IN MEMORIAM

MR. E. M. PHILLIPS

Charlottetown and the Island has lost a fine citizen in the passing of Mr. E. M. (Bus) Phillips, a most successful marine and building contractor for the past 20 years.

Shunning the limelight as he did only a limited number of people realize the respect with which he was regarded in business circles, and the influence he could command in many aspects of provincial life. Through his voice was never raised publicly, his advice was sought and heeded by many people, businessmen, as well as others in positions of authority.

He was born in Murray River 50 years ago, and received his education in the public schools of the Island, and at Horton Academy in Wolfville, Nova Scotia. While still in his teens, he assisted his father, the late H. J. Phillips, in carrying out many important contracts in this Province and on the mainland.

After gaining experience with his father, he entered business on his own account. At first he confined his efforts to building construction, but in recent years he switched to marine construction. It will be recalled that he built the new Holy Trinity Church on Queen Street, the new P. E. I. Telephone Building also on Queen Street, the new Science Building at St. Dunstan's University and the Atlantic Wholesale Building at the foot of Pownall Street; these and many other jobs are witness to his industry and his ability.

In the marine field, his work can be seen along the Island coast line. He carried out major repairs to the "Triton" at Tisbury and only a few days ago, he finished a contract for the repair of the fish pier at North Lake. Still earlier this year, he carried out extensive repair to the Souris breakwater. His work can also be seen at such places as Naufrage, Rustico, Launching, Graham's Pond, Rocky Point, and many other places in the Province.

He was a doer rather than a dreamer, and in his life time accomplished many things. Purposeful and clear thinking, he worked hard and relaxed only when his responsibilities allowed him to do so. As an employer, he set a very high example for his contemporaries. He paid his employees generously; treated them with consideration, and many of them worked for him year after year. He never hagglod over the payment of wages. Most of the men who worked for him, really worked with him because he treated them as friends, and was ever mindful of their welfare.

If his epitaph were written by the men who worked for him, his character as a man and a citizen would be a high indeed. He was a builder in more ways than one; He built and gained friendships all over the Province and had many friends in the United States. His family, his home, his friends, his work, these were the things for which he lived, and he failed in none of them.

In the late twenties and early thirties, he took a great interest in flying, and some of his closest friends belong to the fraternity of airmen, who first flew the mails and passengers from this Province to the mainland. With these seasoned pilots he flew all over the United States, and to many parts of Canada. Always a lover of horses, he was part-owner of the Garden City Stables with the late Major T. E. Rogers some years ago, and he never lost the love of racing or of horses.

He spent several winters in Florida including part of last winter. He had many friends in that state. No one enjoyed friendship more than he, and it was at the home of a friend and while surrounded by friends, that he passed suddenly on Thursday, December 3rd.

Without fanfare and with the knowledge of only a few people, he helped many over the rough financial spots of life, with a rare understanding and a quiet sympathy. In moments of relaxation he had a boyish sense of humour and a keen zest of life. In 1939, he married Miss Winnie Arbing of Charlottetown; a very happy marriage only broken by his demise a few days ago.

Surviving are his wife and three children, Anne, Gail age thirteen, James Malcolm, ten, and Wendy age six and half years; two brothers W. E. of Charlottetown; and Harry also of Charlottetown; one sister Anne, Mrs. S. R. Barrett of Chicago.

Mr. Phillips was an associate member of the United Services Club and the Charlottetown City Club. He attended Trinity United Church.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. on Monday, December 14th, at the Holy Trinity Church, St. John's Street, Charlottetown. Burial will be in the Holy Trinity Cemetery.

Interment will be in the Holy Trinity Cemetery.

New Canadians Entertained At Local Party

Over three hundred and fifty new Canadians had a very jolly time last night when they were entertained at a community Christmas party at the Canadian Legion Home. The party was under the auspices of the Canadian Citizenship Council with the cooperation of the following organizations: The Canadian Red Cross, three Chapters of the I. O. E., two from Charlottetown and one from Summerside, the Catholic Women's League, the Queen Mary Needlework Guild, Women's Institutes, the National Employment Office, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, the Charlottetown Rotary Club, the Charlottetown Kinsmen's Club, the City of Charlottetown, the Charlottetown Board of Trade.

