Reveal Attacks

night, but a British Army spokesman in Cairo said the arrivals were "routine."

Digging Trenches

Reports from Port Said said British troops were digging trenches at several points in the canal area. The British spokesman said it was the "normal responsibility of commanders to ensure at all times the security of troops and installations."

An army spokesman in London, in announcing the departure of the commandos from Malta, declined to give their destination. He said "certain movements of the Royal Marine Commandos have been approved as a precautionary measure."

Lloyd's statement about the recent attacks on British soldiers came as a surprise to the Commons, and his speech shed the kid-glove diplomatic approach used during the negotiations with Egypt.

"We have kept quiet about these matters in order to give the best possible atmosphere to the talks," he told the House of Commons.

Cites Incidents

Between April 16 and May 3, Lloyd said, one British soldier was killed, one wounded and two missing in separate ambushes. He said the wife of a high British medical official was shot and wounded by Egyptians while picnicking on the Suez canal banks.

"These are merely examples of what has been happening," he said. "We have strong grounds for believing that these attacks had been carried out, if not under the direction of, at least with the connivance of the Egyptian armed forces."

Britain still wants to negotiate a settlement of the canal question he said, and "despite all sorts of provocation" has tried to refrain from fomenting feelings in either country.

Egypt's 5-Point Plan

At the same time, Lloyd revealed Egypt's five-point program for evacuation of British troops. He said that if Britain accepted these terms, the base "would have rapidly deteriorated" to a point where it would be useless as a free world bastion in the event of a third world war.

He listed Cairo's terms as: 1. Physical and technical control over the base must be left to Egyptians. 2. British personnel left behind must be in Egyptian employment and subject to dismissal at any time. 3. Instructions to Britons for handling British equipment and supplies could only be passed to them through the Egyptian government.

Lloyd said the total value of British installations and equipment in the canal zone exceeded $200,000,000 including airfields, power stations, hospitals, an ordnance depot covering 15 square miles and thousands of vehicles.

Fine Turnout Yesterday By Local Units On Inspection

"There is no standing still in any walk of life, we must all go forward or back," Major General E. C. Plow, C.B.E., C.D., told units of the local Garrison as he briefly addressed them in the Armouries. His talk followed the annual inspection by the General Officer Commanding Eastern Command.

The General referred to the Defence Department probe underway at Ottawa and said it is for this reason that the books of all units must be checked "so we will know if you are spending your money correctly. Only by keeping our house in order can we avoid criticism."

He noted that it was the third such inspection he had conducted here and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many of the old faces still in the service. He also told soldiers that he personally appreciated so many of them turning out for the parade.

At the conclusion of his talk Brigadier W. W. Reid stepped forward and called Capt. F. W. Smith to come forward. After the exchange of salutes the General then pinned the Efficiency Decoration on the member of the local unit. It is awarded officers after 20 years long service.

Capt. Smith also wears the C.E.M. which is awarded other ranks for 12 years service. Prior to the arrival of the inspecting party men of all ranks from the P.E.I. Regiment, 28th L.A.A. Regiment, 21st Field Ambulance and 5 Signals Regiment were drawn in open order on the street outside the Armouries.

Col. A. W. Rogers was officer commanding the parade with WO1 Eric Jessome as regimental sergeant major.

Officers in command of the units were Lieut. Col. K. M. Johnston, Signals; Lieut. Col. J. K. L. Irwin, Ambulance; Major John A. MacDonald, Recce; and Major D. J. MacCormack, Artillery. The Recce Band under Bandmaster T. MacFarlane, and commanded by Major R. Mahan, played throughout the General's inspection.

In the official party at the saluting base for the march past were Brigadier G. G. K. Peake, D.S.O., Brigadier W. W. Reid, D.S.O., Major C. M. Rehill, officer commanding the Instructional and Administrative Cadre, Halifax, and Lieut. V. Blanchette, aide-de-camp to General Plow.

The General inspected all units in turn while the other regiments stood at ease. He greeted each of the commanding officers as he came to them and at the finish inspected the Band and offered his compliments.

When his address to the troops was finished he was the guest of local officers in the Officers Mess where he was presented to His Honour Lieutenant Governor T. W. L. Prowse and Mayor J. D. Stewart. The latter was a former Recce officer himself and is presently the Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of the unit.

Urges More Support For Northumberland Service

OTTAWA, May 12 (Special) — A plea for greater federal government aid to Northumberland Ferries was made in the Commons this afternoon by W. Chester S. McLure, Progressive Conservative member for Quebec.

