Intemperance.

All the crimes on earth do not destroy so many of the human race, nor alienate so much property as intemperance.—Lord Bacon.

I wish some of our great statesmen would walk through our great towns, and would go from house to house with some of the devoted clergymen who know the condition of the people. I wish they would come and hear the biographies of intense misery which are to be found under the humblest roofs; and when they have learned these things, and found that they are all to be traced up to one black fountain—intoxicating drink—I believe they would lay aside their political questions and conflicts, and take in hand that which touches the very root of the life and morals of the people.....What are we about? How is it that the men who profess to be statemen can waste their time and the time of the Ligislature before they take this subject in hand.—Cardinal Manning.

The giant evil—yea crime—of our day is intemperance....Two persons stand at the threshold to protect the incoming generation from becoming an easy prey to the devourers of health, happiness and heaven The natural protectors of our youth are the parents and the teacher, as home and schools are the citadels for their defence. Formation, not reformation, is now the educational watchword which woman has proclaimed as the signal to be sent to all her allies in the world, and the two words—Woman and Temperance—each the symbol of the good and the true, shall be forever united.—Thomas W. Bicknell of Boston, President of the National Educational Association in 1884.

It is in short intoxication that fills our gaols. It is intoxication that fills our lunatic asylum. It is intoxication that fills our workhouses with poor Were it not for this cause, pauperism would be nearly extinguished in England.—Charles Buxton.

It is evident that, so far from being a conservator of health, alcohol is an active and powerful cause of disease, interfering as it does with the respiration, the circulation and the nutrition; nor is any other result possible.—Professor Youmans, New York.

It is the moral ruin which it works in the soul which gives it the denomination of giant wickedness. If all who are intemperate drank to insensibility, and on awakening could arise from the debauch with intellect and heart uninjured, it would strip the crime of its most appalling evils.—Dr. Lyman Beecher.

The use of beer is found to produce a species of degeneration of all the organs..... Intellectually, a stupor amounting almost to paralysis arrests the reason, changing all the higher faculties into a mere animalism, sensual, selfish, sluggish, varied only with paroxysms of anger that are senseless and brutal. In appearance the beer-drinker may be the picture of health, but in reality he is most incapable of resisting disease. Compared with inebriates who use different kinds of alcohol, he is more incurable, and more generally diseased. It is our observation that beer drinking in this country produces the lowest kind of inebriety, closely allied to criminal insanity. The most dangerous class of ruffians in our large cities are beer-drinkers. Recourse to beer as a substitute for other forms of alcohol merely increases the danger and fatality.—Scientific American.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Farmer's Complaint.

SIR,—I wish to have published in THE EXAMINER the way the farmers' wives and daughters are treated in coming to market in Charlottetown. The City Council and the Mayor of the city have charge of the Market House, and are the makers of the laws governing it. I don't think any of them would like to see their wives or daughters drive five or ten miles over the bad roads that now exist in the country. You cannot get more than two miles of road within ten miles of the city but what Capt. Connolly has had his mud maker on, and I assure you that every place he dropped the shear the mud is there axle deep. They wend their way till they arrive at the Market House. There they meet a burly looking policeman, who orders them not to tie their horses there or he will take them to the pound, and that will cost a dollar. The poor farmer's wife has to leave the horse stand and carry her baskets up two flights of stairs, trembling with the cold, there to be met by the tax gatherer, who, in an uncouth way, demands his toll. After getting permission to leave her baskets, she has then to go and look up quarters for her horse. I thought when C. R. got to the Council Board that the farmers' wives would get justice dealt out to them, and that Mr. McLaren would have to look up another ship to sail in and not the Market House, at the expense of the poor farmers who attend market, many of whom it would suit better to get a lunch after driving in over the bad roads than paying 10 or 15 cents over to Mr. McLaren. I remain, yours,

FARMER.

Gents,—Please ship us per G T R, freight prepaid, three (3) gross more of your Anti-Dandruff. This makes six gross, or 864 bottles, purchased from you since January 16th, 1892, a little more than two months. The large demand is due to the merits of the preparation, as our customers to whom we have sold it certify. We find it not only removes the dandruff and scurf, but it is an elegant hair-dressing for the hair. Clean to use and has an agreeable odor. It is one of the best preparations we know of to promote the growth of the hair and prevent its falling out. Wishing you continued success and an extended sale, We remain,

Yours truly,

Ode to P. E. Island.

