

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS.

Edward Stone stood impatiently upon the steps of his Uncle Dan's stately residence. There was not the slightest sign of life anywhere around; the whole front part of the house was closed and darkened; and having rung several times without eliciting any response, he was about to conclude that there was no one within hearing, when a head thrust out of an upper window.

'Young man, go around to the side door.'

Considerably startled by this unexpected address, the young man obeyed. Upon the porch, brushing away the leaves which covered it, was a young girl of fifteen. She looked very pretty as she stood there, the bright autumnal sunshine falling on the round white arms and uncovered head.

Setting down her broom she ushered him into a medium-sized, plainly-furnished room, which gave no indication of the reputed wealth of its owner.

The young man took a seat, brushing a few flecks of dust from the lapel of his coat, ran his fingers through his carefully arranged locks, and thus delivered himself:

'Toll your master that his nephew, Edward Stone, is here.'

A faint smile touched the rosy lips, and with a demure 'Yes, sir,' the girl vanished.

A few minutes later an elderly gentleman entered, with intelligent, strongly marked features, and a shrewd look in his eyes, which seemed to take the mental measure of his friend at a glance.

'Well, sir, what is your business with me?'

'I am your nephew, Edward Stone.'

'So my daughter told me. What do you want?'

'I came to pay my respects to you, sir.'

'Yes; but what do you want me to do for you?'

'I was thinking of going into business and I thought I would come and talk it over with you, and ask you to give me a lift.'

'What better capital do you want than what you already have? A strong able-bodied young man wanting a lift? You ought to be ashamed of yourself! What have you been doing?'

Edward's face flushed with anger at this unceremonious language; but feeling that he could not afford to quarrel with his wealthy relative, he gave no other indication of it.

'I've been in a store since I left school two years ago.'

'Saved nothing for your salary, I suppose?'

'No; it's only five hundred dollars; no more than enough for my expenses.'

'Humph! You are able to dress yourself out of it, I perceive. I have known men to rear and educate a large family on five hundred dollars a year; and if you have been unable to save anything, you certainly are not fit to go into business on your own account.'

'When I was at your age, my income was less than three hundred dollars, and I saved half of it. What is the business you want to engage in?'

'Stationery and books. Six hundred dollars will buy it, as the owner is obliged to sell—a rare chance. I don't ask you to give me the amount, only to lend it; I will give my note with interest.'

'Young man, I have several such papers already. You can have all of them for five dollars, and I warn you that it would prove a bad investment at that. I can give you some advice though, which if you'll follow will be worth to you a good many times over the amount you ask. But you won't do it.'

'How do you know that?' said Edward with a smile; who began to feel more at home with his eccentric relative. 'I'd like to hear it, anyway.'

'Well, here it is. Go back to your place in the store, and save three dollars a week from your salary, which you can easily do, learning meantime all you possibly can about the business you intend to pursue. At the end of four years you will have all the capital you seek, together with sufficient experience and judgment to know how to use it. And, better still, it will be yours, earned by your own industry and self-denial, and worth more to you than ten times that amount got in any other way. Then come and see me again.'

'You'd rather have my money than advice, I dare say,' added Mr. Stone, as Edward arose to go, 'but we'll be better friends four years hence than if I let you have it.' Sit down, nephew; the train you will have to take won't leave until six in the evening. You must stay to tea, I want you to see what a complete little house-keeper I have, and make you acquainted with her.'

'Polly!' he cried, opening the door into the hall.

August Flower.

The immense sale and great popularity of Green's August Flower in all towns and villages in the civilized world has caused many imitators to adopt similar names, expecting to reap a harvest for themselves at the expense of the afflicted. This medicine was introduced in 1868, and for the cure of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, with their effects, such as Sour Stomach, Sickheadache, Indigestion, Palpitation of the Heart, vertigo, etc., etc., it never has failed to our knowledge. Three doses will relieve any case of Dyspepsia. Two million bottles sold last year. Price 75 cents. Samples 10 cents.

AN ANALYTICAL SANITARY INSTITUTION,
54, Holborn-viaduct, E. C., London, Aug. 18, 1879
REPORT ON THE LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY:

'We have visited the bottling stores of Greenlees Brothers, and have selected from the vats, samples of their Lorne Highland Whisky, and have subjected them to careful examination and analysis. The samples were very fragrant, mellow, and of pleasant flavor, and possessed all the characteristics of pure and well-matured Scotch Whisky of the first quality.'
