Serving Liquor With Meals Is Advocated In Maritimes

Maritime restaurants are operating at a disadvantage in the drive for greater tourist trade due to restrictive liquor legislation in the Atlantic provinces, said E. di Tomasso, Montreal, National President of the Canadian Restaurant Association, in Amherst. He will be in Charlottetown June 3, 4, and 5th.

E. di TOMASSO

Mr. Tomasso stressed that he was not advocating a series of low class drinking establishments masquerading as restaurants in order to obtain a liquor license. The restaurateur must always strive primarily to serve the best possible food under the most attractive possible conditions. But experience has shown that a sensible relaxing of liquor laws produces improvements in general restaurant and hotel standards which in turn benefits the whole province.

Mr. Tomasso cited the action taken in Western Canada as an admirable approach to liquor legislation amendment. By stipulating that restaurant liquor sales do not exceed food sales, abuses of licensing privileges had been largely prevented. At the same time restaurateurs were given an additional source of revenue with which to offset rising costs without having to pass them along to the customer in the form of increased meal prices.

Results of this action are also to be seen in a general upgrading of restaurants in the area. Without the changes in licensing laws many of the ultra, smart establishments could not exist, and many redecorating and improvement projects could not have been undertaken.

The restaurateurs in the Atlantic provinces cannot compete for tourist trade on an equal basis until they are given equal opportunities to improve their business.

CCF Fights Lone Battle Against Energy Board

OTTAWA (CP)—The CCF Wednesday fought a lone battle in the Commons against the government's proposed National Energy Board.

Meantime, while supporting the general principle of the energy board bill, J. W. Pickersgill (L-Bonavista-Twillingate) suggested the real reason the government is seeking cabinet power over oil exports and imports is so that it can do something "in the secret of the closet" that it wouldn't dare bring before Parliament.

The CCF was swamped 176 to 8 in a vote on its motion that the subject matter of the bill be referred to a Commons committee for study. The Liberals joined with the Progressive Conservatives in the vote.

Frank Howard (CF—Skeena) immediately moved another motion, that consideration of the bill be postponed for six months. This also would kill the legislation this session. CCF speakers then took up most of the time remaining to the end of the day's sitting, leaving the bill at the second reading—approval in principle—stage.

Mr. Pickersgill renewed Liberal objections to a provision in the bill that would empower the cabinet to limit oil imports in future.

"It's just absurd," he said, to argue as the government has that such power is necessary in case an emergency arises.

"We don't give the government the power to declare war," he said. Parliament had to be called for that; obviously no oil emergency could arise so quickly that Parliament could not be called to deal with it.

REALLY AN IMPROVEMENT? Speaking briefly Opposition Leader Pearson asked whether the bill actually is any improvement on existing legislative measures controlling excessive profit by pipeline promoters or other groups.

It was also creating a false impression, he suggested, for the prime minister to say as he had Tuesday that existing export applications will be processed immediately the board is created. That processing was bound to take some time. It was not a simple process.

It also appeared to be a "pretty rash statement" by Mr. Diefenbaker when he said the bill gives assurance that Canadian gas consumers will pay no more than those in the United States for the Canadian product. There were a lot of factors to be considered in setting export prices.

Finally, he criticized the bill's provision leaving the cabinet in control, if necessary, of all oil imports. Parliament should not be ignored in such an important matter.

N. Rustico Man Draws $20 Fine

A North Rustico resident drew a minimum fine of $20 and costs or 10 days when convicted in Queen's County Magistrate's Court yesterday on a charge of failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

Evidence disclosed that the accused was bringing his seriously ill son to hospital in Charlottetown at the time of the accident near Winsloe and Magistrate Gilbert A. Gaudet, QC, felt that the circumstances warranted the minimum fine being imposed.

A Charlottetown man appearing on a similar charge had his case adjourned until June 3 at the request of the Crown.

Big Season For Tourists Is Expected
