

Anthony Scores Thrilling Victory Over Yvon Durelle

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Floored in the first round, hard-hitting Tony Anthony came raging back to stop game Yvon Durelle of Baie St. Anne, N.B. in 31 seconds of the seventh round of a fierce battle of light heavyweight contenders at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Referee Ruby Goldstein halted the terrific scrap after the lean, 23-year-old New Yorker had "tagged" the 28-year-old British Empire 175-pound champion with a searing volley of blows to the head.

Durelle was reeling and about to fall when Goldstein intervened. The brawny fighting fisherman, who had been dropped just before the end of the sixth round after absorbing an awesome beating, fell soundly to end the sixth as Durelle got up at the two count.

The defeat ruined Durelle's hopes of getting a shot at light heavyweight champion Archie Moore's title and also ended his unbeaten streak at 12. The two had fought to a draw nine months ago in Detroit.

This was Anthony's first outing since he was knocked out by Moore in the seventh round of title fight in Los Angeles six months ago.

DOWN THE BACK STRETCH

We had the pleasure of visiting the Dr. George Bishop stable, which is located on a 20-acre part of the late John R. Dennis property on Malpeque Road, about two miles from the city. An old barn, 30' x 40' of good, sound structure was rebuilt with cement flooring, covered with planking, and divided into five box stalls and seven single stalls. It is equipped with electric lights, a propane water heater, chutes for carrying grain from a storage bin in the loft, and a lot of other things that make for

HUNTER'S CORNER

Predators Are All Kinds And Hard To Deal With

Recently a quiet spoken chap approached and made a significant remark: "I have heard a lot of late about the losses caused to our game by predators but never a word about the two-legged king—in my opinion it's the poachers who are really causing the trouble." He hit the nail squarely on the head that time. Hunters will holler for a raise in bounties and sometimes one wonders how sincere they really are. Are they concerned about the future of our wildlife

McTigue-Sike Battle Was Great Historic Contest

Sir,—One of the most historic contests ever staged was between battling Siki and Mike McTigue, which was fought in Dublin Ireland on St. Patrick's Day.

Owing to there being trouble in old Ireland the arena in which the fight was to be held was guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets.

On the day of the fight Siki received a letter threatening him with death if he entered the ring, but he could not read English and his interpreters tore up the message, the threats to blow up the arena and kill Siki proved to be idle.

The famous meeting between Siki and McTigue was held in 1923. The arena was jammed to the rafters with a wild, shouting, frenzied crowd of Irishmen. It was a gruelling battle from the opening bell, and all through the fight the wild crowd roared at McTigue "Come on McTigue, nobody can lick an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day."

It goes without saying that McTigue won the decision. Siki who was a Senegalese had won the title from George Carpentier in Paris in 1922 in a contest that proved that you never can tell before a fight who the winner will be.

The Frenchman was a national hero, a great fighter, graceful and with outstanding ring ability. Carpentier lost that fight by playing cat and mouse with the negro in the early rounds instead of fighting.

The French idol had been stunned by a punch from a man he had never fully recovered from a scared Siki, Siki suddenly adopted the roll of "killer." Carpentier was hammered to the canvass and remained in that position with one leg held high as if to guard himself from further attack from his infuriated opponent.

There is another little story dealing with a fight fought in Ireland but this time the bout took place in December rather than on St. Patrick's Day.

On December 19, 1787 the Eng-

DROPPED IN FIRST

It looked like curtains early for Tony when he was dropped by a right and left to the head in the first round. Anthony got up at two and was given the mandatory eight.

But he recovered quickly and from the second round on handed the brawny Canadian a terrific battering. He staggered Durelle in the second, third, and fourth rounds, outboxed him in the fifth and almost knocked him out in the sixth.

Goldstein and two judges—Harold Barnes and Leo Birnbaum—all gave Durelle the first round, and gave Anthony the other six.

Durelle, with a swelling right eye, sat disconsolate in his dressing room after the fight and muttered over and over: "I'm sorry."

"I just couldn't get going," said the powerful fisherman. "I was off—I can't explain it. I couldn't let go of my hands. I kept thinking 'they're moving too slow—they're moving too slow,' but I couldn't let them go."

WANTED TO GO ON
"The referee shouldn't have stopped it. I was all right."

Durelle argued with Goldstein when the referee stopped the fight, and he said in his dressing room that he could have kept going.

His manager, Chris Shaban, had no complaint over the referee's decision.

"The way Yvon was going, it was just as well," said Shaban. "He didn't have his usual punching power."

Early in the sixth, Durelle, who had hit low twice earlier in the fight, complained of a low blow. Referee Goldstein told him the punch was not low and told both to watch their punches.

Then Anthony went to work in that big round. He hammered his foe with eight consecutive punches thrown at blinding speed. Then he ripped off a left hook to the jaw that drove the reeling Ruelle to the ropes. A right to the body ended a barrage that felled Durelle.

Dr. Alexander Schiff went over to examine Durelle after the sixth ended.

Anthony tore after Durelle in the seventh and soon had him reeling, bringing Goldstein to the rescue.

"Dr. Schiff had told me to watch him," said the referee. "When I stopped it he was getting to a point where he couldn't defend himself."

A crowd of 3,500 paid approximately $10,000 for the telecast thriller.

It was the sixth time Durelle has been stopped. He has lost 19 and won 72. Anthony racked up his 31st victory and his 24th knockout. He has lost five times, always by knockouts.

Durelle weighed 176, Anthony 173 1/2.

During the weigh-in Friday the Canadian had to sweat off half a pound when he came in at 176 1/2.
