Ice On Montague River Disappears

The thin layer of ice which covered the Montague River is fast disappearing, and already the river is open almost to Shaw's Point over a mile below the bridge. At no time during the season was there any quantity of thick ice, although on one or two occasions the entire river was frozen over. However, it did not remain long in this condition, but in a few days, open areas, particularly near the bridge, were noted. It is also noteworthy that the Georgetown harbour has only a small quantity of drift ice which will clear on the first strong west wind. This will mean an early beginning to sea-going trade, which should be of not inconsiderable importance to exporters of potatoes and pulp-wood. It is noted that there is a very large quantity of pulp wood stored at Georgetown, and also, that the shipping lanes to be exported to paper producing manufacturers. It is possible that the shipping season will get under way considerably earlier than last year when the first vessel to make port at Montague arrived on May 2nd.

IN MEMORIAM

WARREN S. MACDONALD

On Tuesday, March 17th, Warren S. Macdonald passed to his eternal reward. He was born in Kingsboro, P. E. I., in 1872, the son of the late Theophilus Macdonald and Lydia MacFane. His early years were spent in that community, where he moved to Boissevain, Manitoba, where for 44 years he worked as a farmer and was a partner in road construction work. About seven and a half years ago he returned to Kingsboro and has made his home with his half-brother Joshua Macdonald. Mr. Macdonald was always very fond of music; as a young man he sang in the choir of the Baptist church in Kingsboro, and was a member of the Baptist church choir in Boissevain. Although in poor health for several years he was confined to his bed only a few days prior to his death. Besides his half-brother, Joshua, he is survived by two half-sisters, Mrs. John A. Stewart, of Charlottetown, and Mrs. Margaret Patterson, in Massachusetts. The funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon, March 19th with a short service at the house preceding the service at the church. Although the deceased was a member of the Church of Christ, Disciples, at South Lake the service was conducted in the East Point United Baptist Church, in Kingsboro, and interment was in the family plot in the Kingsboro cemetery. The hymns sung were, "When the Beautiful Gates Unfold", "Nearer My God to Thee", and a solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought", by Mrs. Donald McClare. The hymn, "In the Sweet Bye and Bye", was sung at the graveside. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Donald McClare; the pall bearers were George Macdonald, Lowell Ching, Clinton Stewart, Freeman Mossey, Foster Young, and Lloyd Kennedy. Heretics and Betelgeuse, the two largest stars, are respectively 400 and 300 times bigger than the sun.

Famous Indian Athlete Jim Thorpe Dies At 68

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Stewart Jim Thorpe, 64, the Oklahoma Indian who became a veritable colossus in the world of athletics, died Saturday. He suffered a heart attack in his modest trailer in suburban Lomita where he lived with his wife, Patricia. The news of his death brought words of tribute from men who played with him and writers who described him as "incomparable" and "the greatest athlete of all time."

It has been more than 40 years since Thorpe gained his first fame at Carlisle Indian School. Playing with this little school, usually out-manned and outweighed in games against big Eastern colleges, he scored 25 touchdowns and racked up a 198-point total in 1912. In the Olympics that year, with almost no specialized training, he set point totals in the decathlon and pentathlon which stood for 20 years.

Praise From King King Gustav V of Sweden told him: "Sir, you are the greatest athlete in the world."

But later his medals and trophies of the games were taken from him because it was discovered that he had violated the strict Olympic amateur code by playing professional baseball for $50 a month. Years later a congressional subcommittee decided to see what could be done to have the trophies returned but nothing came of it. Nobody knows how many sports Jim could have excelled in. He wasn't too strong on training and relied on his great natural co-ordination and speed to attain athletic greatness. Modern sports experts have picked him as the football player of the century, ranking him ahead of Red Grange. He made Walter Camp's all-American football team in 1911 and 1912. Then he played professional football and baseball for 16 years. He also starred in basketball. During his baseball career, Thorpe played for New York Giants and Boston, where he batted .327 in 60 games. He played for Cincinnati for six years and later wound up his career in the minors at the age of 40. Between baseball seasons he played pro football.

The program consisted of a geography lesson conducted by Mrs. McCormick and Miss Mabel Rose, a watch contest by Miss Genevieve Campbell, readings by Mrs. L. D. Rose and Miss Mabel Rose, and a spelling contest. The next meeting was invited to the home of Mrs. Lyman Rose. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, and lunch was served by the hostess. 13 members were present and collection amounted to $1.05.