In addition to the adults, about one hundred children gathered around the gaily decorated Christmas tree and sang Dutch songs in a remarkably charming manner. When Santa Claus arrived gifts were distributed to all, even to the youngest who was only five weeks old.

Dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Legionaires orchestra. Delicious refreshments were served and towards the close of the evening ice cream was provided for all.

Messrs. Bethune, Osholm, and Crossman of the Immigration Department at Halifax, and B. Graham Rogers, Provincial Immigration Officer, were present at the gathering and talked with many of the new citizens, and generally took an active part in the proceedings. The Halifax immigrants proved conclusively to be well impressed with the work being done by the various organizations here for the new citizens and that this was one of the finest gatherings they had ever attended. In fact they said "The work being done by the various groups on Prince Edward Island is very, very outstanding". They also added that they appreciated this work greatly and they paid great praise to the immense amount of work carried out so cheerfully by the ladies in charge during the evening.

Last evening was undoubtedly the most outstanding to date of the various similar gatherings arranged for new citizens during recent years. Their enjoyment seemed almost unlimited.

The Christmas number of The College Times presented by the students of Prince of Wales College carries a nicely executed cover design in red and green presenting the three wise men from the East as a centre piece. The issue throughout deals with the humorous side of college life as the students settle into routine and become well enough acquainted to "frazz" each other.

A full page picture of "Prince of Wales Royalty" with a description of the coronation of the King and Queen of the campus shows Don Wood, King and Miss Jean Tweedy, Queen, Don MacLeod, Prince, Miss Connie Chandler, Princess and Goodwill MacDougall, Archbishop.

In the sport news section reference is made to the Island intermediate interscholastic rugby finals which ended in a deadlock between S.D.U. and P.W.C. after playing six games. Basketball and hockey have been started and indications point to a strenuous winter in both sports.

The activities of the Newman Club are also referred to and comment made on the success of the weekly meetings which conclude with a social hour.

Fitting reference and words of welcome are extended to new college members, Prof. R. E. Lightfoot, Prof. Ivan Dowling and Prof. J. P. Hesler.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Wyman, also of Wolfville, were awarded $3,479.60 damages against Wolf for injuries suffered by Mrs. Wyman in the same accident.

Stresses Dental Need For Fluoridation In Ch'town

"Only six children out of every hundred in the four main schools of Charlottetown have no decayed teeth", Dr. B. J. O'Meara, Director of Dental Public Health said in an address on Fluoridation before the Rotary Club yesterday.

"The average number of decayed teeth is ten per child, and only one third of these decayed teeth are being treated," Dr. O'Meara said. "If the situation ever arose when treatment was requested for the remaining two thirds, then the number of dentists we have could not possibly cope with the additional work."

"If sodium fluoride were added to the Charlottetown water supply there is every reason to believe that future tooth decay would be reduced by about two thirds. It would then be possible under present circumstances, to have all the teeth that do decay, treated."

Cost For Charlottetown

"An estimate has been made of the cost of fluoridation in Charlottetown. Although these figures are completely unofficial, they are reasonably accurate. The cost of the equipment for feeding the fluoride into the water supply would be about $5,000. Then the cost of supplying the fluoride would be about $2,500 per year, which works out to less than 15c per capita of the population. That means that the cost of one filling would pay for the fluoride for that person for at least 20 years. It is not a matter of — Can we afford it? — but rather of — Can we afford to be without it?"

"Fluoridation is certainly coming to Charlottetown sooner or later. Are we to wait until all the other communities have it first? If the citizens want fluoridation, they must demand it. It will only be by public demand that this will ever happen."

"The adding of sodium fluoride to the domestic water supply in the proportion of one part to every million parts of water, has been proved conclusively to reduce the amount of tooth decay by nearly two thirds. In this concentration there has never been any evidence of any harmful effect, either to the human system or to the teeth. At a higher concentration the only harmful effect has been a staining of the teeth, but this higher concentration would have to be present for a long time to produce this. There is no risk at all of this happening."

