On Banks and Banking in Canada.

This is a treatise recently read before the Ontario Institute of Accountants by Mr. J. H. Menzies, F. C. A., who, having prepared a table of Analysis exhibiting the various features of the business of the Canadian banks requisite to show their condition, expounds and illustrates the several columns of the Analysis in a series of short essays, which are also an exposition of the whole banking system of Canada. These essays discuss such subjects as the currency and the true basis of bank circulation, which it is contended flows naturally from the deposits; the proposal to issue a Government currency or to secure the bank circulation by Government bonds being condemned; the effect of the dislocation in the relative values of gold and silver, and the depreciation of silver, on the agricultural interests of America; the interest of the banks on the present commercial system; the elements of their earning power; Reserves; Rests, which the author holds ought to be invested, when realized, in securities other than trade advances, by which means the Double Liability might be done away with; Government Inspection, which is condemned, while professional audit of Bank Statements, in use everywhere save in Canada, is held to be essential, if confidence is to be continued in our banks. The paper cannot fail to be most interesting to economists, to business men, and to everyone connected with banks, and especially bank shareholders, to whom it may serve as a useful guide in estimating the condition and value of their property. An appendix contains criticisms on the paper contributed by Mr. George Hague, General Manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, and others. It is published by Williamson & Co., Toronto, and Dawson Bros., Montreal. Price, twenty-five cents.

Two Months in the Ice.

A very interesting dog story is told by the captain of the schr. Willie R., which was in port last week. About the 14th of March last, a dog belonging to the captain of the above schooner, and while the vessel was out sealing, left the vessel off Cape Arguilla, Nfld., and was believed to have been drowned. On May 7th past, a dog in a very helpless condition was found on the ice 75 miles north of East Point, P. E. I., and carried ashore. The dog was barely alive. His paws were terribly worn down from scratching the ice in his struggle for existence, while his front teeth were gone, presumably from picking the seal bones found on the ice. The captain of the Willie R., then at Newfoundland, hearing a description in connection with its discovery, was agreeably surprised to learn that it was his dog which had strayed from the vessel while sealing, and which had been nearly two months on the ice, and he expects to have him sent on shortly. It is a singular story, and the sufferings of the poor animal during that time must have been terrible.—North Sydney Herald.

Beautiful Words.

The following beautiful words by Ruskin are well worth bearing in mind:

"All the best things and treasures of this world are not to be produced by each generation for itself; but we are all intended, not to carve our work in snow, that will melt, but each and all of us to be continually rolling a great, white, gathering snow-ball higher and higher, larger and larger, along the Alps of the human power. Thus the science of nations is to be accumulative from father to son; each receiving all that was known, and adding its own gain. The history and poetry of nations are to be accumulative; each generation treasuring the history and songs of its ancestors, adding its own history and its own songs. And the art of nations is to be accumulative; just as science and history are; the work of living men not superseding, but building itself upon the work of the past; all growing together into one mighty temple; the rough stones and the smooth all finding their place, and rising, day by day, in richer and higher pinnacles to heaven.

The old world was parted by deep gulfs. There were three of especial depth and width, across, which it was hard for sympathy to fly. These were the distinction of race, sex, and condition. But the good news that Christ died for all men, and will live in all men, has thrown a bridge across, or rather has filled them up; so the apostle bursts into triumphant proclamation: "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."
