MUNICIPAL REFORM!

The Morning Guardian.

FEBRUARY 9, 1891.

Municipal Reform.

We commend to the attention of the citizens of Charlottetown, the following extracts from a thoughtful article, on the Government of American cities, by Mr. White, Ex-President of Connell University, and formerly United States Minister at Berlin, contributed by him to the December number of the Forum. What he says of the Government of American cities may with slight exceptions be applied to Charlottetown.

"Without the slightest exaggeration we may assert that, with very few exceptions, the city governments of the United States are the worst in Christendom—the most expensive, the most inefficient, and the most corrupt. Everywhere are wretched wharves, foul docks, inadequate streets, and inefficient systems of sewerage, paving and lighting.

"The city halls of the larger towns are the acknowledged centres of the vilest corruption. As a rule, the men who sit in the councils of our larger cities, dispensing comfort or discomfort, justice or injustice, beauty or deformity, health or disease, to this and to future generations, are men few of whom have gained their positions by fitness or by public service; many have gained them by scoundrelism, some by crime.

"In New York all the arrangements for guarding the public health, not only of the city, but of the vast States between which and the whole outer world it is the gateway, were entrusted, not merely to men without any of the special knowledge required in the discharge of their duties, but frequently to men so illiterate that they were shut out from the ordinary avenues to such knowledge. From one end to the other was corruption and inefficiency. The despotism of bosses seems on the increase; the abject servility of the great mass of the citizens seems also on the increase. . . .

"On the subject of remedy he says: As regards the election of the mayor and common council, I would elect the mayor by the votes of the majority of all the citizens, as at present; I would elect the common council by a majority of all the votes of all the citizens; but instead of electing its members from the wards as at present—so that wards largely controlled by thieves and robbers can send thieves and robbers, and so that man who can carry their ward can control the city—I would elect the board of aldermen on a general ticket, just as the mayor is elected now, thus requiring candidates for the board to have a city reputation. In addition to this, in consideration of the fact that the city is a corporation, I would have those owning property in it properly recognized. I would leave to them and to them alone, the election of a board of control, without whose permission no franchise should be granted and no expenditure should be made. This should be the rule, and to this rule I am inclined to make one exception: I would allow the votes of the board of control, as regards expenditures for primary education, to be overridden by a two-thirds majority of the board of aldermen.

"As to the public at large, what is most needed in regard to municipal affairs, as in regard to public affairs generally, is the quiet, steady revolution of a knowlege of truth and of proper action in view of it. The truth as regards city government, is simply the truth that municipal affairs are not political, that political parties as such have nothing to do with cities; that the men who import political considerations into municipal management are to be opposed. This being the case, the adoption of some such system as that which I have sketched would seem likely to prove fruitful of good." These remedies are as much needed in Charlottetown as in New York and if applied would result in a marked improvement in the character of our city government.

The Cattle Commission.

Mr William Smith, deputy minister of fisheries, speaking on the cattle commission said he thought it would result in a measure being introduced into Parliament subjecting all shipments of cattle to Government inspection. He said the evidence showed that as a whole the cattle were well treated, especially in comparison with those shipped from the States. He did not know what Mr. Primsoll's views of the trade were now, but hoped he would not press his measure in the Imperial House, as it would most seriously affect the Maritime provinces.

Sam Jones Caned in Texas.

PALESTINE, Tex., February 3.—At a meeting here last fall Rev. Sam W. Jones spoke of Mayor J. J. Ward's official and private character before a large attendance in the severest terms. The mayor was then absent from the city. Jones was here last night and as he was about to take a train this morning the mayor appeared and caned him. In the struggle the cane changed hands and the mayor received several blows. Heavy bruises were inflicted and both bled profusely. Jones soon left town on the train. Ward was arrested and placed under bonds for aggravated assault and for carrying a pistol. He declares he had no intention of doing anything further than caning Jones.

A meeting of citizens was held to-night and the act of Mayor Ward denounced.

OUR DAILY.

Its Success Assured

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE.

What Others Say of It.

We have refrained, hitherto, from speaking of the gratifying success which is attending the issue of the MORNING GUARDIAN. Although hampered by some unexpected disadvantages in the mechanical department—disadvantages which, we trust, are now largely overcome until new machinery is obtainable, but which dimmed the brightness of the paper on several occasions—the GUARDIAN has been warmly received by the public, and today, though only a fortnight old, it stands in a position unprecedented in daily journalism, inasmuch as it has an assured revenue, by subscription and advertising sufficient to meet all expenses, and to establish its existence beyond the shadow of a doubt.

