Scottish Monument Shipped May 25th

The large monument to be erected in honor of the landing of the first Scottish Catholics settlers on Prince Edward Island at Scotchfort July 19th, was shipped from Aberdeen on May 25, on the S.S. Gracia, which arrived in Montreal June 9th, and is now en route to the Island via Canadian National Railways and is expected here any day.

There are about four thousand feet of lumber now on the grounds together with about two tons of stone for the foundation of the Monument. A large choir stand will also be erected and the tables will have a seating capacity of over six hundred people at a time. It is the intention of the committees to have a field on each side of the one where the celebration is taking place for the parking of autos and carriages. The autos will enter and leave the grounds from the main road on a different road from that of the carriages. This will prevent any accidents occurring. A forty foot pump has been bored and everything possible is being done to cater to the wants of a gathering of people that will no doubt be the largest in the history of Prince Edward Island.

Witness knew Carters' Store and warehouse, corner Queen and Dorchester Street. He was on duty Wednesday night last. On the morning of the 8th about 20 minutes to 4 he left the Market after chatting to McMahon and on his way down Queen St., about 10 doors from Carters' warehouse a man came out of Dorchester on to Queen St., at Carters' corner. He ran back when he saw witness coming, witness did not recognize him. He followed him but could not see a sign of him. He had disappeared east along Dorchester St., about 50 yards ahead of witness, who tried the front doors of the warehouse and the two side doors on Dorchester St. They were all fastened. Witness stood on corner about fifteen minutes. The prisoner, Dan O'Brien came out of the side door of Carters' and spoke to witness. He believed it was the door handiest Queen St., on Dorchester St. O'Brien spoke and said "It's a nice morning John." Witness said "Is that you, Danny?" and he said "Yes, it is." It was not usual for O'Brien to be coming out of Carters' at that time. Witness walked down to the Telegraph corner and O'Brien crossed Queen St., towards the west side. It was clear daylight then. Witness came back to Carters' corner but could not see anybody. He then came up Queen St., to look for a police man or Mr. McMahon, whom he met by the side of the second store. He talked to McMahon and both turned round and went back to Carters'. There was a horse and jigger (which they first saw crossing Sydney St., as they were going down) backed up on the curb on the first side door of Carters' and a puncheon of something on it. One of the Hennessy's was there. He could not swear which Hennessy it was. It was not Michael Hennessy. Witness stood watching. He did not look hard. He was more interested in what was going on inside. "What was going on inside?" asked the Attorney General. "I don't know that either."

Preliminary Hearing

(Continued from page 1.) business is exporting liquor. Mr. Hessian said he understood that there was something the Crown was trying to connect them with. He objected to having the officers on the stand. This is a case of negligence on the part of the federal government and whether the company's head office was here or elsewhere was out of the question. The court allowed the Attorney General to proceed with his examination.

The court did not know whether the company was incorporated or not. He had been with them three years. Came here December 30th. He had nothing to do with their business outside his own work. The ten puncheons were imported by his company. The order was sent by St. John. Mr. Carlyle in charge there. Did not know of such a firm as W. A. Ross and Bros. until the bill of lading came. Did not know how it came to be shipped to this name—there had never heard tell of this name before. Mr. Hand was here when this bill of lading came and he looked after it. Witness had nothing to do with keeping books or making entries—all that work done at St. John now. The two puncheons were taken from the railway duty paid, to the Company's warehouse. Witness did not know where the other puncheons were taken. He saw two of them being moved from the railway. He did not tell Mr. Hand but when hand did not know whether he knew anything about them or not. He only saw the load going up on Wednesday afternoon. Later he spoke to Mr. Fraser about them and the next day heard about the robbery. Mr. Hand went away Thursday morning and will be coming back Friday or Saturday. Witness had seen Mr. Hand Wednesday night but did not speak to him about the puncheons. He knew the defendant O'Brien by sight. He did not know O'Brien by name. He made no inquiries but other people came to him and he discussed it. He asked the police if they found anything about it and they said no.

