Fine Performance Last Evening By Charlottetown Little Theatre Guild

The curtain went up last evening on the Charlottetown Little Theatre Guild's 1952-53 season with a rousing performance of Catherine McC. Brickenden's play, "Pig In A Poke", presented at the Empire Theatre.

The play is a lively farce-comedy seasoned with a generous dash of melodrama, and last night's performance kept the large audience in gales of laughter from beginning to end. The play, which has found wide appeal among theatre groups in the United States, was of particular interest to many members of the audience, as Mrs. Brickenden, whose home is in Ontario, is well known to many here.

The setting is the living room of a country farmhouse. Two members of the cast, both of whom are mistaken for a bandit on the loose in the vicinity, and the efforts of the rest to put an end to their supposed careers of crime, supply the excitement, supplanted by no less than three love affairs which add a touch of romance. The sparkling dialogue moves along with newness, a moment's hesitation, right to the end of the play which comes to a hilarious conclusion when Lady Diana's production of a letter of fine piglets, one of which (kindly loaned by Mrs. Brickenden herself) made a stage appearance, and the discovery is made that the real bandit has been in custody for some time.

The long hours of careful rehearsal, and the skill of the co-directors, Jean Giddings and Arthur MacLean, were evident in the polish and smoothness of the performance.

The part of the farmer, Gus Daley, was very capably taken by Peter Shama and that of his sister, Debbie Crispin, by Gerda Hansen.

Roles Well Taken

George Kays played the part of Mr. Jones, the police inspector who is mistaken for the bandit, drugged, and tied up, largely through the efforts of Mrs. FitzHerbert, convincingly played by Eva MacMillan, whose sudden entry into the de-bauchery provides one of the most amusing characterizations in the play.

When Cannonball bus 17 gets stuck in a drift outside the farmhouse, the passengers and their driver, Mrs. FitzHerbert's niece is also travelling with her, and Jean Ferguson, who was played by Mildred Walker, proves to be an athletic young lady whose tweeds and golf clubs betray her first interest, and she loses no time in falling in love with a suave young lawyer from Toronto, who is every bit as interested in her as she is in him.

In fact, Mr. Tiberry, who was played by Clair MacLeod, loses no time in proposing to the object of his affections, between the more melodramatic portions of the play.

Sam Hill, the driver of the bus, has also been looking a long time for the girl of his dreams, and he suddenly realizes that he has found her in the person of Miss Montague, a come-hitherish young lady, who has had some experience as a night club performer, and displays her talents very effectively on stage. The roles of Sam Hill and Miss Montague were splendidly performed by Hilda Pickard and Sterling Inman.

Ben Bangs, the local constable, also has an eye on a girl, but it turns out he's been courting Debbie for the last ten years, and her reluctance, added to the fact that Gus throws cold water on the suggestion that he speed up the match, seems likely to postpone it indefinitely. Dick Turpin played the part of the local cop who manages to catch up with the real bandit.

The last remaining passenger from the bus is Monsieur Napoleon Boileau who is at first mistaken for the bandit, and gets some rather rough treatment from the rest both before and after his true identity is established. Hugh Trainor took the part of the window dresser from Montreal, and the accent and the gestures with which he brought his part to life kept the audience in a gale of laughter.

Performers Complimented Last evening's performance was attended by His Honour Lieutenant Governor T. W. L. Prowse and Mrs. Prowse, the Premier, Hon. J. Walter Jones and Mrs. Jones, and His Worship Mayor J. David Stewart and Mrs. Stewart.

For Meritorious Service In Korea

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 —(CP)—The army tonight topped its longest decorations list of the Korean war with an announcement that 48 Canadians have been awarded mentions-in-dispatches for services in that theatre.

Earlier in the day, headquarters announced that 21 officers and non-commissioned officers have been decorated for gallantry and leadership in Korea, the biggest number on a single periodic list yet.

Mentions-in-dispatches don't rate a special ribbon and medal like decorations do. The winner is entitled, however, to wear a bronze oak leaf on the appropriate campaign ribbon.

The 48 raised to 111 the number of Canadians so far mentioned in dispatches for meritorious service in the Korean war.

The 21 decorations announced earlier included the fourth and fifth Canadian distinguished service orders of the war. They went to Lt.-Col. Norman G. Wilson-Smith of Winnipeg and Calgary for his leadership of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and to Maj. Victor W. Jewkes, M.C., of St. John's, Que., for leadership of the 25th Brigade's armored squadron.

Horne Motors Ltd. Now David Brown Tractor Dealers

With the appointment of Horne Motors, Ltd., as the Queen County dealers, the British built David Brown Tractors are now available to farmers in all three counties of Prince Edward Island.

It is reported that the motto "Mechanizing the World's Farms" is based on the use of David Brown tractors in 39 countries of the world and that it is the leading farm tractor in Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

The manufacturer look forward to obtaining an increasing share of the Canadian market as the features of their product become known. It is claimed that no other tractor has so many features necessary to modern farming in-built in one machine.

A full line of farm equipment including a new beater-type potato digger and a ridger cultivator is available. Favorable comment on the operation of the digger was made following several demonstrations on the Island recently.

It is said that the David Brown digger removes all potatoes with a minimum of damage and leaves the ground level with the potatoes in a row. Observers claimed that they found it particularly efficient in rough grass and with green tops.

Ch'town Needs At Least 230 More Blood Donors

Twenty-six employees of Maritime Central Airways Maintenance, fifteen from H. M. C. S. Queen Charlotte, and several Army personnel, helped considerably in bringing the registration at yesterday's Blood Donor Clinics held at Red Cross Headquarters in Charlottetown up to the grand total of 271. This means that there will have to be at least 230 more donors enrolled at Charlottetown's second day of clinics in order to reach the required objective of 500 donors.

An innovation at last evening's clinic was the able assistance provided by members of the Charlottetown Red Cross High School Council who staffed the clinic for the first time. This council is composed of representatives from Grades 9 and 10 of the four city schools.

189 of the donors (about 70 per cent) in attendance at yesterday's clinics were residents of Charlottetown while the balance came from some 42 other districts.

There will be no further Blood Donor Clinics held until next May, so it is imperative that as many donations as possible be secured during this week's clinics to keep the service running efficiently during the next six months. On Thursday the Mobile Team will be at the R. C. A. F. Station in the morning and afternoon where the objective is at least 200 donors, and at St. Mary's Hall in Summerside on Thursday evening where 150 donors are required.
