In the great majority of contracts the result of the hand depends largely on how the opponents' cards are divided.
The outcome may depend on where certain key cards are located, whether finesses will work, whether suits will break favorably.
Where these factors are beyond declarer's control, he can do no more than accept with equanimity what the fates have dealt him.
But there are many hands that appear, on the surface, to be entirely a matter of luck, which upon closer observation, are really a matter of skill. The declarer can frequently control the result of such hands, and convert what appears to be a doubtful contract into one that is sure to

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
I S L O N G F E L L O W
One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