Mr. Hessian examined by the Attorney General, testified that he never heard of a firm of Welling & Richter Ltd., or of W. A. Ross Export Company. He did not know anything about the manifest relating to the 10 barrels of rum to be shipped from Halifax to W. A. Ross & Bros., care of Charlottetown Export Co. He never gave any person authority to import goods in this way. He did not know how his name got into the manifest at the Customs House. One time before he got a bill for 25 barrels of rum—but the Prohibition Commission got the goods. The railway notified him in that instance. The goods turned out to be the property of the Commission.

John Diamond (sworn) night watchman from Rogers' corner to Carters' and around Prowse's Block. Thos. McMahon also watched houses that were in the city. Witness knew Carters' Store and warehouse, corner Queen and Dorchester Street. He was on duty Wednesday night last. On the morning of the 8th about 20 minutes to 4 he left the Market after chatting to McMahon and on his way down Queen St., about 10 doors from Carters' warehouse a man came out of Dorchester on to Queen St., at Carters' corner. It was not usual for O'Brien to be coming out of Carters' at that time. Witness walked down to the Telegraph corner and O'Brien crossed Queen St., towards the west side. It was clear daylight then. Witness came back to Carters' corner but could not see anybody. He then came up Queen St., to look for a police man or Mr. McMahon, whom he met by the side of the second store. He talked to McMahon and both turned round and went back to Carters'. There was a horse and jigger (which they first saw crossing Sydney St., as they were going down) backed up on the curb on the first side door of Carters' and a puncheon of something on it. One of the Hennessy's was there. He could not swear which Hennessy it was. It was not Michael Hennessy. Witness stood watching. He did not look hard. He was more interested in what was going on inside. "What was going on inside?" asked the Attorney General. "I don't know that either."

Witness did not see anybody working at that time. He and Mc Mahon stood there for a while. He did not leave the corner until he moved upstreet. Officer Allan McInnis came across the street at Carters' corner and moved towards the jigger. Witness saw O'Brien after the other barrel was on the jigger. Officer McInnis was standing there too. O'Brien and Essory came out the front door of Carters' Feed Store while witness, McMahon and Officer McInnis were standing on the corner. O'Brien and Essory did not speak; they walked up Queen St., to Sydney and went in the direction of Pownall St. The horse and jigger crossed Queen St., along Dorchester St., to Pownall St. Witness tried front door and found it locked. Witness and Officer McInnis went up Queen St., as far as Euston St. The jigger came up Pownall to Euston St., and turned up Euston to Great George St.

Mr. Johnston—"Did they see you?"

Witness—"I don't know whether they did or not."

"Where were you?"

"We were in a yard looking over a fence."

"Where did they go after that?"

"They went up Great George and turned north."

"Did you follow?"

"We followed it as far as Worthy's corner."

"Could you see it going out Elm Ave.?"

"Yes, quite a ways."

Witness did not know whether it went out to Spring Park or not—they watched it disappear out the Avenue. Witness did not see prisoners afterwards. He did not see any signs of the puncheons since. He knew Edward Hennessy, but could not swear it was him on the jigger when they passed Euston St.

"You have not any idea where the puncheons went to?"

"No idea in the world!"

Edward Hennessy. Edward Hennessy was called to the stand. Mr. Inman objected. The three men are being jointly charged he maintained. One prisoner cannot be put up against another.

The Court replied that the case now being tried is that of Daniel O'Brien.

Mr. Inman took the objection that the witness is an accomplice and his evidence cannot be taken while a charge is pending against him. In common law no interested person can take the stand, even in a civil suit. Unless there is some special provision in the Canada Evidence Act this cannot be legal. The Act being silent on this point the common law prevails.

The Attorney General maintained that the Common Law provided for the evidence of an accomplice. Authorities were quoted on both sides the Court quoted the recent Furze trial and other cases.

Ed. Hennessy (sworn), truckman living in Charlottetown. He was in Charlottetown last Thursday morning and did some trucking. He started out about daylight. Somebody came to his home at 76 Sydney Street. This was about the middle of the block between Pownall and Queen, handy Carters' store. He was roused up about daylight. He did not know who the man was at the door. He said to come down, that his horse broke a leg on the street. Witness came down but did not see the horse with the broken leg. Saw a strange man about the height of the Attorney General—looked something like him with light suit of clothes on.

