Cup And Saucer Race

ENTRIES FOR tonight's Gold Cup and Saucer $2,500 Old Home Week race have been announced; and it looks like quite an unpredictable field.

From post position the eight will be Tammany Hall, Dudley H., Huckster, Killarney Boy, Edgewood Scott, Avalon Frost, June Byrd and Port Wallis Boy.

Edgewood Scott, winner of the Evening Patriot $2,500 Invitational Pace in the times of 2:06.4 and 2:06.3 Monday night, will probably be the race favorite; with Killarney Boy second choice.

Killarney Boy, driven by Roach MacGregor Tuesday night, won the feature dashes in 2:07.1 and 2:08.1. He beat a field including Wirl A Wick, Watch Top, Dominion Byrd and Don Star.

Placing behind Edgewood Scott (Elmer Smith) Monday night were Port Wallis Boy, June Byrd, Huckster and Crash Dive.

Anything can happen in the race game, but you have to take into consideration that Edgewood Scott defeated three of the seven horses he is going against tonight Monday night and that the Mayhew-Howatt-Ramsay owned horse has had the best times of the week at the Charlottetown Park.

Killarney Boy didn't come up with times as fast as the Scott Tuesday night, but then he didn't have to - He still won his race. There'll be a lot of money at the track tonight that will say Killarney Boy will come up with a good time.

I don't expect too much from Dudley H., Huckster or Port Wallis Boy tonight - unless one of them grabs the rail. Tammany Hall, Avalon Frost and June Byrd can whip any horse in the Maritimes with a few breaks.

Off The Cuff

IT'S A LONG way off, but the selection site for the 1972 WINTER OLYMPIC GAMES to be held in Canada is causing quite a ruckus out west. The communities bidding for the Games are Banff, Alberta, and Garibaldi, British Columbia. The Banff site, sponsored by the Calgary Olympic Association, has made two previous unsuccessful Winter Olympic bids - for the 1964 games and for the 1968 games ...... Sports activities are very slow in Charlottetown this week, except for the harness racing; Monday however, softball and baseball playoffs should start to move. One of the highlights of the City fall sports program will probably be the hosting of a Maritime minor BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP - probably the Juvenile class ...... I dropped into the Rec. Centre the other night to see how LOUIS SMITH was dong after his perfect 450, five-pin game. His triple was a cool 1,103 - also believed to be a Maritime high this season. Louis told me he rolled 12 strikes in his perfect game, plus another six in a row at the start of his second game. He won the individual average championship in the Maritime championships at Rollaway Lanes this spring. The unusual thing about that championship was that Smitty didn't make the Charlottetown team so he bowled for a mainland team that didn't have enough players. ROLLAWAY ACES, the team Smitty didn't make, lost the championship in a close finish. Louis takes quite a ribbing about his bowling ability from Rec. Centre director 'SPY' READY. Spy always reminds Louis that the morning after his big game he rolled less than 200 ...... Spy told me that two Charlottetown youngsters will attend TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS' training camp this fall. He's not giving any names yet however. He doesn't want the boys bothered by well-wishers or NHL scouts.

HUNTER'S CORNER

Talking Over Olden Days; Duck Season Underway

Its strange how nostalgic memories have a habit, on occasion, of crowding in upon one and it takes an effort of will power to return from the distant past to our ultra modern present. On Sunday afternoon, August 9th, I met and reminisced with Herbie Stretch, formerly of Long Creek. His wife, the former Rotha Mac Kenzie, was with him. Rotha lived in a district near Long Creek — DeSable I believe. Herbie worked the farm at Mount Albion for my brother Ludlow while he operated the Hazelbrook Cheese Factory. Ludlow's wife, the former Catherine MacLean, came from Long Creek. He met her when he ran the cheese factory at New Dominion a district adjoining Long Creek.

