low-proprietors to avail themselves of the same privilege. It was, therefore, in his opinion, an unjust measure.

Mr. MOONEY said he was one of the most unprotected members on the floor of the House, in consequence of his willingness, at any risk, to declare the truth. It exposed him to the pitiless pelting of the storm from both sides of the House. The minority, he thought, ought not to take credit to themselves for their opposition to the amendments made by the Council to the One-ninth Bill—their object evidently being, to defeat the Bill in toto. He remembered the prophecy of the hon. and learned member for Charlottetown (Mr. Palmer), in 1848, to the effect, that the House would draw an old house about their ears by their interference in this matter. These words he well remembered; and to use the words of the famous Grattan, he had watched over the cradle of this Bill, and he feared he would have to follow its hearse.

The question was then put on the paragraph, as read by the Chairman, and agreed to,—Messrs. Longworth, Mooney, Montgomery, and Haviland, voting in the negative.

The paragraphs in the Address referring to those portions of His Excellency's Speech which recommend the House to abstain from taking any active measures on the subject of the Fisheries or of Trade, which might embarrass or impede the negotiations now in progress between the Governments of Great Britain and America, being read—

The Hon. Mr. PALMER said he objected to one part of the address. One of the paragraphs of the speech to which that portion of the address just read proposed to be an answer, read as follows:—

"Should the American Government agree to make such equivalent concessions as may make it advisable to accord to its citizens the same privilege which are enjoyed by Her Majesty's subjects here, the Fishery Questions, in so far as P. E, Island is concerned, admits of easy solution." The Fishery Reserves, if not the Fisheries, have been the subject of great discussion and agitation for some time past. There are a vast number of settlers—as many freeholders as leaseholders,—large portions of whose farms are found to be within the limits of the Fishing Reserves. The House should be cautious in guarding the rights of these parties, but His Excellency appears to have entirely lost sight of this difficult matter. He (Mr. P.) thought His Excellency should have warned the House carefully to guard against any infringement of the rights of the parties he alluded to. His Excellency speaks of American fishermen being put upon the same footing, with respect to these Reserves, as British subjects. He has, it is true, not actually recommended this, but he has thrown out what, in reality, amounts to an ivitation to the British colonial Minister to do so. He (Mr. P.) wished to know from the Members of the Government whether it is their intention that American and British subjects should be placed on the same footing? If so, he much doubted whether reciprocal trade with the United States would be deemed a sufficient equivalent for the loss they would sustain by the parties interested therein. If it was now difficult to guard our numerous Creeks, Bays, &c., it would be tenfold more difficult to do so, were British and American subjects placed upon the same footing with respect to the Reserves. The power to exercise the right of curing fish upon our shores, anywhere within these Reserves, might and doubtless would induce many to commit depredations upon the settlers, from mere wantonness. We have already witnessed the dangerons consequences of allowing large numbers of persons of this description to land on our shores. Were this permitted, what, he would ask, would be the value of the lands adjoining? His Excellency reminds the Colonial Minister that the literal construction of the Treaty would go the length of throwing open the Fishery Reserves as far as salt water flows; and His Excellency invites the House to place these parties in a position to use these Reserves to that extent; and not only so, but to allow Americans to come here, helter skelter, for that purpose. He did not know whether such was His Excellency's intention or not; but such an opinion would, he thought, be borne out by the language of the speech. Let this matter be known and clearly understood, and then they would be better prepared to legislate on the subject.

