NURSES DANCE

at

ROLLAWAY CLUB

.. MONDAY, JAN. 22nd ..

Music by Downtowners
Admission 50c
Dancing 9:30 - 12:30
Sponsored by the Student Nurses of Ch'town Hospital.

Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of Prince Edward Island Mutual Fire Insurance Company will be held at the Town Hall, Summerside, Prince County, on Tuesday the 23rd day of January at the hour of 10:30 in the forenoon.

KIWANIS

BURNS ANNIVERSARY DANCE

(in aid of underprivileged children)
at the

ROLLAWAY CLUB
THURSDAY, JAN. 25, 1951

Dancing 10-2 A.M.
Music by the Downtowners

$1.00 Per Person

Phone 1242 for Table Reservations
Dress Optional — Cabaret — Refreshments

"Help Us Help Our Orphanages"

Canadian Legion Clover Club Dance

EVERY SATURDAY

Al Blanchard and the "Clover Club" Band

Admission—75c Dancing 9:30 to 12.00

For reservations Phone 1222

Reservations held until 10:30 p.m.

SATURDAY NIGHT IS YOUR DANCE NIGHT AT THE CLOVER CLUB

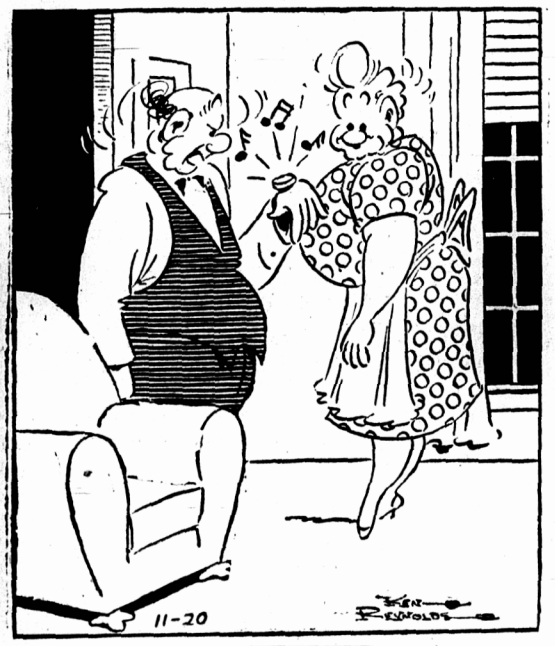
SPEECH CORRECTION CLINIC

FOR PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN

AT HEALTH CENTRE
188 Prince Street, Charlottetown

ON TUESDAY MORNINGS
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

Interested parents please phone 1345 or write above address.



"I better look in the Guardian Want Ads for a place that repairs watches — mine's going cuckoo again!"

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

PEKAN'S MOUTH WATERS

There's a time to come, a time to stay,
And a time is there to go away.
—Pekan the Fisher.

Pekan the Fisher had come down Green Forest because the hunting was poor on the Great Mountain. It was a hard winter for those who lived on the Great Mountain. There had been much snow and deep snow always makes hard work for hunters in fur to get enough to eat.

Winding through the Green Forest is Laughing Brook. In many places Laughing Brook was frozen over and covered with ice, but here and there were stretches of open water. The big Weasel, for Pekan is a Weasel you know, was prowling along Laughing Brook hoping that he might find some one doing the same thing, or coming to the water for a drink. Finally he came to an open stretch. Looking across to the other side he saw a small person in a rich dark brown coat. It was one of his several cousins. It was Billy Mink. Billy was sitting at the edge of the water looking down in it.

Between them was that black cold water and Pekan the Fisher doesn't like water.

Now strange as it may seem Pekan would not have hesitated a second to catch and eat his cousin had he had the chance. But he didn't have a chance. Between them was that black cold water and Pekan the Fisher doesn't like water. He doesn't like to get his feet wet. In this he is like his other cousin, Spite the Marten. Pekan loves fish if some one else catches them. He is not a fisherman himself, despite his name. He will go into the water now and then for a helpless fish, but he is very hungry when he does.

Billy Mink looked up and saw his cousin on the other shore. "Good morning, Cousin," called Billy. "I hope you are having good hunting." He grinned. He knew very well that Pekan wasn't.

His big cousin didn't grin back. He didn't feel like grinning. It is hard work to grin on an empty stomach. It is easy to grin on a full one, Billy Mink had been living well. Billy usually lives well. He seldom goes hungry for very long. You see Billy is a fisherman as well as a hunter. Almost always if he cannot get a dinner on shore he can get one in the water even in winter. So it is that Billy, being a great traveler at times, seldom knows what it is to be as hungry as some of his cousins often are.

Just seeing Billy sitting there on the other shore out of his reach set Pekan's mouth to watering. He didn't look on Billy as a cousin but just as food, and that food was out of reach. It made him feel just as you would feel if you were very, very hungry and looked in the window of a baker's shop.

Suddenly Billy slipped into that cold black water. He disappeared. Just seeing him do that made his big cousin shiver. Pekan looked up the open water and down the open water. There was no sign of Billy Mink. Suddenly Billy's head popped out of the water.

He had a fish. It wasn't a very big fish, but it was a fish. Pekan's mouth began to water again. Billy swam to the other shore and climbed up. Then he sat there and ate that fish. Do you wonder that Pekan's mouth watered? And there wasn't a thing he could do about it. Wisely he turned his back and went away. As for Billy, he finished the fish all but the head. That he left lying on the snow. Then, having had enough, he went on down Laughing Brook.

