distance was so great that the shot did not injure Welcome Robin so that he could not fly. But it did injure him enough to keep him from flying far. It bruised a wing, and weakened it.

It was getting near time to think of winter, and where to spend it. Welcome Robin had expected to spend it where it was warmer than it would be if he remained. He had planned to go down in the Sunny South, not as far as some of his feathered friends would go, but far enough to need good wings to take him there. Now he was in doubt. That wing hurt by the shot fired quietly. It wasn't strong enough for a long flight. If he should find that he couldn't go, what then? Welcome Robin was worried. It wouldn't be long now before he would have to make up his mind whether to go or stay.

He was in real trouble. He knew that all his friends were going. He knew that they would go just as soon as Jack Frost really arrived, because then food would be scarce. Anyway, favorite Robin food would be scarce. Jack Frost would freeze the ground hard. Then there would be no fat earthworms to pull out of it. All would go down in the ground beyond the reach of Jack Frost. It would be much the same way with other worms and with insects of all kinds. He would have to live on other kinds of food; certain kinds of berries that stay on the trees and bushes and vines all winter. If he could find enough of these he might be able to live through the winter. He wouldn't be comfortable when rough Brother North Wind came howling through the Green Forests and over the Green Meadows. He wouldn't be happy when ice and snow covered everything about him. In fact, he would be most uncomfortable and most unhappy. But if he had food enough he could live. He must know now, however, whether there was likely to be food enough. If there should not be he would have to try to make that trip south despite his weak wing.

Welcome Robin remembered certain ash trees, known as the Mountain Ash. Some years they bear masses of red berries that cling to the trees through most of the winter. He would go see if there would be plenty of berries this year. Over in the swamp were cedar trees. You and I would not like the berries on the cedar trees, but Welcome Robin likes them. He would go to the swamp and see if there were to be many berries this year. Then there were thickets in which certain berry-bearing vines grew.

"I've got to look ahead. I've got to find out if there is going to be enough food I can get," said he to Mrs. Welcome.

"Supposing that you find there will be no berries, or very few. What will you do then?" said Mrs. Robin.

"I will try to go along with you and the other Robins. At least I'll start with you," said Welcome Robin.

So Welcome Robin went to look at the ash trees, and went to look at the cedar trees and went to look at every berry-bearing vine of which he knew. The more he looked the more he worried. There was going to be a light crop of berries. There would be many other berry eaters. Would there be enough for all, and for himself?

Welcome Robin was a worried bird, and all because a boy didn't think. When he saw Welcome Robin fly away, it didn't enter that boy's head that just because he wanted to find out how good a shot he was, he would cause pain, and worry and trouble that would last for a long long time after he had forgotten all about that shot. Much of the trouble in this world is caused by people who do not think.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

A SOURCE OF BIG PENALTIES

It is sometimes permissible to "shade" takeout doubles rather be shut out of the bidding, but at rubber bridge, especially, considerable discretion should be exercised in this respect.

East dealer.
Neither side vulnerable

	♠ 7 4 3 ♥ Q 10 6 ♦ 9 7 2 ♣ A J 5 3
♠ K J 9 6 2 ♥ 9 5 3 ♦ K Q 5 4 ♣ Q	N W E S	♠ 8 5 ♥ A K J 8 4 ♦ A 3 ♣ 10 9 7 2
	♠ A Q 10 ♥ 7 2 ♦ J 10 8 6 ♣ K 8 6 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	Dbl. (!)	Redbl.	Pass
Pass	1 ♠	Dble.	Pass
Pass	1 N T	Pass	Pass
Dble.	2 ♣	Pass	Pass
Dble.	2 ♦	Dble.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Once South stretched to double one heart for a takeout, he could not "get off the hook." Obviously, he probed all avenues of escape but what happened was what so often happens in these cases: he landed at almost the worst contract. Unfortunately for himself and partner, South then engaged in some bad play, and the result was a 900-point penalty.

West opened his top heart. East captured dummy's ten with the jack and returned his top spade. Declarer played the ten; East won and shifted back to hearts. For reasons known only to himself, South conceded both the king and ace of hearts to East, discarding the spade queen instead of ruffing. (Perhaps he feared that East had started with six hearts, but the bidding strongly suggested otherwise.)

East now led his last spade. Winning with the blank ace, South completed a very bad performance. Instead of leading the king and another club and forcing West, he led a low trump. West ducking, East won and returned the suit. West took out still another round of trumps, then led a good spade, and South could make only his trump, for his second trick and one club, for his third and last trick.

Keen Competition

that he observed a gradual improvement in the calibre of the plowing from year to year.

Young Glen Taylor of Strathcona won top honors in the class for boys under 16 years of age. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor. He walked away with his class plowing the straightest furrow, best crown and best finish.

His uncle, Charles Taylor of Upton won the single furrow class for novice plowmen. Norman Matheson of Forest Hill placed second in this class.

Senior gang plow honors went to Douglas MacDonald of Forest Hill as he nosed out Truelove Taylor of Upton. MacDonald plowed the straightest furrow and best crown while Taylor had the best finish.

The opening ceremonies were presided over by Mr. Leslie Hunter of Dundas, president of the Plowing Association. In a brief address he stated that the Association planned to expand each year and that the directors would welcome any suggestions for improvements of the annual Match.

"The Plowing Match is one of the greatest activities you could sponsor in an agricultural community," stated Mr. W. R. Shaw in officially opening the two-day event.

He spoke of the development of the plow as an instrument to turn the sod and reminded his listeners that the plow is the greatest instrument known to man in the work of food production.

Notes Improvement

Mr. Shaw noted the great improvement that had taken place in the quality of exhibits during recent years. He spoke about the the great livestock show, particularly the horse show which he called the best in the Province.

In wishing the directors of the Association every success he expressed the hope that support for the Match in the years ahead would come not only from the people of the Province but also the Government.

Hon. Eugene Cullen, Minister of Industry and Natural Resources wished the Plowing Match every success on behalf of the Provincial Government.

He stated that the high quality work and exhibits shown at the Match were the results of study, discussion and friendly competition throughout the past few years.

He spoke of the facilities provided by the Dominion and Provincial Governments for the betterment of agriculture and urged the farmers to make the utmost use of them. The Minister also congratulated the directors and the exhibitors for their splendid exhibits.

Suggests September Fair

Mr. R. R. Bell, M.L.A., Leader of the Opposition, suggested that the Plowing Match branch out to become a Provincial Agricultural Fair. He stated that this Province needs a truly agricultural fair and that late in September was the appropriate time of year for one to be held.

He promised that he would support the Association in any such effort and that he would be only too glad to exhibit his Shorthorn cattle at such a Fair.

Mr. George Saville, M.L.A., expressed the wish that the Fair would continue to grow. He also spoke of the need for an Agricultural Fair in the true sense of the word. Speaking about a proposed Government grant he stated that he felt every member in the House would support the proposal next year. "The Provincial Plowing Match is always looked upon as something worthy of support," he stated.
