The Melancholy Days
We heard someone remark that what he liked about the spring was that it came at a time of the year when it was badly needed.

Federation Activities
The joint meeting of the directors of the three county and provincial boards dealt with a number of important problems.

We Win At The Royal
Last year's judging of swine at the Royal was a first prize contradiction. Just why hogs that were so close to perfection when slaughtered were worthy of so little attention when alive has never been explained.

Farm Forum
Floyd Griesbach, national secretary of Farm Forum is presently in the province and will be contacting groups and individuals from North Cape to East Point with a view to acquainting more people with what is recognized as the outstanding rural study group set-up in existence anywhere.

Electoral Reform
Our rural people have a keen and healthy interest in politics, an interest which the Federation, while non-political itself, is desirous of fostering and developing.

Let's Go To The Pig Barn!
The interest shown by our Royal visitors in the livestock at the Experimental Farm was a gracious compliment to our most important industry.

Had Narrow Escape In Toronto Suburbs

Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch MacSween, Brookfield, P. E. I. have received news of the narrow escape of their son, Horace MacSween, Toronto, when his car was struck by a freight train in the Toronto suburbs.

Mr. Horace MacSween, who left this Province in April, was driving the automobile when he was caught on 277 feet along the railway tracks by a slow-moving freight on the evening of November 5th. The driver and two passengers of the car escaped injury.

At the time of the accident the Governor's Bridge Ratepayers' Association, composed of residents in the district where the accident occurred, were discussing ways and means of getting a wig-wag erected at the crossing.

Larabee, Sunshine Island Dairy, Central Creameries Limited, W. A. Aitken, Hon. G. D. DeBlois, E. E. Bell and John Spencer.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

Believe it or not, but poet Byron penned the following fine tribute to a Newfoundland dog and then had it inscribed on the animal's monument.

"When some proud son of man returns to earth, Unknown to glory, but upheld by birth, The sculptor's art exhausts the pomp of woe, And storied urns record who rests below."

Not what he was, but what he should have been, But the poor dog, in life the finest friend, The first to welcome, foremost to defend; Whose honest heart is still his master's own, Who labors, fights, lives, breathes, for him alone, Unhonored falls, unnoticed all his watch, Denied in Heaven the soul he held on earth.

While man, vain insect hopes to be forgiven, And claims himself a sole exclusive heaven, O man! thou feeble tenant of an hour, Debased by slavery, or corrupt by power;

Who knows thee well, must quit thee with disgust, Degraded mass of animated dust! Thy love is lust; thy friendship, all a cheat; Thy smile's hypocrisy; thy words, deceit!

But nature vile, enabled but by name, Each kindred brute might bid thee blush for shame. Ye who perchance behold this simple urn, Pass on, it honors none ye wish to mourn;

To mark a friend's remains, these stones arise; I never knew but one — and here he lies."

Sir Walter Scott loved his dogs. He tells the following story of how returning home late he found the family in bed, and not being able to find his boot-jack in its usual place said to his dog: "Go fetch my boot-jack." The wise animal knowing what was wanted, began scratching at the room door, which the author opened. Immediately the dog went to a distant part of the house, and soon returned, carrying in his mouth the boot-jack, which his master had left that morning under a sofa.

Still more amazing, the dog may be trained not only the meaning of words, but to speak a few. The learned Leibniz reported in the French Academy that he had seen a dog in Germany which had been taught to pronounce certain words. The dog's instructor was a boy, who having observed in the dog's voice an indistinct resemblance to sounds made by humans, was determined to teach the animal to talk. It was a difficult task to be sure, but by great perseverance, in three years the dog was able to pronounce a few German words. It used to astonish visitors by calling for tea, coffee, chocolate, etc.

Music has a strange effect on some dogs, causing them to become restless, moan or cry, and finally to seek cover under a lounge. Others have been known to sit and listen to music with seeming delight.

Too, it is an established fact that the instruction communicated to dogs and other animals, has a hereditary effect on the progeny. If a dog is taught to perform certain feats, the young of that animal will be much easier initiated in the same tricks than other dogs. For example, the dog Bernard inherits the faculty of tracking footsteps in the snow, and the present English pointers are more accomplished in the field than the original race of Spanish spaniels.

And, strange but true, dogs are able to reason on the circumstances by which they are affected. I have myself seen dogs in Florida deceiving alligators. When about to cross a river, these dogs set up a great howl to bring the watchful sea creature near. When the alligators come to investigate the racket, the dogs ran along the shore for some distance, and then crossed the stream in safety. There are few who have not seen blind people guided by dogs through the streets to a spot where they usually do their panning.

It is a well known fact that dogs will travel hundreds of miles back to their old homes, by roads that are strange to them.

A London newspaper recently reported a case of a child playing on Roach's wharf with his pet dog. The child accidentally fell into the water, and the dog instantly went to his rescue. Seizing the little boy by his clothes, the dog brought him back to the wharf but could not get him out of the water. Thwarted in its attempted rescue, the courageous animal literally dragged him to the scene of the accident. When the half-drowned boy was pulled from the water, the faithful dog licked its face then jumped over the wharf and soon returned with the child's hat in its mouth.

Smuggling Of U. S. Cigarets On Increase

OTTAWA, Nov. 15 (CP) — The law is on its toes and watching constantly, but there are nevertheless ever-growing attempts to smuggle more and more low-priced United States cigarettes into Canada.

Officials said today no one can be sure just how many of the cigarettes are finding their way into Canadian markets illegally, but on the basis of the attempts made and the increased numbers of smugglers uncovered, the illegal movement appears to be gaining ground.

The market for the smuggled cigarettes expanded, said officials, after the government announced increased tobacco taxes, boosting the price of 20 cigarettes to 42 cents in most provinces. In Quebec, where a provincial tax also is paid, the price is 46 cents.

Montreal, said the officials, appeared to be the biggest market for the smugglers and the customs and R. C.M.P. officers have become particularly vigilant all along the eastern border.

The tobacco growers have appealed to the government to reduce the tax to arrest a falling-off in sales of Canadian cigarettes and reduce the smuggling. The Ontario Tobacco Growers Association claims the smugglers are finding outlets in large office buildings in almost every major Canadian city.

However, the government has declined to make any change, but stated it will reconsider the tax when the 1952-53 budget is made up next spring.

Can Eat Whale Meat On Fridays

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 15 (Reuters)—A Vatican authority laid down today that Roman Catholics may eat whale meat on Fridays and other days of abstinence from meat.

He was denying reports that the Archbishop of Vienna had ruled that the flesh of this mammal constituted "meat" as understood in the Roman Catholic Church's rules of abstinence.

The authority made it clear that the flesh of any animal living predominantly in the water was permitted to Roman Catholics on abstinence days, but this did not apply to aquatic fowl.