Croaker the Raven, happening to fly over, saw the head of the fish on the snow. It wasn't much but it was a bite. Croaker learned long ago never to pass up a bite, however small, in winter.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

A DEBATING HAND

An argument arose over the following deal — could the contract have been made, or not?

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable and 80 on score.

	♠ A K 10 5 ♥ 9 8 3 ♦ A K 4 ♣ A J 7
♠ Q 8 4 ♥ K Q 10 7 6 4 ♦ Q 8 5 ♣ Q	N W E S	♠ J 9 7 3 ♥ J 2 ♦ J 9 ♣ K 10 9 8 3
	♠ 6 2 ♥ A 5 ♦ 10 7 6 3 2 ♣ 6 5 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass,	Pass	2 ♥
Double	3 ♣ (!)	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
Pass	Pass

Even at the score, East's three-club call was pretty far out of line, and it should have given South a valuable clew in the play. Incidentally, South might well have converted his partner's takeout double of three clubs to the penalty variety, by passing!

At the actual three-diamond contract, West opened the heart king, and East started an echo with the jack. South won and immediately returned a heart, his obvious idea being to ruff a third round of the suit. This plan went wrong, however, when West led the third round and East ruffed with the diamond jack. Declarer could only discard a club, and that did him no good. He still lost (in all) two natural club tricks, one heart, the diamond jack to East and the queen to West, and so went down a trick.

In the postmortem, North insisted that the contract could have been made, and (over South's skepticism) proved his statement, as follows:

South lets West hold the first trick. West's best defense is a shift to the club queen. (no other play would effect the issue.) The club ace wins, the two top spades are cashed, and South ruffs a spade. South cashes the heart ace, then the ace and king of trumps. Now dummy's last spade is led, and South discards a club, letting East win the trick. East is reduced to clubs; he cannot avoid establishing dummy's club jack! Thus, South loses only one club trick, one heart, spade and one trump!

HOLSTEIN MEETING

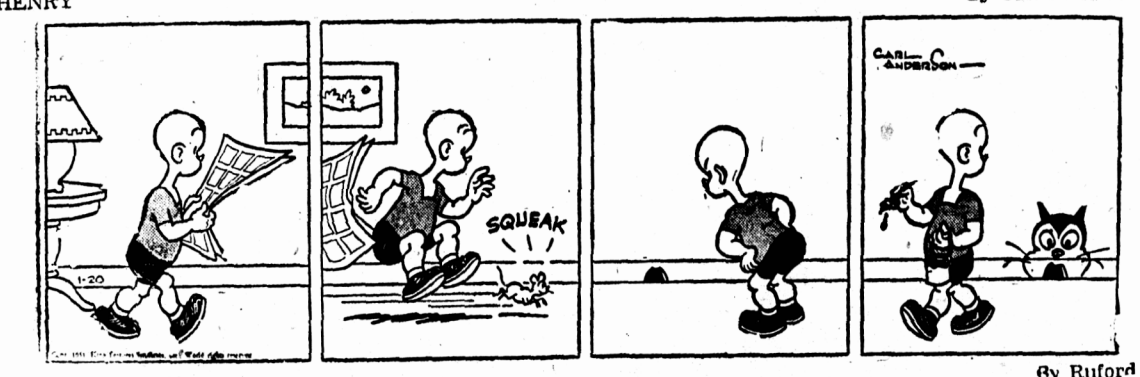
A meeting of the shareholders of the P. E. I. Superior Holstein Bull Club will be held Tuesday, January 23rd at 1:30 P.M. in the Dept. of Agriculture room.

CECIL J. STEWART,
Secretary.

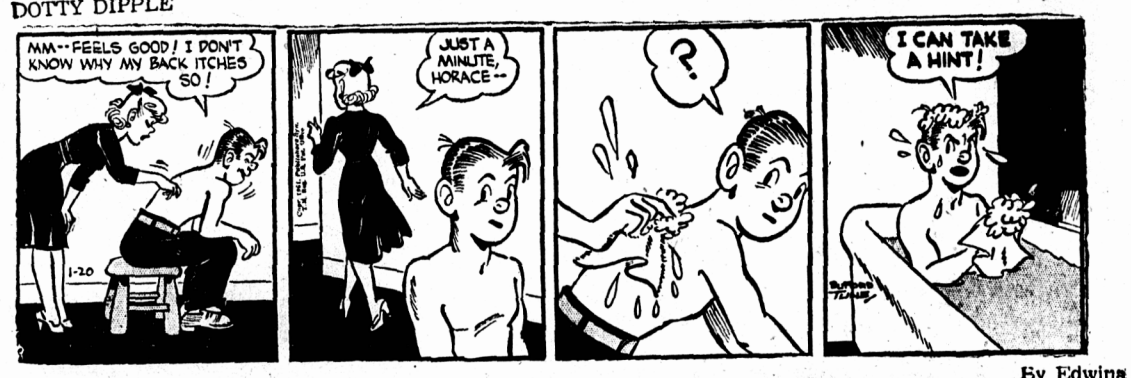
KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

JOE PALOOKA — By Ham Fisher

HENRY — By Carl Anderson



DOTTY DIPPLE — By Ruford



TIPPY AND "CAP" STUBS — By Edwina

BRINGING UP FATHER — By George McManus

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

TILLY THE TOILER — By Westover

LIP KIRBY — By Alex Raymond

PENNY — By Harry