Half U. S. Medium Bomber Fleet Swift Jet Craft

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Air Force, racing against the growth of Russian airpower, now has at least half its fleet of strategic medium bombers composed of swift, high altitude jet craft. And by the end of the year the last of the Second World War design conventional engine B-29 and

B-50 bombers may be gone from the medium wings, replaced by the atom bomb toting Boeing B-47 jets.

These developments apparently figured in the recent decision to rely less on manpower and more on airpower to maintain the U.S. military position in the Far East.

In 1953, deliveries of all types of military planes from the aircraft industry totalled about 12,000. Accelerated deliveries coupled with crew training during recent months, it was learned today, have enabled the strategic air command to raise to between 8 and 10 the number of medium bomber wings equipped with B-47s. A wing of that type normally contains 45 planes.

Rapid Red Increase

The rapid increase in the Soviet Union's operating air fleet of jet and rocket-powered interceptors has made more urgent the conversion of the U.S. strategic fleet from the slow 400 miles an hour piston-engined bombers to the high speed over 600 miles an hour jet planes.

For long range heavy bombardment the air force at present has about four wings, 30 planes each, of Convair B-36 bombers. These huge planes can carry 40 tons of bombs of any kind, including hydrogen weapons, at moderate ranges and operate over a radius of more than 5,000 miles with lesser loads. Their speed has been stepped up to above 435 miles by adding four jet engines to the six piston engines which give the bomber its ultra-long distance.

B-52 Delivery Soon

Delivery of the first production items of the Boeing B-52 heavy, all-jet bomber is expected to start next fall. That plane, while lacking the range of the piston-engined B-36, flies faster than even the medium B-47. Presumably it was with these factors in mind that President Eisenhower spoke last week of "our growing national air power," which he said possesses greater mobility and striking power than ever before.

Parchment diplomas awarded at commencements cost U. S. high schools and colleges more than a million dollars annually.

INDO CASUALTIES

PARIS, (AP)—Casualties among Frenchmen in the seven-year-long war in Indo-China have averaged about 2,000 killed or missing a year, figures from the ministry for overseas territories showed Monday. In the seven years, 13,681 Frenchmen have been killed or are missing. Other casualties: 21,589 native troops killed or missing, 10,118 Africans, and 6,907 foreign legionnaires.