Sweet Garden of the Gulf!
Of thee I love to sing;
Fair Isle so richly blest
By Heaven's bounteous King!
Here peace and concord reign,
And fruitful fields abound;
The seasons of the year
With plenteousness are crown'd.

Thy valleys and thy hills
Are clad in emerald sheen;
Thy gardens teem with fruit,
Fair flowers and choicest green;
No land can be more blest
Than this sweet home of ours,
For none have brighter skies
Or more refreshing showers.

Through spring and summer days
Sweet birds of plumage fair,
Re echo sweetest tones
Upon the fragrant air;
When autumn days are o'er
And ice and snow appear,
The keen and bracing breeze
Brings exercise and cheer.

While other lands may boast
Of ever-springing flowers,
Of more luxuriant fruits
And longer summer hours;
Yet, in our own sweet home
I see more to admire,
And more to satisfy
The human heart's desire.

W. E. ENMAN.

Will She Be Spared?

EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF A CATITAL PUNISHMENT VERDICT IN FINLAND.

The London Daily News Helsingfors correspondent sends the latest details of the extraordinary case of Mme. Sainio. It will be remembered that on one morning last spring her husband, with whom she had lived most happily, was found dead, poisoned, as it afterwards appeared, by his wife, a mere girl just out of her teens. The evening before had been spent happily, and the wife had seemed more than usually merry and pleasant It was shown at the trial that M. Sainio had before going to bed, asked his wife to give him a quinine capsule, as he did not feel quite well. "The devil then flew into me," she declared, and she deliberately gave him a strychnine capsule instead, and having kissed him, ran into her room and buried her head in the pillow that she might be deaf to his shrieks. The young woman, who is well educated, pretty and not without accomplishments, confessed her guilt, and was condemned to undergo a fearful sentence. She was first to have her arm hacked off, then to be beheaded, and finally to be burned. Her lawyers have since brought the matter before the senate. It is horrible to learn that this sentence has been confirmed. The remaining chance is to bring the case before the emperor himself. Capital punishment has not been abolished by law in Finland, although it is long since a sentence was carried out. "Some time ago," adds the correspondent, "I met a woman who was an eye-witness of an execution which was carried through in the way indicated by Mme. Sainio's sentence, and her description of the scenes was horrible in the extreme. Nobody here doubts that the Czar will spare her life, but the anxiety this wretched young woman must be in is pitiable to think of."

— Montreal Gazette: The Government report on the United States foreign trade for 1891-2 shows that 29.79 per cent. of the total imports came from, and 53 30 per cent. of the total exports go to, countries under the British flag. The tail twisters may twist and the ward orators roar, but such figures represent a force in the business world that the anti-British element will not move to any act of hostility. The foreign trade of the British Empire is the mainstay of the foreign commerce of the Republic.

IT is a singular fact that the cheapness of an article should even temporarily retard its sale, and yet that was the experience of Messrs. Tuckett & Son in the introduction of their now famous "Myrtle Navy" tobacco. People who had been in the habit of smoking the finest Virginia tobacco, could not for a time be made to believe that they were offered the same article at about one half the old price, and it was only by slow degree that they were induced to put the question to the test of an actual trial. When they did adopt that test, however, it never failed to satisfy them. ....

SPECIAL FARES.—Through the kindness of Mr. Unsworth, arrangements have been made to allow all friends throughout the Island who purpose attending the Masonic Bazaar, which opens December 6th, the privilege of doing so by purchasing one first-class ticket. These tickets will be issued on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, good to return any day, including Saturday, Dec. 11th. A certificate signed by the Sec'y. of Bazaar Committee must be presented to the conductor on the return trip. These certificates will be obtainable at the Bazaar only. 25 28 & wy—n25

The Chinese consul-general at San Francisco issued a proclamation for the purification of Chinatown, to protect the city from cholera. So prompt was the response that in twenty-four hours the town had undergone a transformation that fifty policemen and a score of ordinances could not have effected in six months.

A railroad in England has electric lamps on its cars, and by dropping a penny in the slot passengers can have a half-hour light. It goes out automatically.

An ancient Egyptian scythe, found near the Nile in 1890, is on exhibition in London. It is of wood, with a set of fine flint saws.
