

MR. AND MRS. REGINALD G. GAY

Popular Young Couple Are Wed At Dunstaffnage

Central United Church, Dunstaffnage, P.E.I., was the setting of a pretty wedding on Saturday, April 5, 1958 at 3 o'clock when Elizabeth Maude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Foster, Marshfield, was united in marriage with Mr. Reginald George Gay, son of Mr. Percy Gay and the late Mrs. Gladys Gay, of Parkdale.

The Rev. Frank Littlejohns, pastor of the church, performed the double ring ceremony. Mr. Arthur Vessey, York, presided at the organ and accompanied Miss Juliet Carson, who sang "O Promise Me" at the beginning of the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The altar of the church was decorated with Easter lilies and spring flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of white peau de soie, with bouffant skirt, and bodice of Alencon lace. Her headpiece was a tiara, studded with sequins and pearls, with a finger tip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a cascade of pink delight roses.

All the attendants wore crystal-line gowns, styled on similar lines, with fitted bodices and bouffant skirts.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Fred Armour of Moncton, wore a sapphire blue gown.

The bridesmaid, Miss Julie Carson's gown, was of heavenly blue, while the two junior attendants, Misses Debra and Nancy Gay, wore gowns in azure and ice blue. They all wore identical head bands of lily of the valley, and carried nosegays of white and blue shattered carnations and lily of the valley.

The best man was Mr. Jack Gay, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Fred Armour, Moncton, Mr. Ernest McKay, Summerside and Mr. Daryl Doyle of Halifax, N.S.

A reception was held at the Charlottetown Hotel, and receiving with the bride and groom were the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Foster, and Mr. Percy Gay, father of the groom.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. F. Littlejohns and responded to by the groom.

The bride's travelling suit was of royal blue chesterline, with matching accessories, and a corsage of sweetheart roses. She carried a grey kidskin jacket.

CLASSIC CHARM

The shirtwaist look — neat, crisp, dainty — is always with us in summer, no matter what the current fashion rage may be. So, if you fear that your favourite shirtwaist styles won't be around because of the excitement about the relaxed line, don't worry. The stores have them in abundance and in wrinkle-free easy-to-laundry finishes and blends. This one, a daron and cotton blend, is a handsome example of the smart shirtwaist dress. A mock monocrom adds an attractive accent and unpressed pleats make a graceful skirt. A patent belt completes this costume classic.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Another Tasteful Bite Is In School Lunch Kit!

A breezy Saturday this has been, with a brisk sunny wind to dry the farmers' fields and bring them up to the fieldwork: to the fencing, and the spreading of lime and manure.

"In some Island places the farmers are already on the land — yes, cultivating and plowing" a traveller brought the news today. James shook his head. "I'm thinking it's a bit early yet" he said.

While Rob and Jamie went to the woods to saw logs for a piece of intended carpentry at that farm in the road, James and the younger farmer made contact with the wood-splitting, leaving Gage and Mack to follow young inclinations, which eventually bore them off blithely to fish the stream.

The excursion brought Mack home obviously happy and well satisfied with his day, and to his bed when the night-shadows had barely settled on the hills. How sweet that young rest! No sedative needed, nor tranquilizer to take him off to his enviable Land of Dreams.

This we remember has been a sun-kist week throughout, exceptionally bright and mild and promising for the time of year. Now the robins trill their love-songs and the song-sparrows are back to the lawn to sing us through the summery days.

Now the starlings are into their house-sweeping in the nook of garage-roof. We hear them as we go about our cares of the day . . . and chuckle.

She like others of us these days, we fancy is "troubled about many things" — Housecleaning, spring-planning; he sometimes "more to be pitied than laughed at" is a nice mellow we are sure — often bewildered as husbands are, and more and less hepped and helped and industrious and after all only "a boy grown up."

This week gave the open season of trout fishing back to the fisher-lads, Mack our eight-year-old, gaining the honor in the neighborhood for a first finny taking. Cooked in butter it went into a sandwich in the school-lunch kit that morning to be a twice-tasteful bite . . . sweet in itself and sweeter because it was a small lad's earned treasure.

Now fields commence to show green in the sunshine and the week was so lovely that surveying them and the surroundings we "could have half-believed we heard, the leaves and blossoms growing."

Adn now once more the farm-work and pastimes — even the trout fishing pauses for the weekend.

"Tomorrow" one of the family spoke of the day to come "will be another lovely day. See the sunset! . . . What a traffic there will be on the Highway, as the countryside calls the city-folks out."