THE WHEREFORE OF IT.

This success is largely due to the fact that the GUARDIAN is a morning paper. Most men prefer to have their paper before them while they sip their morning coffee or Bohea.

The first thing they want in the morning, while the mind is fresh, is to hear of what happened the night before. There is great satisfaction, you know, when, on your way to the office, a man comes up to tell some important piece of news, and you can say, "Why, I read it all in the morning paper."

Then, too, most people would rather get the news in the morning, because when the night time comes, they are tired of the world and its jargon and events, and want to forget the daily toils and worries of every day life in the domestic circle.

Of course there are many who have no time in the morning to read—who have to snatch a bit of breakfast, often by lamplight, and hurry away to the workshop or the stores. But then they have a quiet hour at noon, and a large number of our readers, so situated, tell us they would far sooner have the paper at that time than in the evening.

It is in the country, however, where the MORNING GUARDIAN has the advantage over its evening contemporaries. Every morning, fresh from the press, it is found in the railway trains leaving the city. By noon it is in nearly every town and village in the Province.

WHAT WE PROPOSE.

Although the GUARDIAN has given such satisfaction already, our readers must not imagine that we are satisfied. We have many improvements in view. In the first place, now that success is assured, we expect to move as soon as possible to more suitable rooms, with offices on the ground floor, heated by steam, and lighted by electricity. It is also intended to secure a new and improved printing press which will be run by steam. At the same time a new dress of type will be imported. Other improvements may be expected from time to time and it will be seen that the MORNING GUARDIAN has started on a career of prosperity which is highly gratifying

WHAT OTHERS SAY OF US.

Many kind remarks have been written and said about the MORNING GUARDIAN. Letters from all parts have come in, in which the writers declare that we have the best paper in the country. Here are some samples from the press:—

Halifax Chronicle.

Charlottetown has now a third daily paper—the MORNING GUARDIAN It advocates Prohibition, The Tunnel, Equal Rights, Country before Party, Municipal Reform. The early numbers show editorial vigor and a good news department. Mr. B. D Higgs is editor and manager.

New Glasgow Vindicator.

The Charlottetown DAILY GUARDIAN, the first number of which has just come to hand, has for its motto: Probibition, Equal Rights, The Tunnel, Country before Party, Municipal reform. . . . THE DAILY GUARDIAN will find a field of usefulness and no doubt be a power for good. It is neway and bright. We wish it success.

Halifax Herald.

THE MORNING GUARDIAN it the name of Charlottetown's new daily. It is edited by B. D. Higgs. Three daily papers for a town with a population of only 12,000, is two too many. But where the competition is so keen, if any one can make a paper a success, Mr. Higgs is the man.

St. John Globe.

There have been two daily papers in Charlottetown, but a third is now added —THE MORNING GUARDIAN. It advocates Prohibition, The Tunnel, Equal Rights, Country before Party, Municipal Reform. The early numbers show editorial vigor, and a good news department. Mr. B. D. Higgs is editor and manager.

Truro Guardian.

We have received the first copy of THE MORNING GUARDIAN, a new daily published at Charlottetown, edited by Mr. B. D. Higgs. It is ably conducted and we wish it success.

THE steamer Halifax has been chartered in Boston to take an excursion party of 150 persons to Jamaica. She will leave on the 28th inst. The sum charged the Bostonians for the round trip and board will be from $90 to $115, according to the accommodation desired. Should any parties desire to go from here on the excursion arrangements could probably be made.

A TRAIN was backing down to the offices on the Pt. du Chene wharf Wednesday, when at the head of the wharf, owing to some snow and ice that had formed on the rails, the second-class car left the track, the tail end going over the wharf, and when unshackled from the other car it topped over and now lies on its side alongside the wharf, which is about three or four feet above the sand at this point. The trucks remain on the wharf. Nothing is broken and no one hurt, although there were several persons on the car at the time The train hands and others immediately extinguished the stove fires in the car.

The City's Sanitary Condition.

As the City Council holds its regular monthly meeting to-night we take the opportunity to again remind it of the necessity of looking after the sanitary condition of this city. The standing offer of the local government to bear half the cost of employing a competent engineer to report upon the system best suited to the city should be accepted at once. Whether sewage matter should be discharged into the three tides or utilized for farming purposes as suggested by the City Health Officer, Dr. Johnson, is a matter which should be determined as soon as possible, and as there is no expert in our midst to settle the question, some such man as Colonel Waring should be employed.

