

Trade Campaign In Canada Being Planned By Britain

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA, CP — Britain is mounting a massive trade attack on Canada in the Centennial year of Confederation with major displays and trade promotions in Toronto and Vancouver as well as at Montreal's Expo 67. Sir Henry Lintott, U.K. high commissioner, announced here.

The objective is to slice sharply the British deficit in foreign trade with Canada, which last year amounted to more than two-thirds of Britain's total trade deficit. This year the deficit with Canada may be greater than Britain's total trading deficit, Sir Henry said.

He told a press conference: "The size of our deficit justifies us in making a considerable fuss about it."

In 1967 Britain will have a $9,000,000 pavilion at Expo 67, and will put the biggest displays in its history in the national industrial production show in Toronto early in May, and at the British Columbia international trade fair in Vancouver at mid-May.

In October 1967, a new feature of British trade promotion in Canada will be a full-scale British Week in Toronto, reflected in as many stores and other commercial enterprises as can be recruited, and backed up with a program of British theatre, music, and other cultural events.

Similar British weeks have been held in Australia, Denmark and Italy, but this is the first in Canada.

STARTED LAST YEAR
Britain began its major bid to sell more on the Canadian market last year when trade commissioners from across Canada went home to urge British businessmen to seek out markets here. After 800 British firms were interviewed, more than 300 followed up with specific enquiries and bids in the Canadian market.

ties to the meeting would have welcomed a much longer discussion on other matters which were not touched on.

WEATHER NOTE
After four and a half months we are still giving very high marks to the weatherman for what continues to be an almost ideal performance.

But small gains were actually made in dollar trade last year. Canadian exports to Britain fell by 1 1/2 per cent, making some improvement in the trade figures so that the deficit was reduced by $50,000,000 to just below $600,000,000. The overall deficit in British foreign trade last year was $810,000,000.

Sir Henry said that Canadian implementation of new anti-dumping law exemptions, announced in former Finance Minister Gordon's budget last spring, has been slow. Of 35 to 40 applications for exemption, only three have been approved.

FEDERATION NEWSLETTER
Potato Matters Produce Variety Of Differences
By J. LINCOLN DEWAR
If a week is measured in terms of meetings, this has certainly been a big one in farm circles. Monday saw the meeting of the Co-operative Union, a gathering of hog people sponsored by the Agro Co-op and a very well attended Federation meeting at Vernon River. Wednesday featured the Beef Producers' Rally in Charlottetown and tomorrow night will see another in the series of Federation meetings taking place in O'Leary. There does not seem to be anything to compare with a difference of opinion on potato matters to produce attendance at meetings. The Vernon River gathering was attended by well over 100 persons and there was hardly a dull moment for two and one half hours. On potato matters two resolutions passed seemed to be largely in conflict. First of all a majority supported a resolution agreeing to back up the plant seed legislation. Later on a similar majority supported a resolution to ask the government to change the legislation. Here was certainly a classic example of "If the trumpet speaks with an uncertain sound. . . . The meeting was not, of course devoted exclusively to potato matters as dairy matters and taxation came in for a good share of attention. Our Prince County leaders are reminded of the meeting in O'Leary on Friday evening, no doubt the potato business will be up again and other matters of interest to the audience. Finally a reminder to our dairy people that the Dairymen's Association will be made on Friday, March 25th. This should be a gathering of more than usual interest with the Hon. J. J. Greene as guest speaker. ENVY Island farmers might be pardoned with looking with some envy on forms of encouragement being given their fellows in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Probably before we start getting really jealous we should keep in mind that we do have a certain natural built in advantage here that may even over compensate for some of the assistance programs made available in other provinces. Recently in Nova Scotia the Minister of Agriculture has announced an expansion of the assistance in the purchase of fertilizers for the production of grain and forage. We do not have the details but understand the amount available to the individual farmer will be related to the number of animal units. In New Brunswick quite worthwhile assistance to livestock people is being provided and can go as high as $750 per farmer on the purchase of feed for livestock. Here we have neither of these