And another week we check off, lived now and gone. We think of its delights and beside them our "petty concerns" fade. We think too of our omissions for "It isn't the things we do, dear, it's the things we leave undone" that are disquieting in review, and we are busy and busier. At weekend when we make out our "accounts" there is much to remember.

One considering these things reminds us "Dear heart, be swift in loving Time speedeth on: And all the chance of blessed service Will soon be gone." Until Monday — — Diary — Goodnight . . .

Mint Flakes Are Good But Nutmeg Is Better

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Green peas are always popular," remarked the Chef, "They harmonize with savory food.

"Regardez! I toss this half-cupful of cooked frozen peas into this salad bowl. I could also add them to a chicken à la king or to a sauce for creamed potatoes to give color and flavor.

"I like to combine green peas not only with carrots, but with diced new turnips or celeriac; with green beans or asparagus, cut in short lengths. In this case, guess what seasoning I would use, Madame."

"Perhaps mint flakes, Chef," I ventured.

"Mint flakes are very good, but a soupçon of nutmeg is better, Madame; also, a little whipped unsalted butter as a final touch. USE FROZEN PEAS

"Now that canned and frozen green peas are in good supply, it is a good time to use plenty of them."

"Fine, Chef! Then let's plan my favorite cream of green pea soup for our menu."

Tomorrow's dinner: Cream of green pea soup, celery, carrot sticks, ham rice loaf, mustard relish, escalloped corn kernels, warm apple pie, cheese, coffee, tea or milk.

This menu is a good example of the way canned foods may be used in creating a tasty dinner that is well within the budget.

The soup can be made with evaporated milk and canned peas; the ham loaf with canned ham; the escalloped with canned corn kernels; and the pie with processed apples. Celery and carrot sticks add that indispensable touch of freshness.

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.

Cream of Green Pea Soup: Turn the contents 1 (No. 2) can green peas into a saucepan. Add 1 sliced onion and 2½ c. boiling water. Simmer 15 min.

Put through a sieve or food mill and reheat. Thicken by stirring in 2 tsp. butter or margarine blended with 2 tsp. flour. Cook-stir until boiling.

Meantime, scald 2½ c. milk. Add to the soup. Season to taste with salt and pepper. As an accompaniment, serve crisp crackers.

Ham Rice Loaf: Fine-chop the contents of 2 (12-oz.) cans minced ham. Make and add ¾ c. thick white sauce.

Combine with 2½ c. cooked white rice, 1 tsp. onion juice, ½ tsp. table mustard, 2 tsp. minced parsley, 1 egg, slightly beaten, and 2 tsp. melted butter. Mix thoroughly.

Transfer to a buttered 10 x 4 in. loaf pan. Bake 40 min. in a moderate oven, 350-375 degrees F. or until firm to the touch and golden brown. As an accompaniment, serve mustard relish.

British Toy Exhibition Is Successful In N. Y. C.

"British Toys," the toy journal with the world's largest circulation, reports a successful British toy exhibition in New York. American buyers attended in force. The front page article in "British Toys" states:

The first foreign exhibition of British toys, at the 8th International Toy Fair which was held at the Statler Hotel in New York last month, proved to be extremely successful and all the manufacturers who displayed their wares expressed the view that results were very much better than they anticipated.

Apart from the valuable orders taken at the Fair, the British exhibitors gained first hand experience of the American market conditions by meeting the local toy buyers and exchanging opinions, news and impressions of marketing in the U.S.A.

Firms from Britain who had done little dollar business before, reported that they had been enabled to open up accounts which, they hope, will help them eventually to establish regular sales to the American market. In addition, a number of exhibitors with recognised distributors in the States did business outside the Fair.

Nearly 5,000 toy buyers from all parts of the U.S.A. visited the British section of the Fair during the six days it was in progress, and enquiries were received from 3,500 buyers by the thirty-three leading British toy manufacturers that participated.

Although the practical results of the display, in terms of cold sales figures, will not be seen for many months, the general opinion was that the British exhibit had been very worth while and had laid a firm base for future successful sales expansion in the U.S.A.

Publicity was ably handed by the British Information Service, who had for some weeks prior to the Fair made a number of releases to the press: while the Fair was in progress a film of the British Toy Fair at Brighton was shown twice on major T.V. networks, as well as receiving other showings.

The organization of the British display had involved many months' work of consultation and co-operation between the Board of Trade and the Toy Manufacturers Association in London, and in New York, between the British Consulate-General and the local organizer and the hotel management.