Mr. Johnston—"You don't suggest it was me?"

"No sir."

The man was clean shaven, dark complexion, about forty, with a green hat on. Witness never saw him before or since. He asked witness would haul two barrels at Carters' warehouse and gave him $5. He told witness to go to the side door of the warehouse. He said he was to take the puncheons out by the bicycle park and there was to be a truck to meet him there. He was simply to deliver it to the man on the truck. Witness was mostly hitched up his team and went to the warehouse. When he came around the warehouse man was there. Dan O'Brien and Essory were their with him. When he turned the corner of the Harris Abbott's Co., they were standing at Carters' corner.

"The three men were there?"

"Yes."

"O'Brien and Essory?"

"Yes, and the Jew."

"So the other man was a Jew?"

"He looked like a Jew, yes."

Witness peeked into the door and when he got there the side door was opened and one cask was on the elevator. Witness did not expect to meet O'Brien or Essory there. He said good morning to them and they answered. The door was just opened after witness got around. The three men were then inside. Witness did not ask any questions. He had a suspicion as to what was in the puncheons by their shape and size. Witness helped to load the puncheons with O'Brien. It was pretty heavy work. They just had to be rolled up. The other puncheon came up from the collar. The three were inside but witness did not go in. He thought O'Brien and Essory, he thought, came up with the second puncheon on the elevator. He did not know whether the side door was bolted afterwards or not. Witness saw Officer McInnis standing beside him when he was loading the second barrel. He did not know who was operating the motor. He did not go into the cellar nor see the other man after that.

"You took a kind of a round about way didn't you?" asked the Attorney General.

"That's the way I was told."

Witness proceeded with his load up Pownall to Euston St., thence to Elm Avenue and stopped just past the Bicycle Park. He stopped near the railway track past the Athletic Grounds. A motor truck was waiting there. Did not know who was driving it. He was a tall dark skinned, clean shaven man, about 35 years of age.

"About the same age as the other fellow?"

"Yes."

"They were not twins were they?"

"No, they did not look like it."

This man had all the gear handy and the casks were rolled onto the truck. Witness did not see the truck number. It was a brown truck. After loading the first puncheon the stranger drove away east past the railway track. Witness had heard that O'Brien and Essory

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

A Trying Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Detroit, Michigan—"During the Change of Life, I had a lot of stomach trouble, and was bothered a great deal with hot flashes. Sometimes I was not able to do any work at all. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your little books and took it up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have kept on improving ever since." Mrs. B. LANSER, 1639 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

Queer Feelings at Middle Age

Sheboygan, Wisconsin—"I was run-down, tired and nervous. I could not even do my own housework, could not sleep at night and all kinds of queer thoughts would come to me. Finally, I gave up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have kept on improving ever since." Mrs. B. LANSER, 1639 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

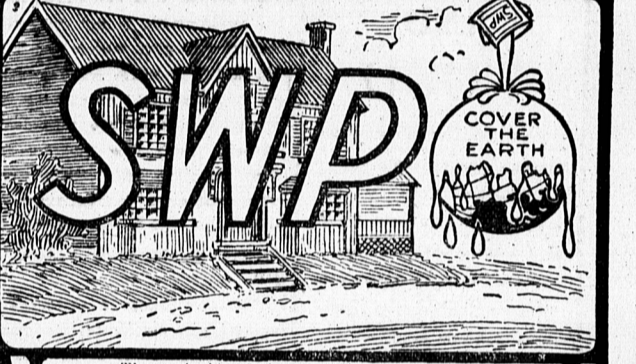

Let the Compound Help You

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia. Heat flashes or waves of heat appear to pass over the body, cause the face to be very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suffocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is an inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is liable to make a woman lose confidence in herself. She becomes nervous, avoids meeting strangers and dreads to go out alone.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women at this time. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period of transition. Let it help carry you through this time of trouble. It is a splendid medicine for the middle-aged woman. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.
