

Dutchmen No Pushovers In Fifth Game Tonight

KITCHENER, (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, holding a 3-1 stranglehold on the best-of-seven Allan Cup semi-final series against Moncton Hawks, figure Hawks will be anything but pushovers when they meet in the fifth engagement tonight.

Kitchener coach Bobby Bauer is a fellow who thinks the Hawks will be tough to stop, particularly after their 6-0 victory over Dutchmen here last Tuesday.

Bauer said Dutchmen let down in the fourth game. He felt they should have had a big edge in the second period when they outshot Hawks 27-8 but were outscored 1-0.

"They weren't skating, either," Bauer said.

Coach Dugger McNeil of Moncton would make no predictions on tonight's game.

"We'll play them one at a time."

Cockell Arrives In New York

NEW YORK, (AP)—He's no Superman. He's got two arms and two legs just like I have. I hope to win the title otherwise I never would have come here.

That's the way England's Don Cockell sized up his coming title fight with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano in San Francisco May 16.

The pudgy, 217-pound British heavyweight boss arrived Tuesday from England on the Queen Mary.

"Marciano is a great champion and he behaves like a champion," said the hog farmer from Horem, Sussex. "If I should win, I only hope I can conduct myself like he does."

Bobo Olson Wins Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Middleweight champion Bobo Olson, throwing lightning-like punches with both hands, floored Joey Maxim twice Wednesday night and went on to pound out a unanimous verdict over the former light heavyweight king in their nationally televised 10-rounder.

Judge Jack Downey scored 60-50, Judge John Basanelli had it 62-47, and referee Ray Flores 50 1/2-50 1/2.

A crowd estimated at 15,000 jammed the Cow Palace for the non-title heavyweight fight.

Olson weighed 169; Maxim 175.

Phillies' Dodgers' Yanks And Tigers Win; Robin Roberts Two Outs From No-Hitter

Robin Roberts, the meticulous righthander of Philadelphia Phillies, began his campaign for a sixth straight 20-victory season Wednesday by coming within two outs of hurling what would have been only the second opening day no-hitter in major league history.

The Phillis' ace had frustrated the world champion New York Giants for 8 1/3 innings of a dreary, rain-threatened afternoon. Then Alvin Dark clipped him for the hit that blocked Robin's bid for the record book and also blew up his shutout. Two more hits followed and Roberts had to settle for a 4-2 victory.

Cleveland's Bobby Feller is the only man to pitch a no-hitter on opening day, shacking Chicago White Sox 1-0 April 16, 1940.

The game at Philadelphia was the stand-out by far on a skimpy day of baseball. Only three other games were played.

In the other National League game, Brooklyn's Carl Erskine finally got himself an opening day victory by beating Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 at Ebbets Field.

The two American League games went to New York Yankees, 19-1 over Washington Senators, and Detroit Tigers, 10-2 over Kansas City Athletics. Rain washed out Boston's game at Baltimore.

Dark's big single off Roberts came with one out and a man on base via an error in the ninth with the Phillis leading 4-0. Robin spun two strikes past Dark, but his third pitch was lashed to right by the Giants' captain.

Willie Mays, hitless all day, fanned for the second out and Roberts still was in position to claim his third one-hitter if not his first no-hitter. But Monte Irvin doubled both runners home and Hank Thompson followed with a single.

Roberts ended the game by getting Don Mueller on a fly. Roberts walked but two and struck out four.

The Phillis scored their runs off starter Johnny Antonelli, 21-7 last season. In the fifth and Marv Grismond in the sixth.

HURLS 2-HITTER

The Yankees' Whitey Ford pitched himself a two-hitter in New York's big opener against the Senators while driving in four runs on three singles in a 16-inning game.

Mary McDermott was the Washington starter, but wound up as just one of four ineffective pitchers. Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and Bill Skowron homered for the Yanks. Ford walked five and fanned eight.

A five-run seventh inning gave the Brooks their success. Junior Gilliam opened the frame with a home run that broke a 1-1 tie. Erskine, who had pitched three previous openers without a victory, went all the way, losing his shut-out in the seventh on a walk and two singles.

