SALLY DOWS,

An After War Romance of the South.

Perhaps there was something of this in his face. "I thought you were looking a little white, com'le," she said quietly...

But he was already leaning towards her with his dark, earnest eyes fixed upon her in a way she could no longer mistake...

Sally had listened to Courtland's declaration with pretty knitted brows, the faintest air of color and a half laughing, half superior disapprobation.

When he had finished, she uttered a plaintive little sigh. "You oughtn't to have said that, com'le, but you and me are too good friends to let that stand between us...

"But I cannot," he said, quickly, "if I could I should be unworthy of even your friendship. If you must reject it, do not make me feel the shame of thinking you believe me capable of wanton trifling..."

She smoothed down the folds of her frock, sitting sideways on the bank, one little foot touching the road. "You mustn't speak that way to me, as if you were speaking to a stranger..."

It don't divide their plainness. It don't separate father and son, sister and brother; and even down they know they can always outvote you five to one!

For the first time Miss Sally saw Courtland's calm blood fly to his cheek and kindle in his eye.

The Telephone Company OF P. E. ISLAND. PARTIES using the Telephone would do talking much more satisfactory if they would observe the following rules: 1st. Speak with the mouth about four inches from the transmitter. 2nd. Speak in a moderate tone of voice, not too loud, and distinctly. 3rd. Place the telephone so as to cover the ear, just as if you wished to shut out all other sounds. Do not cross feet, hand on the ear. It is possible to talk and be heard when standing back two or three feet from the transmitter, if you speak loud enough, but it is not a pleasant mode of conversation, is entirely unnecessary, and a needless waste of wind and lungs, besides being very annoying to all within range of your voice.

Father, Mother, and Daughter cured of Weakness & Distress in the Stomach, Pain across the Back and Limbs, Sick Headache, Dizziness, Vomiting, and habitual Constipation using Groder's Syrup. Groder's Syrup, which has wrought a permanent cure in the above cases, is a pure and medicinal preparation without any harmful ingredients. The father speaks: I have had a long and painful illness, and have been unable to eat or sleep for several months. I have tried many remedies, but have not found any relief. I have heard of Groder's Syrup, and have bought a bottle. I have used it for a few days, and I feel much better. I can eat and sleep now, and I am able to go about my usual business. I am very grateful to Groder's Syrup for what it has done for me. I have written to you to let you know how well I am getting on, and to let you know how much I appreciate your medicine. I am, Sir, your obedient servant, Gertrude McKervey, St. John, N. B.
