SOCIETY TODAY READY TO COME TO THE RESCUE

Once during the depression, we were asked to pay a friendly visit to a young minister who had got into some kind of trouble. We found him one of those adventurous spirits who could never be kept within the bounds set by the caution of the past. As there were many in sore need in his district, he had abundant opportunity for adventure. As we were chatting together the telephone rang, and we could not but hear his reply to a question: "Oh he is concerned about the interest on those bonds while we were thinking of the needs of the people."

"Is this it?" we asked ourselves. "Has he been in difficulty for putting the claims of humanity over against the claims of property?" This does happen once in a while. In fact, the issue has a long history. When Moses went before Pharaoh to demand that Israelite slaves be allowed to go into the wilderness to worship their God, Pharaoh could think of nothing but the building of his cities. These slaves were his property, and so were the cities they were building. As one writer puts it: "Pharaoh saw only property rights in the labor of slaves; Moses saw the right of his people to freedom and happiness."

property rights in the lives of human beings. Russia has not cleared herself of the charge that she is trying to build up her vast territories by the unpaid labor of millions of slaves. It is not so very long ago that the same claims were made by slave owners in the western world. The conscience of Christendom is busy still with defining and re-defining "human rights" and seeing new implications in the principles of our holy faith. After all property rights and human rights should never be set over against each other. Property rights are also human rights. Justice is the basis of all social relationships and to secure the rewards of toil to the toiler is always one of the chief functions of the state. It was an ancient game, not without modern parallels, to seek to benefit one's own people by the spoils wrested from strangers, but such robbery has ultimately been more ruinous to the robbers than to the robbed. This is a lesson that has to be relearned in every generation for personal greed is always seeking new ways of enriching oneself at others' expense. Nevertheless, the people of our time have awakened to a new set of the state's responsibilities, namely the welfare of her people, and especially of those who cannot help themselves. Our fathers fought for freedom—the right to form one's own faith and to develop one's own powers and to pursue one's own ends without restraint from persons in power. Their victories marked a great advance on conditions prevailing before their time. For them Now society accepts responsibility for the welfare of those who cannot provide for their own needs by the exercise of their freedom. They may have neither the strength nor the opportunity; circumstances may have broken them; foes may have beaten them down. Those who have succeeded are under a sacred obligation to come to their rescue. The church of Christ sees now that the new law of love governs all human relationships. They have widened with the years. This is the Gospel of the Grace of God, and it insists that the grace that saved us who deserved only judgment requires us to extend the favors we can bestow to all who need them. This is the truth taught by Jesus' parable of "the Good Samaritan"—whatever another needs that I can give, I owe him, regardless of his race, creed, condition or attitude toward myself. The welfare state of today acknowledges this Christian obligation to serve its own people, and is now girding itself to bring the blessings we enjoy to the needy all over the world. We all are one whether we realize it or not. Thomas Carlyle once wrote: "A poor Irish widow, her husband having died in one of the lanes of Edinburgh went forth with her three children bare of all resource to solicit help from the charitable establishments of that city. "At this charitable establishment and then at that she was refused," referred to one to the other, help by none. . . till her strength and heart failed her she sank down with typhus fever, died and infected her lane with fever so that 17 other persons died there of fever in consequence" (quoted by Edgar Park.) The union with that widow which her fellow-citizens would not recognize in her need, they had to accept in her suffering. CALL TO SHARE We are all bound up in one bundle of life: whether we will or not, "we share each other's woes." Our call is to share each other's burdens and by so doing relieve them and save ourselves from the ills their misery would bring on all. Our United Appeal is one way of meeting this obligation. We heard one person criticize sharply people with means who refuse to contribute to this great cause, and one of his listeners added: "There are far more people who hand out a trifle just to get rid of the canvasser, when they could give substantial help if only they had the heart." "Our utmost for His highest" is the call of God in every such emergency. As St. Peter put this obligation: "As each has received a gift, employ it for one ano-

South Pinette Red Cross Tests

South Pinette joined the ranks of the aquatic minded Communities of Prince Edward Island this year and held a Swimming and Water Safety course conducted by Red Cross Leader, Miss Pauly MacDonald, Borden, from July 29th to August 9th.

