The UPEI Panthers kicked off their pre-season on a good note last weekend, winning the Stu Aberdeen tournament in Acadia, topping home-town Acadia 60-56 in the deciding game. The game was tight, with UPEI up only 3 points with 9 seconds remaining, but Sherone Edwards was sent to the line and capitalized, keeping the Panthers up for good. The win sealed the tournament for them, giving them only their second Aberdeen tournament in seventeen years. Edwards was named to the tournament all-star team, and also named tournament MVP, scoring 45 total points and grabbing 17 boards in 2 games. Engen Nurumbi, a rookie forward for the Panthers, was also named to the tournament all-star team, after scoring 11 points in the final game. The Panthers hope that their unblemished pre-season record gives them momentum for the regular season. Their first game is November 13th, while their first home game is Nov. 20th, hosting St. FX.

In an unprecedented comeback, the Boston Red Sox overcame an 0-3 defeat in the ALCS to beat the New York Yankees in a deciding game seven match-up, 10-3. Johnny Damon broke out of his slump in a big way, busting out 2 home runs, cashing in 6 in the process. The Yankees were able to manage a small comeback in the late innings, getting a few runs off of Pedro Martinez in a relief appearance, but the Bo Sox were able to fight it off, keeping a solid lead for the rest of the game. No team in the history of baseball had been able to come back from a 3-0 deficit in a 7 game series. The Red Sox hope to make history again, reaching the World Series for the first time in over 17 years, by winning the coveted championship for the first time since 1918, when they sold Babe Ruth to the Yankees, starting the supposed "Curse of the Bambino".

The program would also give professors experience in another country. It has raised excitement already with a portion of the faculty, even though the project is still tentative.

The first university in the program is Sichuan University. This diverse school offers many programs including: arts, sciences, engineering and technology, law and many others. Sichuan and UPEI have set up a four year program consisting of two years abroad and two years on the island. This university also has numerous oversea experts from Russia, Australia, America, France, India and Canada to name a few.

The second school in cooperation is the Beijing School of Business and Technology, which is actually a school of liberal arts. Beijing offers a first year UPEI experience for the Chinese student in their home country. They get to know how things work by truly being immersed in English education, based on a UPEI general first year curriculum.

"I really like the idea," said Zee He, a local student formerly from Beijing. "It gives Chinese students a chance to really study something." Continued on page 4
