Montague United Church W.M.S. Meets

The Women's Missionary Society of the Montague United Church met at the home of Mrs. Ethan Stewart on Tuesday evening last. Mrs. Leslie MacDonald led the devotional service, the theme of which was "The Community of Grace." Matthew 28:18-20 and Ephesians 4:16 were read. A hymn followed by a circle of prayer closed the service. The members were then delighted to hear a solo by little Miss Sandra Stewart.

Mrs. Ethan Stewart gave a very interesting talk on the educational system of Angola, West Africa, in connection with the study book "Along African Trails". This was further explained by the use of a large chart, and a number of the ladies took part as they were called on.

Mrs. J. M. Fraser spoke about the Laubach method of teaching the Africans to read, and Mrs. Mary MacLean told of the mission-ary, Miss Margaret Dawson, and a native African teacher, Miss Maria Chelea, whom the members of the society met at a rally in Murray River last summer.

During the month 18 hospital calls were made, 24 sick calls, seven shut-in calls. Eleven treats and 26 cards were sent. It was reported that the quilt for the overseas box had been finished.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which an excellent lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by the committee in charge.

Chop involving some 750 Reds. It began Monday night with a light thrust of perhaps 80 men and within 45 minutes had built up to a full scale battalion attack Allied defenders pulled off the position 80 minutes later.

The 8th Army said South Korean troops swept into Chinese Communist trenches east of the Pukhan river before dawn and fought 46 minutes at close range. The raiders pulled back when Chinese reinforcements arrived, leaving 13 Reds dead or wounded.

On the far eastern front, other South Koreans drove into North Korean trenches and hurled hand-made jellied gasoline napalm fire bombs into the Communist bunkers. At least a dozen Reds were killed.

Action elsewhere was limited to routine patrol contacts.

Haze and clouds over North Korea curtailed the Allied air efforts. Sabre jets patrolling Mig Alley reported no clashes with Communist fighters.

160 Canadian Troops En Route Home From Korea

VANCOUVER, (CP) — Some 160 Canadian veterans of Korean fighting will arrive at Seattle today aboard an American transport, the army said here Monday.

Their paths will cross those of 1,000 Canadian soldiers now heading for the West Coast from Eastern camps for movement to Korea.

At the same time, the army said that comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster will leave here Saturday aboard a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane for Japan and Korea. The 12-person troupe will give two shows at Shaughnessy military hospital here Thursday.

rate increases authorized by the transport board since 1947, the company had been able to use them to increase revenues only by 38 per cent.

Asked if he could forecast the future for rate increases, Mr. Gordon said that would depend on "balancing forces". One was that the factors sending up C.N.R. costs would affect its competitors as well.

Rates Have Not Kept Up

Earlier in his testimony Mr. Gordon had made reference to the fact that freight rates have not kept up with higher wages and expenses caused by rail operations. He said the wage bill was up by $22,000,000 over the 1951 figure and costs of materials rose by $11,500,000.

These two factors were largely responsible, Mr. Gordon said, for holding the C.N.R.'s surplus to a nominal $142,000 despite a capital revision last year that cut some $23,000,000 off the company's interest debt. In 1951, the C. N. R. had a $15,000,000 deficit with the heavier interest charges.

Dealing with the rate-equalization studies under way before the transport board, Mr. Gordon said the railways agree with the principle of equalization but contend it must not reduce their revenues.

He said a problem in levelling up rates as between regions is that "you cannot give something to all and take nothing away from anyone."

From the railway standpoint, part of the problem was that "they cannot survive with less revenue than they have now."

"How is the producer going to survive?" asked Chester S. McLure (P.C.-Queens). He said the producer has to pay the shot.

Mr. Gordon replied users of the railways would have to pay for that service just as they paid for other services.

Peakes And Vicinity

blue skirt, and matching rose poodle cloth coat, which also featured matching blouse and lining of pink print. Another showed a smart grey suit with a flaring cape, both suit and cape subtly trimmed with black braid, and a tweed three-piece of suit and jacket was worn by Mrs. A. G. Macmillan.

Mrs. T. A. Laidlaw modelled a striking suit of azalea pink pure wool, with a peplum effect adding interest to the jacket, and unusual quilting detail about the hem of the very flared skirt.

Hats included a number of striking models—among them a red alpaca style, a large red and white cartwheel hat, and a charming number in a round shape, but the ever dependable sailors, cloches, and pillboxes, especially suitable for the short hairdos which are still in style, were shown with most garments.

The coat dress, a design which came into prominence last year, is back again, in newer designs, which are even more flattering than ever. Along with the coat dress, the number of matching or contrasting material sets also here again. Both styles were shown, one of the most striking a checked dress with red and white polka dot detail to give a stimulating effect.

The "Coronation" theme of the show was featured in the many items of jewellery worn, which are expressly designed for this year when the Coronation is uppermost in the mind of every woman. A dainty model of the royal sceptre held a scarf—just the "right touch" for a smart costume—in place at the throat. Bracelets, earrings, necklaces, and brooches are all seen in striking designs.