South Pinette Women's Institute sponsored this worthwhile course with Mrs. Lloyd Morrison, capably acting as Chairman. Mrs. Morrison is not only to be congratulated on her fine work of organizing the Swimming course but also for actively participating in the classes herself and successfully passing her Beginner Swimming and Water Safety examination. On August 13th, Miss Margaret Jardine, Red Cross Assistant Field Supervisor examined an enthusiastic class of swimmers. Following is a list of the successful candidates who merited Red Cross Awards. Beginners: Mrs. Eileen Morrison, Lambert Pauley, Janet Buchanan, Barbara Cantello, Sterling Hubley, Joan Paxton, Devine MacTavish, Judy Buchanan, Donald Smith, Helen Hubley, Sandra MacPherson. Junior: Betty Jean Hubley, Harold Singleton.

Argyle Shore Red Cross Tests

Argyle Shore made its debut into the swimming world on August 5th, when it enrolled its residents in a course of Red Cross instruction in Swimming and Water Safety. The Argyle Shore Women's Institute sponsored the swimming course with Mrs. Fred MacPhail acting as Chairman. Miss Eleanor Farmer, Red Cross Leader, Charlottetown, instructed a class of 36 Beginners. This is an excellent start for a first year programme and the results of examination after the two weeks of instruction are as follows.

Beginners: Andrew Elliot, Harvey Jay, Burrows MacPhail, Anna MacPhail, William MacPhail, Elaine MacPhail, Harvey Inman, Gary MacPhail, Charles MacPhail, Sterling MacPhail, Gary MacPhail, Mary MacPhail, Noel Poits.

Que. House To Open Nov. 13

QUEBEC (CP)—The next session of the Quebec legislature will open Nov. 13, Premier Duplessis announced Friday. It will be the second of the 25th legislature elected in 1956. Mr. Duplessis said the government announced the date of the annual session early in order to avoid delays in the preparation

Quebec Traffic Fatalities Up

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec traffic fatalities are on the increase despite a decrease in the number of all highway accidents, says president Wilbrod Bherer of the Provincial Highway Safety Committee. Commenting on Quebec revenue department statistics, Mr. Bherer told a press conference Thursday there still is a great need for routing public opinion to the seriousness of the traffic situation. He noted a total of 26,362 traffic accidents of all types in the

HIT AT SPEED TRAPS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Royal Automobile Club of Canada has condemned the improper use of speed-measuring devices as "exploitation of motorists rather than an aid to law enforcement." Legislation restricting the use of electronics and other speed devices should be formulated until the devices have been tested and approved, said club manager George A. McNamee.

NESBITT IS EQUERRY

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. Aird Nesbitt, 49, of Montreal will act as equerry to Queen Elizabeth during her visit to Canada in October, the prime minister's office announced Friday. Col. E. H. Ainslie, 51, of Waskada, Man., and Otiawa will act as the Queen's medical officer. He serves as senior consultant for army medical services here.

SPECIAL MEETING

Of ratepayers will be held Monday, August 26th at 7:30 p.m. for the purpose of granting authority to borrow a sum of money sufficient to install a combination sewer system in the Village of Spring Park. The Commissioners of the Village of Spring Park, J. Edmond Arseneault, Chairman.

Fail To Recover Body of Alpinist

TERRACE, B.C. (CP)—The body of Maj. Rex Gibson, president of the Alpine Club of Canada, may remain lashed to a rock on the Northern British Columbia mountain peak where he died. The veteran climber and two United States alpinists fell 300 feet Sunday down the side of 9,000-foot Mount Howson, 40 miles east of here.

Maj. Gibson about 65, died from internal injuries Tuesday. The other two climbers, Dr. Sterling Hendricks of Silver Springs, Md., and Don Hubbard of Washington, are recovering in hospital here. Col. George Phillips said Friday Mrs. Gibson said her husband often expressed the wish that no risk should be taken in bringing him out if he died on a mountain. Coroner Larry E. Pruden and the police were conferring with the B.C. attorney-general's department on the question of removing the body.

E. Royalty Red Cross Swimming

A small but well prepared group of swimmers assembled for Red Cross examination at East Royalty on August 21st, when Miss Joan Murphy, Red Cross Field Supervisor tested the class in their aquatic skills. Mrs. Neil Darrach acted as Chairman of the local Swimming and Water Safety Committee and procured Miss Janet Owen, Charlottetown, as Instructor of Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety. Following is a list of the successful candidates. Beginners: Joanne Clements, Helen Darrach, Marilyn Darrach, Joyce Holmes, Debbie Wall, Valerie Robins. Junior: Allan Robins, Barry Wall, John Andrew, Donnie Corcoran, Vickie Robertson.