The Hon. Mr. COLES thought it was a pity the hon. and learned member for Charlottetown, (Mr. Palmer,) could not take a common sense view of the matter. What the Address says, on the point in question is this:—"We readily admit that were the Government of P. E. Island the only party concerned in such a treaty with the Senate of the United States, the Fishery question could soon be settled to the satisfaction of both; and whilst the inhabitants of the Colony would reap the advantages of reciprocal trade, the subjects of that friendly power would be at liberty to co-operate with them in turning to account the very important facilities which this Island possesses for prosecuting the Fisheries, and in occupying the numerous reserves abuting on its sea-shores, bays, harbours and creeks, where the tides ebb and flow, expressly granted and secured for fishery purposes by His late Majesty King George the Third." He (Mr. Coles) thought His Excellency must have anticipated the objections of the hon. member, (Mr. Palmer,) for he says, "By the Convention of 1818, United States fisherman have liberty, in common with Her Majesty's subjects, to take fish of every kind in those waters which are defined in the Treaty, and they have liberty "to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks, on the southern part of Newfoundland and of the coast of Labrador."' The word unsettled, it would be observed, as more emphatically marking His Excellency's opinion of that term, is printed in Italics. In this Island we have long been contending with adverse circumstances—the agriculturist has long and loudly complained of the want of a sufficient remuneration for his labour—and the Legislature has been endeavouring to secure reciprocal trade with the United States, as the surest and best means of bettering the condition of all classes of the inhabitants. And under the impression that we have something valuable to give in exchange for this boon, the Legislature passed an Address, last Session, praying for the removal of the restrictions of the Treaty of 1818, as far as the Island is concerned, provided that free trade with the American Republic were conceded to the inhabitants of this Island, and that they would also admit Vessels built in this Island to American retry and fish duty free. The Government therefore, is merely desirous of following up the wishes of the House of Assembly. Does the hon. member (Mr. Palmer,) wish to prevent respectable American citizens from landing on our shores and carrying on business amongst us? It is not to be supposed, however, for a moment, that our doing so, would necessitate the dispossession of a large number of the present inhabitants. If allowed to come here, it is for the purpose of carrying on a fair trade instead of an illicit one, as at present is, in too many instances, the case. Every port in the Island is now open to the Americans and very little additional expense to the colony has been incurred thereby; and if we wish to derive the full benefits of reciprocal trade with the United States, we must be content to place the American citizen in these respects on the same footing as British subjects. He hoped this Island would not be influenced by the same narrow-minded and selfish policy as the Nova Scotians and New Brunswickers appeared to be governed by at present. They, at first, agreed to throw open the fisheries to the Americans, but now appear to be drawing off, and some of them even go the length of saying that this Island has not the right to do so either. He (Mr. Coles) thought there was not a farmer in the Island that would not be pleased to see an American settle down alongside of him, for the purpose of carrying on a fishery, and who is not prepared to give him, for such purpose, the same privileges as British subjects. If loss were sustained by any party in consequence of the concession of such a privilege, he had no doubt that sufficient compensation would be cheerfully awarded, and that there would be no grumbling about it. But the hon. member (Mr. Palmer) seems to think that His Excellency's speech should, on all these points, be as explicit and definite as a Law, passed for the express purpose of regulating all these matters.

The Hon. Mr. PALMER said it was quite consistent with his knowledge, that the word "reservation," in the original grants, possessed two different significations. In the one case, the land was reserved to the Crown. In the other, it was not reserved to the Crown. The land was granted to the proprietor, but the right of using the same was granted for the purposes of a fishery, to all British subjects indiscriminately. Under the latter reservation, any person who pleased to do so might walk upon these reserves, might pull down and remove obstructions, &c. at any time he pleased. If that right could now be exercised, as it could have been at the time the grants were issued, then every man carrying on a fishery would have a right, without asking permission of proprietor, or anybody else, to pull down any obstruction that might present itself in his way. The word printed in italics, referred to by the hon. the head of the government (Mr. Coles) merely refers to the conditions prescribed for Newfoundland and Labrador, and has no reference whatever to this Island. If His Excellency meant to suggest that the right of the fisherman should only extend to unsettled land here, why did he not say so? But, instead of doing this, in his interpretation of the treaty, he has gone the full length of the law officers of the Crown at home. Notwithstanding this opinion of the law officers, the Legislatures of the Colonies should, he thought, be left to legislate in a reasonable way upon the subject in question, and in doing so, they should be governed by due respect to private rights, and by a due regard to the interests of the freeholder and tenant who may have made valuable improvements on these Reserves. He (Mr. Palmer) did not intend his few remarks to apply to any American merchant of respectability who might come here to carry on a fishery. He could appreciate the value of such persons as well as the hon. member (Mr. Coles); and he knew thattheir presence amongst us would be very acceptable to the country generally, who are anxious to see such establishments increase and multiply. The sites are numerous that might be devoted to such purposes; but he thought His Excellency should have affixed some limit to his suggestions. His Excellency refers to a map or plan, delineating the reserves. This plan had been transmitted to Her Majesty's Ministers. If it indicated, either by red lines or blue lines, that these reserves are to be given up for the fishermen as far as salt water flows, the consequence, he thought, would be most mischievous; it should also be shown whether riotous fishermen and sailors, whether Americans or any others, should be permitted to go up the rivers and creeks of this Island, and, under pretence of drying their nets, break down fences, remove buildings, &c., and commit any act of wanton agression on people's land. He thought the House should have an explicit declaration from the members of the government on these points.

(This debate is not finished.)

