Racy Literature.

Why is a hen immortal? Because her sun (son) never sets!

What goes most against a farmer's grain? His mowing machine.

SHOPKEEPERS' MOTTO. — Never be ashamed to put up your own shutters.

A SENTENCE IN THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS.—If you wish for "heart's ease," never look to "marry gold."

MUSIC AND MATRIMONY.—"Music is the food of love;" but it takes something more substantial for matrimony.

A Yankee doctor has recently got up a remedy for hard times. It consists of ten hours labor well worked in.

Josh Billings says: "If I was in the habit of swearing, I wouldn't hesitate to cuss a bed-bug right to his face."

Everything on this earth is bought and sold except air and water, and they would be too, had not a kind Providence made the supply too great for the demand.

DECIMALS ON DECK. — Irish Mate: 'How many iv ye down there?' Voice from the Hole: "Three, sor!" Mate: "Thin half iv ye come up here immadiately!" —Punch.

Cicero made the following wise remarks:—"As I approve of the youth that has something of the old man in him, so am I pleased with the old man who has something of the youth!"

The first time little Billy S. noticed thunder, he said, "Mother they are scouring up in heaven." His mother said. "How do you know, my child?" He replied, "I hear 'em moving the chairs about."

"What do you know of the character of this man?" was asked a witness on the stand at the court room the other day. "What do I know of his character? I know it to be unbleachable!" replied he, with emphasis.

First Business Man—"Just had a very heavy loss, eh? Sorry to hear it. How was it?" Second ditto—"Why, I insured my mother-in-law's life for ten thousand —sent her to Hempstead, Long Island, by rail—and hang me if she hasn't come back safe!"

A Gent, while being measured for a pair of boots, observed, "Make them cover the calf." "Heaven!" exclaimed the astounded artist, surveying his customer from head to foot, "I have not leather enough."

A Miserly old farmer, who had lost one of his best hands in the midst of haymaking, remarked to the sexton as he was filling up the poor fellow's grave, "It's a sad thing to lose a good mower at a time like this; but after all, poor Tom was a dreadful great eater."

A gentleman who had amassed a competance, was recently asked by a friend the secret of his success. "I have accumulated," said he, "one-half of my property by strictly attending to my own business, and the remainder by letting other people's alone."

A youny man named Powell, while mocking a deaf and dumb person on the oars between Bellville and Galloway's, Tenn., a few days ago, was suddenly struck totally deaf and dumb. He returned to Bellville, and wrote as follows: "God has sent this awful punishment upon me to teach man never to mock at the infirmities of his fellow men."

HONESTY.—There is no man, but for his own interest, hath an obligation to be honest. There may be sometimes temptations to be otherwise, but all cards cast up, he shall find it the greatest ease, the highest profit, the best pleasure, the most safety, and the noblest fame, to lay a hold of the horns of this altar, which in all assays can in himself protect him.

RATS AND MICE.—A recent writer says that cotton saturated with chloroform and then stuffed in the holes of rats and mice, will prevent their reappearance in a house. Tar is said to be a capital thing to pour into their holes, and might be largely used in conjunction with broken bottles and cement for filling up the places they have undermined and infest. In the bottles and cement alone not much faith is to be put ANGER.—As a preventive of anger, banish all tale-bearers and slanderers from you conversation, for it is these that blow the devil's bellows to rouse up the flames of rage and fury, by first abusing your ears, and then your credulity, and after that steal away your patience, and all this perhaps for a lie. To prevent anger, be not too inquisitive into affairs of others, or what people says of yourself, or into the mistakes of your friends, for this is going out to gather sticks to kindle a fire to burn your own house.— Old Divine.

MYSTERIOUS PROFESSION. — "Now, Tom," said a printer of a country newspaper, in giving directions to his apprentice, "Put the 'foreign leaders' into the galleys, and lock 'em up; distribute 'the army in the East,' put 'Lord Broughan' in the rack, and take up a line and finish the 'British Ministers;' make the 'Prince of Wales' run on with 'Princess Alice,' move the 'Kerry Hunt' out of the chase, get your stick and finish the 'horrid murder' that I began last night, wash your hands, and come in to dinner; and then see that all the pie's cleared up, and head a column of military.

THE LAST CHICKEN GONE.—When the conference met at Hillsborough, a while ago, on the last day of the session a lad whose dad entertained some half a dozen preachers, entered the room where the ministers were seated, in a terrible state of excitement.

"What's the matter, Isaac?" asked one, "you seem excited."

"Excited! I ain't; I'm mad all over."

"What are you mad about, Isaac? Don't you know it's wrong to suffer yourself to become angered?"

"Wrong or no wrong, it's enough to make anybody mad but a preacher. Here's every chicken on the place eat up, except the old rooster, and just now he happened to see you fellows and sang out: 'And must this feeble body [illegible]e,' and dropped over stone dead."

The Large and increasing sale of these

We were satisfied that they would be appreciated here as elsewhere, and that the reality of the advantages offered to wearers of our beautiful lenses, viz.: the ease and comfort, the assured and readily ascertained improvement of the sight, and the brilliant assistance they give in all cases, were in themselves so apparent on trial, that the result could not be otherwise than it has, in the almost general adoption of our Celebrated Perfected spectacles by the residents of this locality.

With a full knowledge of the value of the assertion, we claim that they are the most perfect optical aids ever manufactured. To those needing Spectacles, we afford at all times an opportunity of procuring the best and most desirable.