New uses continue to be found for the versatile stole. A striking crepe dress fashioned, the hemline and one uncovered shoulder was accompanied by a matching black stole with white fringe. The stole also appeared on a sheer silk plaid, and a matching triangular stole covered the shoulders of an exquisite cocktail-length dress of spice brown lace.

A stole of matching print, lined with a contrasting solid colour, was the perfect accompaniment for a dress of the so very new polka-dot cotton. Cottons have suddenly become new qualities, becoming silky in texture, crease resistant and glamorous. Gone are the days of wearing a cotton dress for a

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly were visitors to Savage Harbour on March 18th, guests of Mrs. Kelly's mother, Mrs. Frank McIntyre.

Many friends of Mrs. James E. Gillan regret to learn of her recent illness, and all join in wishing her a speedy return to good health.

St. Patrick's Road Farm Forum meetings have been held regularly throughout the winter months. The concluding meeting for the season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Donnelly on March 16th. In a game of cards which followed, Alfred Handrahan was the winner of a gas lantern and Johnnie Campbell a pair of socks.

As always, the most popular models of the show were the youngsters. Up-to-the-minute children's wear was modelled by Miss Jane Johnston and Master Allison MacLeod. Both the attractive styles and the demure manner of these two captivated the audience, as they made their entrances and exits with the utmost confidence.

Sportswear, practical and attractive rain wear, bathing suits, negligees, coats, and many women's wear were shown, all giving an indication of when the well-dressed woman will wear this year upon every occasion. Every costume has been assembled with good taste, and great care taken in selecting the accessories without which no garment, however fashionable, is smartly worn.

One of the highlights of the show was the wedding dress, modelled by Miss Carmody. Of the new ballerina length, a style which is particularly popular this year for the young bride, it was fashioned of nylon net and lace, with shoulder veil.

The last item was the showing of the glamorous and exciting evening gowns. Delicate pastels, flowing skirts of net and the bare shoulder bodice continue to be the most popular style. Regal purple, however, is used in one dress which is very fitting to the full figure, and black was shown in two very striking evening dresses. Several youthful ballerina styles in pastels and whites were included with the full length styles more suited to the older woman.

Furs for spring, capes, stoles and jackets, were shown with many of the outfits, as well as the always useful neck pieces of two or three or four skins. Among the outstanding fur pieces shown were a long stole of mink, with fringe of tails, and a neckpiece of beautiful stone marten skins.

The show concluded with a breath-taking dance interpretation, "Evening Enchantment", by Mr. Barry Bugden and Miss Sharon Bugden. The background music, which added greatly to the effect of continually and smoothly, was played by Mr. Paul Cudmore.

The make-up was in charge of Miss Elizabeth Holl and Miss Miriam Matthews. The stage decor, which also reflected the royal theme of the show, was designed by Mr. Gerald Maddigan.

The clothing shown in the show was modelled by Miss Vera Tremholme, Mrs. A. G. Macmillan, Mrs. A. M. Gillis, Mrs. Ronald Berger, Mrs. E. MacPheon, Mrs. H. L. Palmer, Mrs. Paula Burden and Miss Connie Chandler. Miss Yelma Carmody, Mrs. W. Hoyt, Mrs. J. D. Seaman, Mrs. J. Bone, Mrs. G. E. Ives, Mrs. T. A. Laidlaw, and little Miss Jane Johnston and Master Allison MacLeod showed the children's clothing.

The Parade of Spring Fashions was under the patronage of His Honour Lieutenant Governor T. Honour Prowse and Mrs. Prowse, Hon. Premier and Mrs. Walter Jones and Mrs. Jones and His Worship Mayor J. D. Stewart and Mrs. Stewart.

few hours, only to have it become wrinkled and untidy looking. New processes for treating cotton have made it as versatile, as attractive and as practical as many of the new synthetic fabrics.

Two teen age dresses of cotton chambray, modelled by Miss Connie Chandler and Miss Pauline Burden, would make a hit with the younger set. One, of polished, pink, was touched with white, while the other was a skirt and blouse team of striped and solid fabrics.

Several dresses in a variety of styles and materials, featured the new deep "V" neckline in front and back—in afternoon dresses, in a polished cotton suitable for the country or informal dancing, and in a glamorous black cocktail dress touched with sparkling trim, which was modelled by a staid and demure demonstration of the fact that careful shopping can produce an integrated costume which is smart and practical—for under fifty dollars. A number of ensembles for the budget-wary were shown.

...The Murray Harbour Midgets proved to be too strong for the Sturgeon sextette, who made their first appearance at the local forum last Monday night. An interesting contest throughout gave the meagre crowd of fans full value for their money. McDonald and Bell handled the whistles and not a single penalty was handed out, which is believed a record for the Harbour Frisk this season. Herring and H. Fraser were the highscorers for the locals with MacCarron and Moore doing the honors for the visitors. Final score Murray Harbour Midgets 10, Sturgeon 4. Lineups:
