Take Steps Towards Latin American Common Market

By JULIUS GOLDEN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) Some Latin American nations have already approved — and others are considering — adoption of standard bilateral trade treaties as the start on a Latin American common market.

Bilateral treaties are signed by two countries. But if each Latin American nation uses standard bilateral treaties, the uniform clauses would permit easy organization of a payments plan among all the nations.

Thus, the collective treaties would have the effect of a single multilateral trade treaty. All the nations, in effect, would have agreed to a single method of payments for trade and transfer of funds. This is necessary for the creation of a common market.

The sample treaty was drawn up last April in Montevideo at a meeting of the heads of nine central banks. They wanted a treaty which would permit expansion and liberalization of trade and at the same time have enough scope to give it multilateral qualities.

Although the Latin American common market is still considered some time in the future, economists expect small regional markets to be organized in a relatively few years.

THREE COUNTRIES

One might consist of Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uuruguay. Tariff barriers on specified products would be dissolved or lower among the countries, thus creating a large market for these products. Low cost production would be one major result.

Argentina and Chile already signed a sample treaty. Chile and Brazil are expected to do the same shortly.

Dr. Jose Garrido Torres, president of the national economic council and one of Latin America's top economists, explained that the sample treaty is bilateral so as to permit two countries to work out their individual problems. The bilateral treaty stimulates trade. Payments can be restricted to local currencies between the two countries rather than hard currencies such as scarce dollars.

At the same time, he said, uniformity meets the problems usually requiring multilateral treaties.

"The standard bilateral treaty is a step in the common market direction," Garrido Torres said. "Anything that expands and liberalizes trade is a good thing in view of the goal toward which we are striving."

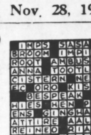
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

J I L C I Y R L C B B U Y C C U P, K R H
J I B C K U L C B B O Q A I — H Z N H P R.
