NASAL BALM

SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING, NEVER FAILS.
Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.
Many so-called cures are merely symptomatic of Catarrh, which is a disease of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, and lungs, and is caused by a germ which enters the system through the nostrils, and settles in the sinuses, where it breeds and multiplies, causing inflammation, and the discharge of a thick, yellowish mucus, which is often accompanied by sneezing, itching, and a feeling of heaviness in the head. It is a disease which is very common, and is often neglected, until it has become chronic, and is then difficult to cure. Our Nasal Balm is a powerful and reliable remedy for this disease, and is sold by all druggists, or sent post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents and $1 by addressing FULFORD & CO., Brockville, Ont.)

The Trouble in India.

Late English papers bring full accounts of the serious condition in India resulting from drought. The Times of the 27th ult. contains a long review of the situation. The causes of the first alarm it describes as a delayed and deficient monsoon, a heat so terrible that the tramway horses were dropping in the streets and a single company reported 113 of their animals incapacitated up to date, armies of locusts marching across the Northern Provinces, the plough castle dying of hunger and thirst in Rajasthan, the green crop fields turned into fields of straw throughout large areas in Southern India and fresh sowings impossible on the baked and cracking ground, the nucleus of a pauper population already formed and "hroughing the relief works in Madras, while wheat had been pouring out of the country during the preceding three months under the stimulus of high prices in Europe, and native journalists were in vain demanding restrictions on the exportation of food-stuffs. Since then the strain has been relieved to some extent by the falling of rain, and by reports that the locust plague is not so ruinous as it was represented to be; nevertheless the Times comes to the conclusion that scarcity and suffering are inevitable. Whether the scarcity will amount to famine, and the suffering to widespread starvation, still hangs in the balance. It is clear, it adds, that the threatened failure of crops extends both to Northern and Southern India, a failure of a general character such as has only once occurred during the memory of living men, and which, if realized, means a widespread catastrophe that must take to the uttermost alike the resources of the Government and the endurance of the people. The cable within the past few days has reported the occurrence of stupendous rain storms in parts of India by which hundreds of lives have been lost and an immense amount of property destroyed. It may be that these storms, disastrous though they have been, will save the country from still more terrible evils. These constantly recurring famines completely baffles the efforts and science of man. The deaths of hundreds of thousands in Hindustan, says the writer, may be silently predestined by climatic conditions in distant trans-oceanic zones, or by the snow-fall of the Himalayas and Central Asia, six months before a breath of warning reaches the doomed peasantry of India. The last great famine occurred in 1877-8.

Came to Life in His Coffin.

A REMARKABLE SCENE IN A RUSSIAN TOWN.

A remarkable scene took place recently in the Russian town of Artyuni. Prince David Keritcheff was afflicted for a long time with a serious illness, which finally brought on a state of coma. The attending physicians, however, after a careful investigation, were satisfied that life was extinct. The body was laid in an open zinc coffin and carried amid great pomp to the church, where a large number of mourners and spectators had congregated to honor the remains of the nobleman. At the close of the funeral service, as the archimandrite, in accordance with prescribed custom, bent over the body to give the Prince the farewell kiss, the supposed dead man suddenly lifted himself up, slapped the astonished priest twice in the face, and said: "Canaille, how dare you bury me without my permission?" The people in the church were panic stricken and rushed to the door. Several women and children in the crowd received severe injuries. The mental and physical excitement proved fatal to the sick prince. He died three days afterward.

Archbishop O'Brien, in his address at the United Empire Trade meeting in Halifax, the other evening, made some witty as well as clever remarks about the grumbling politicians out of office, who are eternally predicting that the country is going to the dogs. When a younger man, the Archbishop confessed, he used to take some stock in these dismal warnings, and had had in his time dire forebodings lest the final catastrophe and general smash up of the world would take place before his early career could run its full course. But the dies ire never came, and the Archbishop—grown famous and respected like the young Dominion of which he is so staunch and gifted a citizen—has learned by experience that the pessimism of defeated politicians has to be taken out with a large amount of reserve. But it sounds very real while it lasts.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The St. James' Gazette takes a very gloomy view of the condition of British trade. In to-day's issue it says: "It looks as though we have already reached the end of good times. The great decline in exports from Great Britain is undoubtedly due to the operation of the McKinlay law in the United States. The immediate object of the law was to hit foreign manufacturers, especially those of Great Britain, and it is plainly evident that this object has been attained."