Detroit also had a winning combination of good pitching and timely hitting. With Steve Gromek scattering eight hits and walking none, the Tigers broke loose for four runs in the third and five in the sixth. Harvey Kuenn, who also doubled, led off the third with a fly. Roberto ended the game by getting Don Mueller on a fly. Roberts walked but two and struck out four.

The Phillis scored their runs off

"Play Ball," the familiar cry of the umpire, has already echoed its eager aires, out over the diamonds of many of the spacious parks in both the American and National Baseball Leagues to remind us that spring is here and it is time to replace the hickory and bamboo which we find in our favorite corner in the attic with our much worn hockey sticks, skates and skis. Generally it is time for the change, however, in certain areas the suggestion can be taken as a bit premature. In the States the hickory is presently getting its regular work-outs while in most of Canada the mud keeps the baseballers off the fields for several weeks after the big leaguers start swinging. The appearance of the bamboo is due in most all sections very soon, while only in mountainous zones will the skis be used again this season.

In rare metropolitan spots such as Detroit, the baseball bat, the hockey stick and skates are commonplace, with both sharing equal prominence. In Detroit this afternoon, the home-town Tigers will make their first home appearance since the play-offs started. Line-mates Red Lindsay and Gordie Howe have both surpassed the old record of individual scoring in the Stanley Cup play-offs of former years. Both have 19 points—one better than the old mark of 18 which is held by Toe Blake since the 1943-44 season against the Maple Leafs and the Black Hawks, in that same season, the line of Elmer Lach, Toe Blake and Rocket Richard established a record of 48 points for one line to collect. The Wings line of Howe, Lindsay and Rebell presently holds a new record of 50 points, which they collected in the current play-offs.

In Allan Cup competition, a pair of games will be played tonight, along with a pair in the Memorial Cup class. In the Eastern Allan Cup finals, the Moncton Hawks will attempt to stay in the running as they play the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in Kitchener. The Monctonians, with their backs against the wall, jumped to the attack Tuesday and backed by the sensational goal-tending of Nick Pidsodny took a 6-0 win—their first of the series. The Dutchies lead the seven game set 3-1. In the Western division, the Vernon Canadians from British Columbia will also attempt to stay in the running as they battle the Fort William Beavers. The Beavers took the first three games, but presently find themselves heading the Western team by only one game. In Memorial Cup Eastern-play, the Toronto Marlboros will try to take their series with a win in Quebec where they are hosts of the Frontenacs. Winnipeg Monarchs play Regina in the Western finals.

Detroit Strong Favorites To Take Cup On Home Ice

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT, (AP)—The advantage of home ice, where they haven't lost in almost four months, makes Detroit Red Wings strong favorites to defeat Montreal Canadiens Thursday in the seventh and deciding game for the Stanley Cup.

Wings haven't lost in Olympia Stadium since Dec. 19—a stretch of 23 games. They have won 18 games at home, tied five others.

Canadiens were the last team to beat Red Wings on their home rink, running up a 5-0 score six days before Christmas.

"HOMER" SERIES

Since then, however, Red Wings have whipped the Montreals six straight times on Olympia ice—three during the regular season and three during the playoffs.

The most significant victory was the 6-0 drubbing the Wings gave the Canadiens in the season's final. That not only clinched the Wings' seventh straight National Hockey League title, but also gave them the edge of playing the seventh game of the playoffs at home—quite an edge.

This has been a "homer" series, each team winning three games on its own ice.

Canadiens forced the series to the limit by whipping Detroit 6-3 Tuesday in Montreal.

NOT NEW FOR WINGS

Montreal and Detroit also went seven full games to decide the title last season, with Red Wings winning the crown on little Tony Leswick's dramatic goal in a "sudden death" overtime period. "Sudden death" championship games are nothing new to Detroit.

HAPPY HUNTING GROUND

OTTAWA (CP)—Saskatchewan's Prince Albert national park is overcrowded with an estimated 15,000 beaver and Indians in the area will be permitted to trap 10,000 of them, the northern affairs department announced Wednesday.

The department said the fur harvest from the park beaver, which ordinarily are protected, will be a welcome windfall to local Indians.

Water is still flowing through some of the aqueducts built by the ancient Romans.

