Floor Showroom Proves Big Local Attraction

The second floor showroom of Crockett and Storey Ltd., on Kent Street is at present the scene of much excitement among furniture shoppers. With the co-operation of Snyder's Ltd., of Waterloo, Ontario, and Montreal, and of Moore and MacLeod Ltd., of Charlottetown, Crockett and Storey's are pointing the way to the modern mode of comfortable and pleasant surroundings in the home.

Floor Showroom Proves Big Local Attraction

Over 300 suites of furniture are shown in the exhibition, combined with odd tables, chairs, desks and lamps. Each suite is placed on rich carpet of various hues, and backed by exceptionally smart draperies from the stock of Moore and MacLeod's.

Floor Showroom Proves Big Local Attraction

A number of the suites are sectional, and one of the most outstanding of these is finished in a burnt orange covering, complemented by a brown pattern throughout. A settee at the end of the showroom is outstanding in its shades of soft green with gold metallic threads woven throughout the leaf pattern.

Floor Showroom Proves Big Local Attraction

It was noticed that the majority of the cushions on the settees were filled with down and feathers, eliminating the springs which have formerly been used. In almost all the woodwork, both in suites and occasional pieces is of Swedish - Bleached wood which blends extremely well with the many shades of lime green, chartreuse, brown and scarlet which are shown in the upholstered pieces.

Floor Showroom Proves Big Local Attraction

The draperies by Moore and MacLeod's are many and varied, the newest being those that are hand blocked and printed. Combined with the excellent display of furniture shown, it makes for a decided pick-up for those who are planning new furniture for their homes.

Allowances To Members For Special Session

OTTAWA, Sept. 4 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said today in the Commons the day may come when members should study the question of increasing parliamentary indemnities, but he does not think this is the time for such a study.

Allowances To Members For Special Session

He believes the public feels at this time that members should be thinking about the situation of the country as a whole rather than of themselves. He made the statement after Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) suggested that indemnities of cabinet ministers and of members be brought more into line with the amount paid by corporations to men in responsible positions. Cabinet ministers get $18,000 and members $6,000.

Allowances To Members For Special Session

The discussion occurred on a bill limiting the allowance paid to members for this special emergency session to $25 a day for the 18 days spent in Ottawa. Under former legislation, the $25-a-day allowance applied as well to any adjournment period. The present session is adjourning to Feb. 14 and members will not be paid during the recess. The allowances will not continue for one week after the adjournment as some members had expected.

Allowances To Members For Special Session

Mr. Hansell said he felt that members should receive a little more than the $25-a-day allowance for this session. They had sat from 8 a. m. to 11 p. m. six days a week. If they were in labor circles, consideration would be given for overtime.

Allowances To Members For Special Session

Mr. Hansell, a Christian Church minister, said he did not think there was a church that would pay him as much as he was getting as a member of Parliament, so he felt free to deal with the salary matter.

Allowances To Members For Special Session

If the House stands adjourned until Feb. 14, members will not receive their seasonal indemnity for this special session, because Parliament would adjourn and a new session—the fourth of Canada's 21st Parliament—would be opened the following day. The full seasonal indemnity is paid only if a session last for 65 days of sittings.
