

MR. AND MRS. WAYNE MCINTYRE

Red Roses Are Carried By Holy Redeemer Bride

Constable Wayne McIntyre and Mrs. McIntyre have taken up residence at 23 Kensington Rd. since returning from their honeymoon in the United States and Niagara Falls.

Their wedding was solemnized July 24 at the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer, Charlotteville, by Rev. P. N. Maloney, C.S.R.

The bride, formerly Beverly Claybourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Claybourne, was crowned in floor length tulle and veil with lily point sleeves and chapel train. Her four tier shoulder length veil of tulle illusion was held by a circular headpiece of pearls and rhinestones. She carried red roses.

Summer flowers decorated the altar. Soloist Eileen Grant was accompanied by Mrs. William Campbell as the organist. "Mother At Your Feet Is Kneeling," "Oh Lord I Am Not Worthy," and "Gounod's Ave Maria."

Sandra Claybourne, sister of the bride, was maid of honour in a crystal green street length sheath dress of organza over tulle with over skirt of sheer. Her headdress was a cluster of tiny white flowers and she carried a nosegay of white baby mums. Gail McIntyre, sister of the groom, and Ann Morgan were bridesmaids in tulle illusion to that of the maid of honour. Each carried nosegays of white baby mums. Cst. Donald Trainor was best man. Ushers were Csts. Robert Crockett and Carson Jay.

A three tier wedding cake, topped with the doves-of-love and peace decorated the table at the reception held at the Basilica Centre where the wedding breakfast was served to more than 100 guests.

Marie Claybourne, sister of the bride attended the guest book and Art Large provided music.

Brighton McDougall, uncle of the groom was emcee. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Claybourne chose a light blue jacket dress of French lace with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. McIntyre chose for her sons wedding a turquoise dress of sheer over silk tulle, with a French lace bodice, matching hat and white accessories.

The bridal party visited the late Senator James P. McIntyre, at the Sacred Heart Home, who was unable to attend.

Leaving for their honeymoon, the bride was in a powder blue dress with matching coat ensemble, white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Claybourne is employed by the Provincial Bank of Canada and the groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell McIntyre of Charlotteville, is a member of the city police force.

MARY HAWORTH

Clever Career Woman Asks Why Crush On Movie Star?

Dear Mary Haworth: If this letter were written by a 16-year-old with a crush on the Beatles, I could predict your reply.

But I am 56, a widow since 1942, a professional woman earning an excellent income in a field dominated by men—hardly the person, don't you agree, to have a crush on a male movie star who is eight years my junior?

Yesterday I sat through three screenings of his latest film and probably won't be able to resist a repeat performance.

I deliberately inject his name into conversations, just to hear what others think of him. More seem to see him as a good father and fascinating personality than as the bad, bad boy he's cracked-up to be.

I daydream constantly about meeting him, dancing with him, talking to him; though, oddly enough, I don't seem to be able to enter the picture.

I avidly study the daily TV news to see which of his old films are being re-run. And I've taken to buying all the movie magazines to savor every precious reference to him.

The whole thing began about a year ago, when I happened on to a magazine article about him. Prior to that I'd rarely gone to movies and had seen him only once, I think, and that at least 10 years ago.

Recently I had a medical check-up and my heart and blood pressure are absolutely normal. But what is wrong with my graying head? R.S.

Dear R.S.: I would suppose that your belated smitten reaction to the actor's public image as fostered by his press relations, is simply run-of-mine evidence that he has what it takes to rise in the theatre firmament and stay in the ascendant, as a marketable performer, decade after decade.

As for what it takes to stay at the top of the heap, against a perennial onslaught of fresh new contenders, for approximately 30 years, the first essential is a personality ingredient, elusive as radium, known as "star-quality."

This star-quality, which moguls spend millions to fabricate when it is absent, lights up the person from within, causes him to stand out in a crowd like a diamond surrounded by rhinestones.

Other qualities essential to enduring pre-eminence in a fiercely competitive field of effort include native talent, firm purpose, steady application, unflagging interest and innate or acquired capacity to work with and through groups in securing one's goals.

But going back for a moment to the inner meaning of your abrupt attachment to the actor's image, my guess is that aspects of the article you read, a year ago (starting it all), touched-off a chain reaction of unconscious-emotional-identifications with him, as being a striking facsimile of some heart's-hero of your earliest years.

