Let's Talk It Over
by "A"

Here's a funny thing: Over the years, agriculture, guided by the great minds of that industry, has progressed from the scythe and flail to the combine. In medicine, progress has been such under the moving spirals in that sphere that pneumonia and smallpox, great killers of the early days of our century, have lost much of their sting, and many other diseases have been brought under better control. Transportation has progressed from the rough, muddy, sometimes impassable highways of the olden days to the smooth asphalt and cement pavement of the present. Everywhere you look—killers of the early days of our century, have lost much of their sting, and many other diseases have been brought under better control. Transportation has progressed from the rough, muddy, sometimes impassable highways of the olden days to the smooth asphalt and cement pavement of the present. Everywhere you look—

Not the good old hand scythe! Not the good old blood-letting and mustard plasters! Not the good old surry with the fringe on top! Just the good old little red schoolhouse! The exponents of traditional teaching would have us believe that our hard-working educational leaders have been turning the wheels of progress in reverse.

Yet, to give one example, in Grade One the method of teaching word recognition first, and analysis of the word's several parts afterwards, has enabled primary pupils to accomplish about four times as much work as we old-timers did in the "golden age" of teaching. The same minds are at work on teaching problems in the advanced grades, and their methods, when faithfully followed, are getting the same good results. The modernist loses something, of course, because he faces the demoralizing counter-attractions of modern life among upper-grade students, but teaching techniques, as compared to those of an earlier era, have the same superiority as has the mix-master over the tablespoon.

The claim is sometimes made that our mechanical inventive genius is outstripping our sense of cultural values, and indeed this claim seems to have some foundation in fact. But the world leaders of today are not products of our "frills and furbelows" education system. They are, for the most part, those who sat at the feet of the "grand old" teachers of yesterday, and took deep and copious draughts of the culture, which some people are saying is disappearing from our present educational set-up.

We're not exactly clear on what those educational "frills" are supposed to be. To get right down to the local situation, Summerside High School may be accused of having some of those frills. If so, they do not seem to be getting too much in the way. Recent Entrance Examinations have shown that the pupils here, while taking time out to learn to cook, sew, sing, etc., have still managed to hold their own in the purely academic subjects with the very best pupils in Prince Edward Island.

LONDON (CP)—Cpl. Alfred Young, 16-year-old air training corps member, has been told to stop flying until he is 17 and entitled to hold a pilot's licence. He had been so successful in his scholarships that Air Minister Lennox Boyd personally gave him a licence before his age was discovered.

Wing - Gordon Wedding

A wedding of interest to relatives and friends on Prince Edward Island took place at First United Church, Arvida, Quebec, at three o'clock on February 28th, when Barbara Ann, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gordon of 571 Flickes Street, (formerly of Alberton, P. E. I.) was united in marriage to Robert Taylor Wing of St. Lambert, Quebec. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Jones and the wedding music was played by Mr. S. F. White.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with lace yoke and overskirt of tulle. Her veil was also of tulle and she carried a bouquet of red carnations.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Gordon, who wore a gown of powder blue taffeta with overskirt of net, and picture hat and gloves in matching shade. Her bouquet was pink carnations.

The groom was attended by his father, Mr. Francis Dunn and Mr. James Dunn, cousins of the bride, who were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gordon chose a street length dress of royal blue with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. Wing, mother of the groom, wore navy blue with a corsage of pink carnations.

A reception for about seventy guests was held in the Legion Hall. The table was centred with a three tier wedding cake flanked on either side with white tapers and bowls of yellow daffodils.

Following the reception the bride and groom left by plane for a brief honeymoon, the bride wearing a navy suit with top coat of autumn rose and navy accessories. The bride is a graduate in commerce of Arvida High School and prior to her marriage was employed with the Aluminum Company of Canada in Arvida.

The groom received his education at McDonald College and Montreal Technical School. He is employed as an engineer with Provincial Engineering. Mr. and Mrs. Wing have taken up residence in Greenfield Park, a suburb of Montreal.