Sir Hugh Stephenson, H.M. Consul-General in New York, and Mr. I. P. Garran, H. M. Minister (Commercial) visited the British exhibit and were introduced to individual exhibitors by Mr. S. H. Powell, Chairman of the British Toy Manufacturers Association. Members of the Consulate General in New York and H. M. Embassy in Washington were in attendance throughout the Fair to assist and advise exhibitors, for some of whom this was their first visit to the United States and their first direct experience to the American market.

Among the beautiful dolls seen and loved by "little girls" of all ages were Rosebuds. These dolls with the cobalt blue eyes and the baby stare were all the rage at recent toy fairs held at Harrington and Brighton. It is a case of "wosebuds and more wosebuds" for these popular members, whenever and wherever they attend British toy fairs.

Through the years we have used everything this package contained, but from it I still have a good feeling towards you in my heart. All the people of Poland feel grateful to those Canadians whom have helped us during our very difficult times in 1944-45.

I could not send my thanks earlier because of the circumstances under which I was living.

Now, since last October, we have obtained more liberty and I have the freedom of exchanging letters with you.

I do not know you, so I do not know if you are old or young, or anything about your life, even if you are still living after these twelve years.

But I would like to know everything about you? Have you a

Gratitude Is Expressed For UNNRA Food Parcel

Twelve years ago a Charlottetown citizen sent a parcel of food through UNNRA. This parcel was received by a Polish person in a concentration camp in Austria. It was not possible for the recipient to write and thank for the parcel until recently.

In April, 1958, the sender received a letter written in Polish by the recipient, who is now living in his native land of Poland.

This letter was translated by a Polish doctor, now living in Charlottetown. The letter shows the gratitude of the people who receive parcels and that kindnesses such as the Charlottetown lady gave are not forgotten.

For the past twelve years I have wanted to send a letter to you, to thank you for the package which you have sent me through the UNNRA. Everything in the package was very useful and was greatly enjoyed.

In 1944-45 I was in a concentration camp in Austria. When the American armies arrived we were freed. Among the United States soldiers who freed me, I made 2 friends who were of Polish origin, but who had settled in America.

They told me it would be much better to go to America than to return to Poland, but I felt I had to go back home to try and find my wife and little daughter, as I did not know if they were still there or if the German armies had killed them.

Remembering this now, I am sorry that I did not go to America, because there I would surely live a much better life than here, and I could have wrote for word about my wife and daughter and

Island Name Represented At Glasgow's University

Miss Elaine MacKendrick received her Ph. D. in genetics on April 26 at Glasgow University. It is most unusual for a girl to write a thesis on this subject and Miss MacKendrick, was being congratulated by many eminent scholars in obtaining her doctorate in philosophy in this subject.

Miss MacKendrick has had a most distinguished career. She is apparently a very beautiful girl and now romance comes into the picture. Her engagement and forthcoming marriage have been announced to Mr. David Miller, a scientist at Harwell, England.

Miss MacKendrick's mother was the former Miss Mable Scantlebury and her father, Mr. W. MacKendrick. Immediate relatives are Mrs. Everett Wedlock, Mrs. John Gordon, Mrs. W. C. McLeod, Mrs. Ivan Mitchell, Mr. William MacKendrick of Campbellton, and Mr. W. E. Scantlebury.

The groom's mother wore a very pretty dress of navy blue, with rose accessories and a corsage of candy-striped carnations.

Following the marriage the wedding party proceeded to Millers' Old Spain where a beautiful wedding breakfast was served in the Blue Room. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Donald Bruce and a fitting response was given by the groom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked beautiful in a white velvet princess styled dress with a V neck and long sleeves tapering to a point over the fingers. Her shoulder length veil of tulle illusions fell from a pill box style head piece of sequins and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Pat Doyle who looked beautiful also, in a tangerine sheath dress with white trim, and she carried a nosegay of white carnations.

Paddington Station, great railway terminus at London, England, marked its centenary in 1954.

We would have had a much better life these past twelve years. But now it is all over, so it is better not to think about it. However, we're hoping that our lives will improve soon, when my children will be able to start working, but every year it becomes a little more difficult to get a job.

I guess my letter is too long and so I will close, but I would like to say thank you once again for your parcel of twelve years ago. I wish for you and your family much luck, health and happiness. Please answer this letter.

P.S. In this letter I am sending you a little piece of paper that you sent to me twelve years ago. From this I hope you will remember who I am.