On Saturday last the I. C. R. employees picnic took place at Point du Chene. Over 3,000 people were present, but unfortunately about noon, when things were just assuming shape for a perfect day's enjoyment, the clerk of the weather ordered the flood gates to be opened. A deputation of "engineers" from our Island road went over, ostensibly to greet their brothers on pleasure bent, but really to take in the excursion which the Steam Navigation Co. gives every Saturday on the trim and speedy Northumberland. The sail over from the western capital was charming; and the more voluble ones of our party were loud in their admiration of the beauties of the "Gem of the Gulf" and the nautical scenery as seen from the deck of the steamer. The return trip to Summerside and thence to this city was enjoyably spent, though Neptune exacted obedience from several of our number. These excursions are becoming very popular, and well they may—the beautiful scenery of the route, a first-class steamer and the solicitude of her officers for the comfort of their passengers, making it without doubt the best manner in which to spend a day's outing. To Capt. Cameron and Chief Steward Collings the writer and his brother "engineers" are indebted for many favors extended. Hoping that soon again we may enjoy another such pleasant "tour of inspection," and that each mile of the route may be marked with similar mementoes, I subscribe myself

ONE OF THE PARTY.

News Notes.

Bad weather is said to be spoiling crops in Austria and Hungary.

Nova Scotia gold mines yielded $23,700 worth of the precious metal in June.

A $40,000 fishery cruiser for the Dominion Government is on the stocks at the Poison Works in Owen Sound.

A shipment of furs to England, valued at $40,000, was made the other day by the Hudson Bay Co., from Victoria, B. C.

A despatch from Blunt, South Dakota, intimates that everything is as dry as tinder, and the people are in continued suspense, fearing prairie fires.

The new proprietors of the Anthracite coal mines in Alberta, in the Canadian North-West, are importing a number of the striking miners from Franklin, Wash., to work their mines at Anthracite.

A Pacific coast exchange remarks that the Chinese are getting a sure and strong hold in Victoria. They already own the greater portion of three streets, and the other day Fai Yuen & Co. paid $25,000 for a block of land on Government St.

A consignment of confiscated liquor was sold in Quebec the other day. It consisted of sixty barrels of alcohol, one hundred and sixty cases of gin, four puncheons of rum, and an assortment of Scotch whiskey, brandy, claret, etc. The alcohol brought from $2 to $2.15 per gallon, including duty, and the gin $4.90 to $5 per case.

The directors of the National Rifle Association of America on Wednesday adopted a motion allowing the use of the Martini-Henry rifle by the members of Canadian or English rifle organizations which might participate in any of the association matches.

Advices from Auckland, N. Z., show that a great flood which had the appearance of a tidal wave prevailed at Melbourne, July 13. Houses and factories along the Yara river were submerged. Many small vessels were wrecked. In one suburb of Melbourne 2,000 people were rendered homeless. Business is almost suspended in the city. The loss of life, it is believed, did not exceed ten. It is estimated the total loss to property has reached £200,000. The Murray was rising and floods in the Albury district are feared. Much sickness prevails in Melbourne, attributable to exposure and to deposits of slime left by the flood.

The Montreal Gazette says: "On the list of subscribers to the Langevin testimonial appears the name of 'Peter Mitchell,' who is set down for $100. The attention of the Herald is respectfully drawn to the nefarious conduct of this man Mitchell. As the Herald lays it down, a minister should be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. Now, Caesar could not hold his wife thus highly if she was getting $100 bills from the P. Mitchell of the time, and if she was to be suspected, plainly the aforesaid P. Mitchell must also be open to question. We look to the Herald to assist in discovering and exposing this P. Mitchell that he may be properly pilloried for thus seeking to debase the occupant of one of the crown's highest posts."