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14.

MR. FRASER presented the Impost Accounts for the District of Charlottetown, for the past year. Referred to the Committee on Public Accounts.

MR. CLARK, from the Committe appointed to wait upon His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, to know his pleasure when he will be attended by the House, with the address in answer to his speech at the opening of the session, reported, that His Excellency had, been pleased to appoint one o'clock to-morrow, (Tuesday,) to receive the House.

MR. LAIRD presented a Memorial from the Hon. Judge Peters, on behalf of the Committee of the Royal Agricultural Society, praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that the House would be pleased to appropriate the sum of £1000 for the importation of Stud Horses of the Clydesdale or other powerful breed of Horses, to be imported in the ensuing Spring; and the said memorial having been received and read—

MR. LAIRD said that, as there was no business before the House, he should move that the memorial just read be taken into consideration, in Committee of the whole House, immediately.

The Hon. Mr. LORD, on seconding the motion, remarked, that it was important that the Society should be made acquainted with the course intended to be pursued by the House with reference to this matter as speedily as possible, in order that, should the House approved of the suggestions and be willing to vote the amount prayed for, the petitioners might at once take the necessary steps to carry out their suggestions. —Question put and carried.

The House then resolved itself into the said Committee—Mr. Davies in the Chair.

A pretty lengthy discussion followed, in the course of which hon. members generally expressed their approval of the proposed importation, and their willingness to grant the necessary funds for that object when in supply. But there appeared to be some diversity of opinion as to the best mode of disposing of the animals after their arrival. Ultimately, the following Resolution was unanimously adopted:—

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the House, when in Committee of Supply, to provide the sum of one thousand Pounds, to be applied towards the purchase and importation of six stud draught Horses, and one full-bred horse, under the management of the Royal Agricultural Society, and that the six draught Horses so imported shall be divided between the three Counties—two to each County—and that the said Society shall appoint three persons—one for each County—to draw for the choice of said Horses; and when so drawn, the Horse for each County shall be sold at the following places, viz.—Charlottetown, St. Eleanor's and Georgtown—the purchasers to be bound in a Bond to the Central Society not to charge for the services of each horse more than Fifteen Shillings, and to keep the horses so drawn for in each of the said Counties where sold, for the space of two years, with liberty to exchange, after that peried, with other two of said stud horses, but not, at any time, to export the same from the Island: And the Blood Horse so imported shall be sold in Charlottetown, subject to a charge for his services of not more than Twenty Shillings, the purchaser to give security that he will not export the same from the Island—the amount of such security, and such other rules and regulations as they may deem expedient, to be determined by the Central Society; and that after the sale of the Horses, the balance left, after the payment of all expenses of importation and purchase of the said seven horses, shall be paid into the Treasury of this Island."

The House having resumed, and adopted the Resolution reported from the Committee, the Clerk was instructed to transmit a copy thereof to the Royal Agricultural Society, for their information and guidance.

The Hon. Mr. COLES introduced a Bill for further improving the administration of Criminal Justice, which was received and read the first time. Second reading to-morrow. Then the House adjouoned.

EXTENSION OF ELECTIVE FRANCHISE.—Hon. Mr. COLES gave notice that he would introduce a Bill for the Extension of the Elective Franchise. The precise objects of the Bill, it is understood, are to give the right of voting to every male inhabitant of 21 years of age, who shall have been a resident of the Island for 12 months previous to the date of an election, and been liable to perform Statute Labour, or to pay Road-rates:—persons over 60 years of age, and exempt from Statute Labour, to have a small property qualification.—The debate on this question comes on to-day. Yesterday's proceedings were of little interest.

OUR PUBLISHING DAYS.—It is our intention for the future to publish on WEDNESDAY Morning, instead of Tuesday evening. Our days of issue will, therefore, be Wednesday & Saturday Mornings, which, we believe, will suit both town and country Subscribers better than our former arrangement.—We decided upon the above arrangement after the first side of our paper was printed, which will account for the date on the outside being different from the inside.

THE COLONIAL MAIL arrived last night at 10 o'clock. The papers are filled with Legislative proceedings. Mr. Howe, has found greater opposition than he expected against his great Railway scheme. The British North American says:—

"The defeat of the Bills seems inevitable unless they are preserved by some miracle we cannot now foresee."

We see no other items of news interesting to our readers.

ERRATUM.—In the editorial of our last Thursday's number, we say it is probable the present House of Assembly will sit in "a fifth Session." We should have said a sixth. The present is the fifth.