Tonight marks the sixth time in the history of the National Hockey League that the Canadiens and the Red Wings have gone the maximum number of games in the Stanley Cup finals. On all five previous occasions, the Red Wings took the Cup in the final contest. As most fans remember, the Wings were forced into over-time in the final game by the Hab last year, as they also were in several of earlier games in that series. This year, however, the pace has been much faster, produced by the wide-open style of play, and in none of the six games has the scores caused the playing of an over-time session. In three games the winning margin has been two goals, in one three, in another four, and in still another six.

Tonight's game will have a jammed crowd at the Olympia Stadium, thousands watching through the medium of television and many more listening to the broadcast on the radio. The Canadiens will go into the game tonight with a line-up similar to the one which walloped the Wings 6-3 in the Montreal Forum Tuesday night. Coach Jim Skinner of the Wings, however, isn't content to stand pat with his present group. He has ordered the two top scorers of the professional Western Hockey League to fly into the big city, ready for action in tonight's battle. Both men come from Bud Poile's Edmonton Flyers—a high, star-pro-

Strait Swim Is Postponed

VICTORIA (CP)—An unexpected wind shift late Wednesday forced 29-year-old Bert Thomas of Tacoma, Wash., to postpone his attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca between here and Port Angeles, Wash.

Swim officials announced Thomas, who planned to set out across the chilling 45-degree waters late Wednesday night, has put off his try until Thursday night.

Thomas now has one more chance to make his attempt. If the weather continues bad Thursday—and the indications were that it would—and he still cannot swim, there will be no favorable tides for about six weeks.

Experts here believe it is doubtful another attempt can be made after Thursday until summer.

Survey Shows Athletes Grow Fat On Retirement

By JIM BASTABLE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, (CP)—Athletes of today spend the rest of their lives going to pot. The blubber takes over from muscle after retirement from competition.

There are exceptions, of course, but Sports College has found that the lean, well-conditioned athlete is headed for a life of gaining weight unless he sticks to some kind of a diet.

Sports College, a Toronto organization which seeks to raise fitness and sports efficiency standards in Canada, polled 1,494 athletes and matched their weight figures against a non-athletic group of 199 persons. Its findings are enough to drive many men from the dinner table.

FOOTBALLERS GAIN

For instance, football players are more prone to gain weight after retirement than any other athlete. They put on an average of 31 pounds. Swimmers gain an average of 27 pounds. Hockey players put on an average of 23.

The study was made in order to establish the actual pattern of weight change in athletes after retiring from competition. And if they do gain weight; how much and what are the causes.

Its conclusion:

"Athletes become fat on retirement due to the fact that they sustain the appetite they developed during training days and use up far fewer calories from physical activity than they did previously. When their metabolism slows down due to a decrease in activity and also the general aging process, weight begins to pile up faster and faster."

MIXED REACTION

Mr. White's comments brought mixed reaction from old-time athletes.

Dr. Smirle Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario and the original Big Train of Canadian football, said that at 235 pounds he was not much over his playing weight and that he "feels fine."

There were plenty who agreed athletes go fat. One was Bunny Wardworth, great Ottawa Rough Rider lineman of the '30s.

"I weigh 300 now," Bunny says. "My playing weight was around 260 to 275. At one time I got up to 340 and then went on a diet. "Look at Clary Burt, who played football with me at Ottawa. He went about 230 then but now weighs 400. But Clary's doctor says he's in perfect health even with that weight."

The survey took in only athletes who played for at least six years.

HOW IT INCREASES

Here are a few figures:

Average weight during competition: 169 pounds.

Average weight one to 27 years after retiring: 194 pounds.

Percentage of those showing more than five pounds increase: 92.

Percentage showing more than 10-pound increase: 84.

Percentage showing more than 20-pound increase: 61.

Percentage showing more than 30-pound increase: 39.

The weight increases generally began soon after retirement. The greatest increases were reported around the 35-year age level.

NON-ATHLETES

In the non-athletic group the average weight at 24 years was 156 pounds. Average weight nine to 33 years later was 169 pounds. The group claimed no regular exercise.

The difference in average weight changes was: athlete 25 pounds; non-athlete 16 pounds.

Male athletes, it was found, gain more weight than their female counterparts. A survey of women athletes disclosed only an average gain of six pounds.

"Athletes should, on retirement, start eating to their requirements, not their past needs," the report said.
