

Committee Chairmen Named for Jubilee

KENSINGTON — The Kensington '64 Rural Jubilee Committee met last night with the chairman, Boyd Beaird, presiding.

In regard to the Centennial costume for Rural Jubilee Days the chairman made a special request that as many as possible of the citizens of the area, dress in costumes of the period being celebrated. He also announced that in addition to the Central Airforce Band, and the local band, other bands had been asked and were expected to participate.

Charles Beaird reported progress on plans for decorating. Agricultural chairman, George Casley, reported that the parade show is being arranged in order to arrive at the premises for other refreshments for the Friday night dance, and some suggestions were offered.

Mrs. Ramsay named several organizations showing interest in the Jubilee. She also stressed that entries should be made in writing, naming the applicant and the committee members. Mrs. Svend Jonsson, chairman of the meals committee, also stressed that entries should be made in writing, naming the applicant and the committee members.

Last night young youth at the Joe Blinco Evangelical Crusade and 1,000 people turned out for the service. Shown above are two young sisters, left Marlene and right, Gail Coles, both of Charlottetown as they read from the Crusade hymn book prior to the start of the service.

Art Display At Seen 'Most Important'

BUSY ARRANGING sorting, and placing for display an exhibition of contemporary art in Canada are Rev. Arvid Arsenault, Eleanor Love, president of the P.E.I. Art Society, and Mrs. Alfred J. Hennessy. In Father Arsenault's hands is a bronze statuette loaned by the Gallery art gallery which is entitled

The Ascension. Partly hiding Mrs. Hennessy is a free construction in glass and metal by Moncton sculptor Edward Lezer. The Latin name of the piece is roughly translated "This is the day; let us rejoice." The exhibition will be open to the public by the end of June.

The library at present is chaos as the exhibit is moved in boxes and cartons holding a small fortune of some of the best Canadian art in this field. Paintings, sculptures and other works are more or less scattered in profusion everywhere, waiting their turn to be set up properly.

There are stained-glass windows beautifully executed in the modern style with the ancient skills by Mrs. Yvonne Williams, of Toronto, who is a sister of Mrs. Vera Miller, a Charlottetown lady.

PAINTED LOCAL MURAL begins a large painting by Fred Ross who is responsible for the touted and planned mural in Montserrat House.

There are exquisitely made vestments, gold and silver vessels, rare chalice, tapestries, ceramics, beautifully crafted incense, masterful wood and linens, in all "representations of just about every art form," says Father Arsenault.

The exhibition, which opens about the end of June and continues through September, is one of the university's projects for the Centennial celebrations.

WESTERN BRIEFS

2 Year Old Drowns in Own Yard

SUMMERSIDE — Julie Constance MacLellan, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin MacLellan, drowned at approximately 3:30 yesterday afternoon when she fell into a water-filled tub in the yard of her father's home at Indian River.

It was believed that the tub, half of a 4-gallon drum, was kept in the yard for cooling milk, and that the child had fallen when she reached for something in the tub.

Surviving brothers and sisters are Glenn 12, Maurine 9, Susan 8, and Tommy 6.

The Summerside RCMP detachment conducted an investigation and coroner Dr. Martin Clark of Kensington announced no inquest would be held.

Water Safety Education Outlined At Hand Meeting

ALBERTON BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN — "Water safety is a part of our education. Let us make this a national movement, as well as otherwise."

With this admonition Miss Myron MacLean of Lot 18, Red Cross field supervisor for Prince County, concluded a talk on water safety at the monthly meeting of Alberton Home and School Association, Monday evening.

"This is water safety week," Miss MacLean reminded the well-attended meeting. "It is held in June so people will be coming in to school in the beginning of summer and think back to it when they go swimming."

For safe swimming she recommended supervised beaches, to help a person if difficulty in the water she commended the Red Cross slogan, "It's water safety that saves lives."

Another feature of the home and school meeting was a panel discussion on "reading," moderated by Miss Evelyn Carpenter. Members of the panel were: Sister Mary Arnold, Mrs. Lloyd Wilkie, Aubin Gallant and John MacLellan.

The first question, "what do we mean by reading?" brought the answer that reading is knowing and visualizing a lot of words comprehensively and that it is a mental process; a skill. The greater part of the discussion centered about the responsibility that rests with teachers and parents.

Regarding the value of different ways to teach reading, it was pointed out that a method is only as good as the teacher who uses it. There appeared to be agreement that in the beginning a child should be given the alphabet and the sound of the letters. It was also noted that reading progress should be if a pupil's reading level is below what it should be for his age.

Parents can encourage their children to read their bedtime stories, by reading to them, by setting them an example, and by providing them with good books. It was suggested that the family visit the library together and that parents may look to build up a personal library.

The discussion emphasized that reading is a vital part of life and that parents and teachers must work together to develop better reading habits for the younger generation.

Mrs. Andrew Wells gave a comprehensive report on the provincial home and school meeting to which she was a delegate.

There were several interludes of music during the evening. They included a group of five short songs by Mrs. Ruth Sommers accompanied by Mrs. E. L. Larter; a group of Newfoundland folk songs by Miss Evelyn Carpenter; Miss Marion McLean; and Beethoven's "Moonlight" by Beck Johnson and William Cain.

son said "the company will study all matters of personnel carefully with the intent of Limited plans to continue those existing employees who are good and reliable workers and the consideration of long and faithful past service at this hotel will be given appropriate attention along with merit and future potential."

Mr. Martignol told the hotel staff that he personally believes "there is an opportunity to be personally made a significant contribution to the growth of Prince Edward Island." He said "this will co-operate in both collective and individual performance to the years ahead."

It is necessary, however, to recognize that times are changing and to be ready to adapt to them. In particular, the mode of travel is now different and the Charlottetown no longer has the close relationship with railway operations that it originally had. Thus, the decision taken by the CNR to accept an offer from Island Development Company is fully understood and appreciated by us," the Premier said.