That particular pen-portrait of him, in shades of black and white, good and bad, playboy and sound parent, etc., probably stirred buried memories of somebody you once idolized: father, brother, sweetheart or character in a book.

The tendency, in lonely circumstances in later life, is to revert to the past, unconsciously in quest of explanations of the present, rather than to look ahead with great expectations, as is the compensatory reflex of lonely youth.

Thus, in such a mood, perchance you encountered the actor's publicity-image, fancied his resemblance to someone you loved and lost, long ago, and got carried a way into a fantasy stream of might-have-been feelings.

In essence, this captivity-to-a-dream is a by-product of almost intolerable habitual emotional isolation and loneliness. M.H.

Ellen's Diary

Roadsides Are Colorful With Sunny Goldenrod

August's charms — they were increased today in the wake of yesterday's showers. Freshly green the leaves were, and revived the flowerings about. Even the grasses, it seemed, already were refreshed.

Now the goldenrod makes sunny spots of color along the roadside. The "snake-weed" flaunts its purplish shade in the "raspberry patches, and in the like the thistles too bloom. Skies commence to mellow. Dusk, we find, falls earlier. The migrating birds drift hither and yon on the fields. We fancy a lonely note is integrated now in the stream's summer tune. We noticed it this morning, there where it slips beneath the lane bridge, and alder-edged, flows on down past the mill to join the River's tides.

"Hear that traffic, Ellen!" James will query this morning on awaking, catching the sound of that which comes in to us at Alderlea from the Highway way out beyond the rim of hills.

"Yes, it's heavier already because of the Fair. I don't know whether I'll go today or not. I suppose" he will concede not unwillingly, "if the rest are going, I may as well go along. Then, we'd better get moving. The morning will soon slip away!"

Today was made up of bits and pieces of work: of that tidying about, which is the usual aftermath of any seasonal undertaking of the farm. Items of building and repair suspended through the haying were undertaken. New and sturdy raftings were set in place about the box-stall which houses this or that herdshire, gale made — from shining new boards was built, and set at the foot of the front meadow, where it will admit or close off at will, a range of pasture.

"Now, Ellen" James will say this morning, climbing a stair to change his wear "where is that pretty shirt of mine?" And did you put out my trousers? And my socks and shoes?"

And we will chuckle, recalling the joke Mack had laughed over... The farmer who had come to town one evening was surprised to say the least when he was whistled to a halt.

"But I haven't done anything," he protested. "I've obeyed the traffic laws."

MR. AND MRS. N. D. BRYDON

Matheson-Brydon Vows Solemnized At Valleyfield

Valleyfield United Church was the scene of a wedding on July 24th, when Mary Elizabeth Matheson of Lynn, Mass. U.S.A. and formerly of Heatherdale, P.E.I., was united in marriage with Neil Dan Brydon of Sharon, Mass., U.S.A.

The bride is the daughter of Malcolm A. Matheson and the late Mrs. Matheson of Heatherdale and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brydon of Sharon, Mass. U.S.A.

The church was decorated with baskets of cut, mixed flowers, and the guest pew marked with tiny white wedding bells.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Fred MacKinnon of Brooklynn, N.S., a cousin of the groom and former minister of the church. He was assisted by Rev. Graeme Fraser of Valleyfield, Mrs. Lloyd Fraser of Montague was organist and accompanied Malcolm and Donald Munro as they sang "O God Of Bethel" previous to the ceremony and "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of organza over tulle, featuring fitted bodice with pearl and sequin trim and long blue-point sleeves. A bouffant skirt, entrain, was highlighted by lace appliques and sequins. Her four-tier veil of tulle illusion fell softly from a tiara of pearls and tiny drop crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Margaret, as maid of honor and accessories. Her corsage was of white mums.

For a honeymoon trip to Toronto and New York, the bride wore a sheath dress of pink linen boucle with pink tulle lace overjacket. Her accessories and corsage were white.

The newweds will reside at 46 St. Peter's Road, Parkdale, where the bride will be on the staff of Parkdale Elementary School. The groom is on the staff of Charlottetown Regional High School.

Out-of-town guests were from Centralia, Toronto and Charlottetown.
