NOTES BY THE WAY

The lost chord of the concert of nations seems to be accord—Toronto Star. Nothing in the news rouses the average man to quite such a peak of apathy as reading that some screen star he never heard of is going to give up a career he didn't even know he had.—Portland Oregonian.

There are few if any women in Durham in their seventies. Evidence of this was given at a gathering when prizes were being offered for the oldest present. When those between 70 and 80 were asked to signify, a glance around the hall showed no hands up; several women, however, received surprised stares from their friends. But there was a proud response when those over 80 were asked.—Durham Chronicle.

Speaking of the recent heat wave in the United States, Douglas Willis, BBC correspondent in Washington, said: "At Dallas, Texas, where the thermometer has shown over 100 for the last nine days, a concrete company used crushed ice to mix their concrete to keep it from setting before it could be poured. At St. Louis, Missouri, the Municipal Zoo cancelled a parade of elephants because the pavements were too hot for them to walk on."—London Listener.

Newfoundlanders are angry for the reason the Post Office Department in Ottawa is giving new names to several communities in their province. The place names of Newfoundland were chosen in the first place from out of the experience and character of the people who settled the island and therefore are meaningful names rooted in the island's story.

Like to the falling of a star, Or as the flights of eagles are, Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue, Or silver drops of morning dew; Or like a wind that chafes the flood, Or bubbles which on water stood; Even such is man, whose borrowed light Is straight called in, and paid to night.

There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.

PUBLIC FORUM

This column is open to the discussion by correspondents of questions of interest. The Guardian does not necessarily endorse the opinion of correspondents.

EISENHOWER'S EXAMPLE

Sir—Two short letters have lately appeared in the "Public Forum" on the subject of prayer. And now President Eisenhower gives a powerful witness on the subject before a meeting of the World Council of Churches.

TERRITORIAL FAME

Sir—It may surprise most Canadians, but for 84 years about a third of this nation has not been called by its true name.

LAWYERS CONFERENCE

EDINBURGH (CP) — More than 350 delegates including several Canadians took part in an international law conference here.

ed and placed in the boats strictly according to rank. As daylight fades, an iron basket alight with flaming pitch is suspended from the side of the boat to lure the fish. The dark, sinister looking cormorants — with snake-like heads, wedge-shaped tails and webbed feet—are released in turn. An alert master may hold the reins of 12 fast-moving birds at a time.

Fishing cormorants were introduced into Japan from China, where they had been known from time immemorial. Some present-day Chinese use a different system. On the Sungari River in Manchuria, the fishing is done by daylight. No leash is used.

Cormorant fishing, both as sport and as means of livelihood, flourished in medieval England. Later, during the 17th century, an official at the court of James I was designated Master of Cormorants.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The latest volume of the Soviet Encyclopedia to be published covers the letters "MA" to "ME". Such names as Mao and Malenkov happen to be in the completed section as well as that of Marx.

The season of local exhibitions is well started off today by the 50th annual Egmont Bay and Mont Carmel Exhibition at Abram's Village. These exhibitions play a most important part in improving agricultural practice and, even more important, arousing enthusiasm in the younger generation for the finer points of farming.

Mothers must be somewhat surprised to learn of Dr. Benjamin Spock telling the Institute of Child Psychiatry at Toronto that parent education may well do more harm than good.

Voters are advised by Dr. G. Brock Chisholm to investigate the mental health of candidates. "Is any behaviour more effectively suicidal than to elect psychopaths, neurotically anxious, violent, egocentric or prejudiced people to public bodies?" asks the former director-general of WHO.

Cyprus has never been politically part of Greece. Richard the Lion Hearted took the island from the Eastern Empire and it passed through a number of hands. Britain assumed control in 1878 after 300 years of Turkish rule.

Eleutherios Venizelos, Greek statesman, was born this date 1864. He was born in Crete and became minister of justice, foreign minister and premier of Crete. He became premier of Greece in 1911, having saved the monarchy by a masterly revision of the constitution.

A conference on public education, under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, better known as Unesco, was held recently in Geneva, Switzerland.

Welcome Mink Breeders

Handsome movie stars have nothing on Charlottetown's latest guests when it comes to fascinating the fair sex. There seems to be something about mink coats, jackets and stoles that the ladies simply cannot resist.

Practically all Canadian breeders of mink belong to the association which works for the best interests of the industry in a most enlightened way. By striving to maintain and improve the quality of the product and give buyers the assurance that they always get what they pay for, the industry is kept on a sound basis.

This Province has long been vitally interested in fur ranching. The original home of ranched black and silver foxes, it has also gone in for the raising of other high quality furs, the most important of which at the present time is mink itself.

During the next few days, however, we shall probably hear of the special advantages of many other parts of the country. All of them add up to the fact that Canada is in a position to produce and market top quality furs, unexcelled by any country in the world.

Wide Versus Narrow

That young persons with wide feet—the wider the better—can look forward to success in life is the finding of an English doctor who examined the feet of 200 persons who had "made good."

As might be expected, people with narrow soles, some of whom were under the impression that they had done fairly well in their chosen occupations, are writing indignant letters to the papers and calling the doctor everything but a gentleman. Strangely, wide-soled correspondents seem to be no less disturbed.

Fishing With Cormorants

Many techniques are employed in the fishing industry, but surely the strangest is that carried on every summer in Japan, where men and cormorants team up for the season.

The partnership is an ancient one, carried on by traditional methods, says the National Geographic Society. For at least a thousand years, Japanese fishermen have made use of the big bird's skill in scooping up the slippery fish in their long, hooked beaks.
