Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

There was born in the state of Georgia in 1770, a half Indian, half German boy who invented sounds of the Cherokee language with no other information than the knowledge that it could be done. Indians said they could master the alphabet in a single day and read and write in less than one week. Just think of that! Sequoyah was made honorary chief by his tribe, and received a monetary grant from Congress for his achievement.

Stephen Endlicher, the Austrian born botanist, knew about Sequoyah, and decided to name the giant red trees after him. He proposed "sequoia Sempervirens." The name was accepted. Later, however, the name was changed to "Sequoia Washingtoniana" to honor the Indian boy and the "White Father" of the country.

Orange trees bear blossoms and fruit at the same time. The Black Hills of Dakota contain some amazing fossils such as "petrified wasp nests" the "stone cactus," etc. Local workmen in the region often plucked the latter from the ground believing they'd found petrified pineapples. But botanists now definitely class them as flower-bearing cyeda. And they are still met with in their native state probably because they are able to resist disease and drought and are not attractive to insects.

One of the most primitive of human arts is weaving. Beautiful and artistic pieces of weaving that date back to primitive times may still be seen in the world's leading museums — grasses and rushes cleverly put together to form tiny mats, loincloth of papyrus matting. The first actual cloth used by man was made from the bark of trees. Later flax was used for the same purpose. Linen, such as Pharaoh arrayed Joseph in was also made of flax, an art followed by the Egyptians for thousands of years. Proof of this is borne out by the picture writing on the walls of tombs. The lines were from the fibers of the flax plant which flourished more than 4,000 years ago.

Woolen fabrics of great durability and beauty were common in the time of Homer, and silk has a romantic and interesting background which takes us back 4,500 years to the days of Empress Siling-chi of China who, upon seeing caterpillars spinning their tiny web across leaves, later gathered the silken thread and made for herself a gorgeous gown that was the envy of every woman who saw it.

Out of this little incident was started the culture of silkworms in China which the Chinese government managed to keep secret from other nations for a period of 2,000 years. Here's how the ladies of olden times dyed their fabrics: A leaf or flower was placed on the material which had previously been dyed from vegetable juices, and placed in the hot sun. When conditions were favorable the sun transferred the outline of the flower or leaf to the material. Then a heavy weight was placed upon the design to fix it more firmly.

The 16th century saw the manufacture of pins and needles in Europe. We must not infer from this, however, that needles and pins were unknown before this time. The origin of the needle is lost in antiquity. Iron needles were found in ancient Rome, Greece, Egypt. Besides pins and needles those people used scissors and thimbles. They also kept treasure chests to store away various articles of value.

Queen Elizabeth owns 3,000 separate dresses to say nothing about shoes, hats, etc. You can guess at the price of such an extensive clothes closet.

How long have men been using walking canes? Ever since Biblical days and perhaps much longer. The young Athenian dandies were twisting walking sticks when Greece was in baby clothes. Canes did not come into general favor in England until the time of Queen Bess.

And Louis XIV of France brought the custom to the French Court. Soon everybody that was anybody in the French Capital were going about with canes. The walking canes used by the ladies were invariably decorated with cute little love knots.

A common belief held by our pioneer parents was that crying dogs portended death and calamities. This is another hand down from the days when the dog was looked upon as a deity, able to foresee death and give warning of its approach by setting up a dismal howling.

BEDEQUE W. M. S. The auxiliary of the W. M. S. of Bedeque United Church held their June meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Henderson. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Pearl Affleck presided and conducted the worship period singing hymn, "Thou Glorious God".

Mrs. Carrie Leard read the scriptures. Mrs. Affleck offered prayer followed by singing "Jesus Thou Divine Companion".

Sixteen members answered roll call and one visitor was present. Twenty house calls, sixteen hospital calls and fourteen cards were reported during the past month. Collection $15.80. Emergency fund $6.92.

A new member, Mrs. Judson Blackmore, was welcomed to this society. Mrs. Edna Jenkins revived the book entitled "A Torch in Japan." Miss Louise Callbeck offered prayer for Christian youth in Canada and Europe and for United Church missionaries who in Japan are taking part in work camps.

Singing "O Son of God", and the benediction brought to a close a very interesting meeting.