To the wisdom of such a course our system of water works stands as a permanent monument. There can be no doubt that some system of sewerage is needed, and as Dr. McLeod says, the best is the cheapest. Here we must take occasion to correct a statement which the doctor was reported to have made, "that no sewerage was worse than a defective system." What he stated was that a bad system is worse than none at all. The experience however of all modern cities which are not cursed like Halifax with an old and ill devised system of drainage is that the money expended upon a proper system is money in every instance ten-fold saved. If our corporation cannot undertake the whole work in one season it is none the less desirable that a complete plan should be drawn up from the start and followed out as quickly as possible. Now is the time for civic, local and federal governments to employ a competent man to give the city the very best plan he can with an accurate idea of the cost of the undertaking.

Ought the Fair Sex to Propose.

The English are now discussing in profound seriousness the question: "Is woman to woo?"—free translation: Should a woman ask the hand of a man in marriage? To a journal conducted by woman or woman belongs the honor of having first proposed this unexpected question, and now the press of both sexes, as we must say henceforth, is discussing the problem. There is only one preoccupation, one subject of controversy—"Is woman to woo?" To sum the matter up, the fatality of the age has insisted upon placing this question at the head of the order of the day. Since the English women have become journalists, travelling guides, doctors in letters and science and claim the privilege of voting and riding horses astride, a single step remains between them and the right of initative in the matter of conjugal union. The obligation to wait countless years for a husband must necessarily appear to them as one of those intolerable conditions of inferiority which must be stricken from the social code. Henceforth let men do the waiting. Such is the conclusion of the majority of ladies consulted by Woman and its contemporaries.

Only a few of the more modest are protesting. They cannot consent to take the offensive in that war in which they have always played the part of besieged garrisons. Other little queens by grace or by beauty ask themselves what will become of their royalty if, from solicited idols, they come down to the position of solicitors (soliciteuses), shaking under masculine noses the encensior whose perfume up to the present they breathed in dignity. But the majority, the great majority, are for the introversion of the roles, for revolution. They only await the signal to charge upon the bachelors, and they answer all objections with the remark that many men are timid and need the encouragement of outstretched hands; and that notwithstanding all the prejudices, and all the routine of centuries, the spectacle of the virgin who dares where the man dares not is delightful. Recollect the discreet advances of the sauve Desdemona to the bear, Othello, or read, rather, the "Aobe Contantin."—Exch.

A Remarkable Incident.

The defeat of Signor Crispi was due to his attempt to increase the taxation. The increase, he said, was necessary if Italy was to meet her obligations and to hold her own in Europe. A very remarkable incident occurred in the progress of the debate and which led up to the catastrophe. In the speech defending the budget Signor Crispi said that the taxes were necessary to prevent Italy falling again "to the servile condition she was in as regards foreign powers in 1874" Some Conservatives who are now members of the Chamber of Deputies, and who were ministers in 1874, vigorously resented this, and there was quite an uproar over it; in fact a tremendous war of words. At last the Minister of Public Works of Crispi's government, who was in the administration of 1874, got up and left his seat and went over to the other side of the Chamber amid thunders of applause from the opposition. Crispi turned deadly pale. He tried in vain to get a hearing to explain his words. The storm politically swept him off his feet; and the budget was rejected.

Chicago Half a Century Ago.

And here is a portrait of Chicago in 1839:—One night a light is espied in the distance, then another, and then many more dance and are reflected in the water. It is to late to go ashore, so we drop anchor. At sunrise we are all on deck, and there in the morning light stands the little town of Chicago, containing 2,000 inhabitants. Off we go ashore and walk through the busy little town—busy even then—people hurrying to and fro, frame buildings going up, board sidewalks going down, new hotels, new churches, new theatre, everything new. Saw and hammer—saw, saw, bang, bang—look out for the drays!—brigot and muddy streets—gaudy coloured calicoes—blue and red flannels and striped ticking hanging outside of the dry goods stores—bar-rooms, real estate offices—attorneys-at-law—oceans of them."—Jefferson's Autobiography.

A Needle in Her Heart.

Sarah Cummings, a young woman aged 21 years, secured a position as domestic at Mr. Reid's, Victoria rd. Six months after entering the house she complained of feeling unwell. She experienced a peculiar sensation in her side which the doctors here could not account for. Last week she decided to go to her home at Guysborough. Yesterday Mr. Reid received a telegram announcing the girl's death A post mortem revealed the fact that her death was caused by a needle entering the girl's heart. The needle, (a small one) it is supposed, had been swallowed by the girl in food Miss Cummings was a daughter of David Cummings, formerly of Lunenburg. Her parents died while she was very young. After their death Miss Cummings lived with a family named Eisenhaur at Guysborough.