"The effect of sodium fluoride on the teeth was first discovered in the United States. In certain areas this fluoride was found to be naturally present in the water supply and had been drunk by the residents there for many generations. In those areas where the concentration was two parts in a million or more, although they were perfectly healthy in every other respect, the residents did show evidence of mottling of the teeth. However, where the concentration was 1 to 1.5 parts in a million, this mottling did not occur and there was much less tooth decay. Residents in these areas number about 3 million and they have lived there all their lives without showing any harmful effect."

Experiments Cited

"Experiments were then tried of adding sodium fluoride to the water in other areas to bring it up to one part in a million. In 1945 this was done in two places in the United States and in Brantford, Ontario. Every two or three years the dental conditions of the children in Brantford have been compared with those in Stratford, Ontario, where sodium fluoride is naturally present in the optimum proportion, and with Sarnia, Ontario where there is no fluoride present. The findings for 1953 have just been published in Brantford and Sarnia were very similar. In Stratford there was two thirds less tooth decay. By 1953 the condition of the younger children in Brantford has improved so much that it is now similar to Stratford, while Sarnia has made no progress. Apart from the vastly improved dental situation, there is no evidence in general health. The same results have been obtained from the two places in the United States."

"In the United States, in addition to the areas supplying 3 million people with naturally fluoridated water, there are now 784 communities with a population of 15,290,000 residents, who are adding sodium fluoride to their water supply. In Canada there are 5 communities in Ontario and 3 in Saskatchewan who are doing it, and many others are considering it."

The speaker, who had been introduced by the chairman Dr. Heath MacIntyre, was thanked for his address by co-chairman Stan McInnis.

O. R. Simons, chairman of the Rotary Auction Committee reported a net income of $5,309.78 with the possibility of an additional $25. Cash donations were $1,425.50. Montague Masonic Sale contribution $800.00, sale of goods $2,598.88 a total income of $5,824.33. Total expenditure was $514.60.

On motion of O. R. Simons $4,500 was voted the Red Cross Society.

Discusses Vital Role Of Education

"The more we educate our young people, the more we should be careful, that they know how to use that education," said Dr. L. W. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Education, when he addressed the Men's Association of Trinity United Church last evening.

Mr. Reg. Howard presided at a turkey dinner meeting which was well attended by the men of the congregation, with a goodly number of guests present. Rev. A. Evans, Minister of the church, presided at the dinner, when he addressed the Men's Association of Trinity United Church last evening.

Mr. Frederic Large, Q.C., introduced the speaker and Dr. I. M. Lowrie thanked Dr. Shaw at the conclusion of his address. Dr. J. P. Lantz extended the thanks of the Association to the ladies for the bountiful meal which they had served under tastefully decorated surroundings. Mr. Dick Turpin entertained his listeners with a humorous reading and solo, and Mr. Fulton Pierce led a short sing-song. Accompanist was Mr. O. K. Presby.

Dr. Shaw took for his subject, "The place of the church school in the life of the church and in the life of the community." He asked "Why the church school?" pointing out that Hitler answered this question, when he said: "Give me the youth of the country and I will control the future of that country". Dr. Shaw went on to say that it was because the German people were not educated that Hitler was able to put the world into such a turmoil, but because the kind of learning was not a balanced type of education.

The kind of education needed was that which provides for the whole needs of the child, physical, socially and spiritually. "Education is something which is not confined to any one agency," said the speaker. He pointed out the importance of the home as an agency in education, where the child learns his language, his habits and its attitudes. "We must advance beyond the point where the school is looked upon as a necessary evil and the teacher, as someone who is to be put up with." The church and the Sunday School play their part in bringing worship to a child. In this way the spiritual part of a child's education is interwoven with the academic and technical knowledge which the child is acquiring in the day school. The co-operation of the parents the children and a group of public spirited people who are willing to give of their time to instruct the young is most essential. Dr. Shaw paid warm tribute to the four superintendents and the 53 teachers who Sunday after Sunday give of their time in the Sunday School of Trinity Church.

Following Dr. Shaw's address, Rev. E. C. Evans dismissed the meeting with the benediction.