When discussing Department of Transport estimates, Mr. McLure said he understood that when a delegation from Northumberland Ferries came to Ottawa recently seeking aid to expand the Wood Islands-Caribou service they were told "to sign on the dotted line or get nothing at all." Mr. McLure recalled that at the time of the railway strike of 1950, Northumberland Ferries provided the only means of getting to and from Prince Edward Island.

"We might get into another tie-up at any time," the Queen's member warned, "and we want to have available the services offered by this independent and private enterprise that has been giving such wonderful service. We want to see them treated right by the government, because it is a service that is bound to grow. Make it possible for them to give the southeastern portion of Prince Edward Island the service it so richly deserves."

In establishing the Weed Islands-Caribou service, Mr. McLure said, Northumberland Ferries had greatly helped the Canadian National railway to carry out its transportation responsibilities on the Island. He told the Commons that since 1873 no government of Canada had fully fulfilled the terms of the Confederation pact calling for adequate transportation services between the Island and the mainland. Liberal governments had fallen down more badly than Conservative administrations, he said.

The Queen's member asked Transport Minister Chevrier what marine service the government proposes to establish this summer between Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, if proper facilities are provided, he said, there will be trade to the mutual advantage of both Atlantic provinces. In Newfoundland, P.E.I. can find a ready market for her farm products, and Newfoundland will benefit from receiving food products of the highest quality, Mrs. Chevrier herself his reply.

HAMILTON W. I. Mrs. Harry Taylor was hostess for the regular meeting of Hamilton Women's Institute which was held on May 5. The president conducted the meeting which opened with the prayer followed by the roll call, and one visitor was present.

The concert committee reported a very gratifying sum from the variety concert, and a number of the members tendered their thanks for the hard work of these members in producing such a fine entertainment.

They decided to buy a pair of flannelette blankets for a man whose home was burned. Sick committee reported one treat sent. The teacher reported nothing is needed for the school. Miss Elma Stewart is to replace Miss Jas. Craig on the finance committee.

The new stage curtains have been made and put up and new blinds were bought for the kitchen windows. A settee was covered for use in plays. Several bills were presented and on motion paid.

A letter concerning the adjudication night in Kensington was read and it was decided to make one hundred bags of candy. Our one-act play has been entered.

On agreement of the members it was decided that if the hall committee wishes to produce the concert in other places the proceeds will be theirs for hall purposes.

The president and secretary are to inquire about sponsoring an amateur show in the fall. The president asked for resolutions for the District Convention and several were discussed. Remnants were passed out and some Red Cross work distributed. Mrs. Lloyd Lockery read a very interesting paper on flower gardening.

Lunch was served by the hostess and committee.

Gives Informative Talk On Buying Poultry Products

"Buy by grade" was the admonition of Mr. Fred M. Nash, chief of the Poultry Division Marketing Service, in an informative talk and demonstration before the members of the C. A. C. at City Hall last night. Mrs. J. A. Lawson presided.

Mr. Nash quoted freely from Mrs. Walton, National President of the Canadian Association of Consumers in Canada, when he said in part: "Consumers generally cannot expect to have anything like complete appreciation of the problems surrounding the producing, processing and marketing of the egg and poultry industry."

"Consumers are interested in the quality of things they buy, their purity and safety; they are interested in simple, accurate and informative labelling; in uniform standards and grading."

"The same holds true of poultry," continued Mr. Nash. "Too often Grade 'A' poultry is bruised or mottled in appearance; some times it has an excessive amount of fat, or conversely, is too scrawny."

In describing the relative values of both eggs and poultry, he stated that the best was the most economical buy. "Watch the four grades of 'A' eggs, and see that you get what you ask for and pay for. They are graded Small, Medium, Large and Extra Large and in every case should be strictly fresh. Never ask for a dozen eggs. Usually that is just what you will get."

Mr. Nash explained in detail the food value, preservation, required weights and other valuable purchasing points in the buying of both eggs and poultry.

Mrs. Lawson expressed the thanks of the well attended meeting to the speaker for his enlightening talk.

Miss Hazel Roland, Director of Nutrition under the Department of Health and Welfare, also gave a most instructive talk on the nutritious value of the new process Island cheddar cheese as compared with meats. The speaker expressed great satisfaction at the enthusiastic reception this product is receiving in Nova Scotia and was hopeful that Island people would soon realize its value as a food of exceptional merit.

Question periods were taken advantage of, following both the talk on food value and that of Miss Roland, by the ladies present.

Mrs. Lawson, as president of the C. A. C., thanked Miss Roland for her highly informative talk.