Herbie left Mount Albion for Western Canada in 1908 and thus it is 56 years since we last met. We talked on many things including the first Road Race, sponsored by The Patriot, from Charlottetown to the Mount Herbert Orphanage and return. Colin MacNevin, Long Creek, won the race. I still remember the headline in the Patriot — "MacNevin with the spring stride won the Patriot Road Race in splendid style last evening. Veteran half miler Harry Harley, Charlottetown, cut MacNevin's lead down, but not enough, when he hit the even footing on the Hillsboro Bridge. I believe that Fred Jenkins, Mount Albion, came in third. Fred and Harry were evenly matched half milers and had some hairline finishes while members of the Abegweit Club. Fred later moved to Calgary, Alberta, and broke a number of Western Canada records in the sprints. He is now residing in Edmonton, Alberta. Harry Harley is still living in Charlottetown.

We reminisced about the Characters who made life interesting when we were young — Alex Weatherbie, Tom Murphy and his son John, George Gay and others — but it was the hunting we enjoyed in those days that brought on a severe attack of nostalgia. I was eleven years old when I shot my first black duck at Lake Verde. It lay in the middle of a dense flag bed and a good fifty yards off shore. I walked the mile and a half to home and got Herbie. I can still visualize him ploughing through this bed with powerful breast strokes, the long, green tendrils clustered under his chin and the tip of one wing fastened in his teeth as he brought my prize to shore.

When this column appears in print the duck season would have been open for two days. . . August 20th was the opening day when I started hunting and shot my first duck. Today the Old Home Lake and the sky above it is totally devoid of ducks. By August tenth, when I was very young, long skeins of ducks would weave promising patterns against a blue sky. Hundreds would drop into the Old Home lake while a great host of others would continue on to Wisener's Dam and Pisquid Pond at Peakes. Around the 25th or 26th of September, the Old Exhibition Week, the clamour of wildgeese filled the night air with sweet goose music as they came in from the tidal flats off Pownal Bay for fresh water.

Those were the days, when before I was too young to carry a gun, I'd sit on our veranda and watch the black void of the south for the flashes of the muzzle loaders — twins and singles — and seconds later hear the reports and the wild clamour of the geese. Gone too are the covies of Native partridge dusting in the roadway dust — the sweet whistle of woodcock wings in the alder swales and rabbits so numerous in the swamps they created a traffic jam hazard in their swampy runways. Today, twenty-four hours before this column appears in print the Old Home Lake holds nothing but sparkling blue water dotted with the greenery of lily pad beds. If the boys are smart they'll press for an October 15th opening date this season and allow the flight of big northern red-legs take some of the hunting pressure off our local blacks. To date the teal crop is reported on a par with last season at least. Some observers are reporting a slight inceease in teal. Black ducks are pretty quiet at the moment. The odd early hatched brood is awing and making short flights but it will be close to September 15th before an accurate estimate of local black duck prospects for the coming 1964 opening day are. Some claim they are up over last year others state no change. It is this columnist's opinion at the moment that they are holding their own with nothing to brag about and that is nothing to get excited over. If they are on their way back we'll know by September 15th. One thing is a certainty — if they do not snap out of their present slump and show definite signs of being on a comeback trail this season — our local blacks that is — we are in for a period of plain, hard sleddin' to get them back.

C And B Down Pontiacs 3-2

SUMMERSIDIE — Gene Nowalksy singled home the winning run in the seventh inning to give Curran and Briggs a 3-2 win over A. E. MacLennan Pontiacs here last night. The game was the opener of the best of five series between the two clubs.

Paul MacWilliams of Curran and Briggs and Pontiacs Lou Poirier hooked up in a pitchers duel for six innings. MacWilliams in gaining the win allowed only four hits. He fanned eight batters and walked four.

Poirier in his fine losing performance was clipped for nine safeties in the seventh and deciding inning, Curran and Brigg's MacCarthy got on by an error and went to third after George Dalton also reached base on a miscue. That set the stage for Nowalsky's winning hit.

Nowalsky in addition to his key hit, added another to lead the Curran and Briggs hitting attack. Irv Arsenault had two hits for the Pontiacs.
