LONDON (Reuters) — Burma fell to the Japanese army in 1942 after a campaign of only five months because Britain was unprepared "in practically every respect to meet an invasion of the country."

This was stated in the second volume, published Thursday, of the official British history of the Second World War.

The book, written by a committee of senior officers, covers the loss of Burma, the retreat into India, the first abortive attempt to recapture it by the Burmese coast, the experiment with long-range penetration groups, plans for a counter-offensive and the buildup of India as a base.

The authors say unpreparedness in the lack of troops and equipment, planes and proper administrative services.

In a detailed description of the British withdrawal across the Sittang River, the authors recall how, "owing to a grievous error," attacks were made by bombers on the retreating Allied columns.

"As a result, vehicles including ambulances full of wounded were ditched or destroyed; mules carrying weapons and wireless sets broke loose and vanished with their loads into the jungle; casualties were numerous; the march was delayed . . . and morale suffered."

On the credit side, there was the Allied victory in the air during the defence of Rangoon. "The heavy loss inflicted on the Japanese air force . . . was more than it could face equanimously."

In a chapter on the Japanese operation behind the Chinese lines in 1943, the authors say that it had no strategic value but

New Geotown Warehouse Slated To Open On Friday

GEORGETOWN — John A. MacDonald, M.P. for Kings, has announced the official opening of the new warehouse in Georgetown this evening.

Although the plumbing contractor, Douglas Bros. and Jones do not expect to complete work until November 15th and the truck has yet to be laid by the C.N.R., the warehouse was made available the first of this week.

The Diamond Construction Co. completed its contract far ahead of the scheduled date of completion which was September, 1958. An early start this spring and quick work by contractors, made the building available for farmers at the usual opening date for all deliveries.

"Ever since the project was started last summer we have been keeping the pressure on the contractors to have the warehouse ready for this fall", Mr. MacDonald stated. "They have cooperated 100 per cent."

The warehouse is constructed on a completely new wharf with sheet piling on the outer end and cement walls on the approaches. It will be a great improvement over the old wharf and warehouse, providing easier loading facilities for the farmers and shippers of that area, and adding greatly to the importance of the splendid natural harbour.

AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

SHEEP PROBLEMS

Last week a National committee appointed by the Dominion Government and charged with the responsibility of studying the problems and development of the sheep industry visited Charlottetown. Meeting with the committee were the directors of the Sheep Breeders Association, the Federation of Agriculture, and Committee members questioned the shepherds carefully with respect to the cost of producing lambs and what their idea of fair returns were. Also gone into was the possibility of producing better quality lambs through improved crossbreeding. The Federation of Agriculture recommended that the committee should study (a) The effect of drover and packer buying practices on lamb production and quality, (b) The probable effect in encouraging lamb production if rail grading were used to a greater extent, (c) Consumer complaints on the eating quality of lamb.

With respect to the idea advanced that a levy might be made per pound of wool to promote lamb, it was suggested that care should be taken to see that it was not used to advertise New Zealand lamb and that control of funds and that of control of those who contributed the money—the producers. It was further suggested that organized marketing seems to be doing a good job with wool and might also improve the situation with respect to lambs.

The Federation recommended that the Federation quality premium be paid on A-1 and B-1 lambs as means of encouraging improved quality.

COMMUNITY PASTURES

The province of Nova Scotia has an effort to encourage livestock production and compensate for the limited pasturage available on small farms is developing a number of community pastures where any farmer may place his cattle or sheep for the grazing season at so much per animal. For the coming season in order to encourage wider use of these pastures it is planned to offer assistance to wards the trucking of animals which must be moved for a distance greater than so many miles. This policy will in effect caused a change in Japanese military thinking.

SPECIAL FORCE

The Chindits—named after a Burmese mythological beast—were a special long-range penetration force set up in July, 1942. "In the circumstances in which it was launched, the operation had no strategic value from the British point of view and the military damage and casualties inflicted on the Japanese were small compared with the effort involved," the authors say.

But the Chindits forced the Japanese to reassess the capabilities and fighting efficiency of the British Indian troops.

The Japanese "thereupon decided that, in the circumstances, an offensive-defensive policy was sounder and more economic than a purely defensive one; a decision which was eventually to lead them to disaster."

Little Theatre Presentations Attended By Large Crowd

An exceptionally large crowd gathered last evening to witness one-act plays presented by the Charlottetown Little Theatre.

The well-balanced program was an example of competent direction and acting and fine cooperation on the part of backstage assistants and other workers.

The second of the three plays, which is "The Way to Boston," a tale of suspense which starts on a rainy night.

The setting of the play, which is in the living room of Joan Harvey's New England farmhouse on a rainy night.

The story tells of a middle-aged couple who believe in superstitions. The couple's only child is in the hospital undergoing a serious operation and they are in a state of great anxiety.

John Harvey, (played by Lloyd Harvey and his wife, Marina (Elizabeth Holl)), is the husband and his wife, Marina (Elizabeth Holl), is the wife. Myrtle (Myrtle Downey) is the daughter and her husband, Spike (Peter Davies), is the son-in-law. The play is directed by A. G. (Dick) Turpin.

The last play "Franklin and Myrtle" tells the story of a bride party given for the benefit of the Boss' wife a few days after Christmas.

Myrtle Downey (Margaret Doliver) is the bride, and she is to be the perfect hostess in order that her husband would be selected as manager of a new branch office the company is opening.

Things start to go wrong when one of the bride prizes does not arrive in time for the party. Mrs. Downey decides to use a gaily colored incense burner as a substitute for the missing item.

In the middle of the party the maid quits, but not before she tells that the silverware was borrowed and Mrs. Downey intended to send the maid's uniform back to the store at the end of the party.

When the time came to give out the prizes, a neighbor, Mrs. Tommy Trippett, (Michele Gilles), the type of person who only adds to the confusion, leaves the room to get the gifts.

While she is away the boss' wife tells of the horrible prize she once received—an incense burner, which she finally sold at a white elephant sale.

After the incident touches on a very hectic day Mrs. Trippett, is of the opinion that the fourth prize should go to the person with the highest score and the boss' wife Mrs. Thornton K. Powers, (Jean Curley) ends up by getting the incense burner.

Others included in the cast of characters were: Mrs. Growley (Barbara Rogers), Kate Russell (Allie MacLeod). The play was directed by Margaret Collings. Script by Nellie Hughes.
