

Sealing Scenes Off North Shore Of This Province

Two Norwegian sealers, thousands of miles from home, are shown above about twelve miles from Cavendish. The sealers are two of the seven boats operating 15 miles east of Alberton where vast herds of seals have been located. Their discovery marks the first time that seals have been found in such numbers close to island shores.

Nine seal fishermen are shown standing around the kill they have made some 10 miles off the northern shores of the Province. The day's harvest can be seen just right of the man standing near the centre of the picture. The seals, located some 10 miles east of Alberton, are being hunted on the ice by Norwegian and Newfoundland fishermen. The pathway marks in the foreground leading to the centre of the picture are termed seal flippers. —Air photo by Paul.

ary of the National Trotting Association and on Mr. Gocher's death succeeded him as secretary until it was merged with the United States Trotting Association and he became its vice-president. Mr. Duncan largely formulated the policies of these associations and had the greatest responsibilities in connection with them for the between 40 and 50 years he was "in harness." He suffered a break-down two years ago and has had to take things easy ever since. Now he is vacationing at St. Petersburg, Florida and writes:—"Dear Colonel: I was glad to have your review of racing and have read it over several times and it brought to mind dozens of horsemen friends whose names were so familiar to me when I was active in the sport. One of the most pleasing features was to see that you are taking an active part in the racing, appearing in the list of 2.10 drivers and gaining a high stand in the percentage column. It brought back old times when I would see your name so frequently in the summaries from the Maritimes.

NAPOLEON and UNCLE ELBY

by Clifford McBride

"We came down here in January to get away from the cold weather in New England and I am feeling better and more comfortable than I would be up north. This is a nice, quiet spot and living here is very reasonable. I only got to two races last summer, once for a night at Saratoga and one night in Poxboro. Had a lovely time at both places but the re-action was not good. However, I am going to try it again this summer. I am very sorry indeed to note that so many horsemen in the Maritimes passed on last year. When you lose men like Col. Parker Hooper, Dr. J. A. Johnston, D. Stuart Campbell and Hooper Horne as well as others, it is difficult to find replacements. I trust all my friends in the Maritimes are enjoying the best of health and I assure them that among the happiest recollections I have is attending the meeting at Truro at which I was guest speaker, and the meeting at Charlottetown where I was banqueted. Yes, the Maritimes have a warm place in my heart.

The morning prior to the International Ice Races at Moncton last weekend, Russell Abbott, Doug MacLeod, Harold Cudmore and Bert Younker, visited the stock farm of Leonard Barrieau, Lakeburn, near Moncton, and saw his stables with the following horses: Federal 201½, Widow's Pride 205 and brood mares and young stock consisting of Volo Ray, Jeanne Truax, Elio Louise, Leah Guy, Tonty Patch, Maxine Soldier, Pine Ridge, Beverly, Polly Reynolds, Lakeburn, Tonty Federal, June Volo, Yours Truly, Maxine Federal, Jimmie Federal, Lady Hirsch, Miss Patch, and several others. All are in wonderful condition. Federal and Polly Reynolds were winners in the ice races and several that we mentioned above are brood mares with fast records. Mr. Barrieau has made a great success in breeding and has sold colts throughout the Maritimes and Maine and they are turning out well. He is a particularly good feeder and all the young stock have good size, good legs and feet and are good prospects.

MacMillan had been a resident of that locality all his life and enjoyed the friendship and esteem of his neighbors and all others who came in contact with him. He was a great horse lover and many times in the long ago we have seen him driving in races and enjoying himself to the fullest at his track in Summerville. One of the best performers and the one he liked the best was Sharnburg 2:17½, a really good trotter that with "Mac" handling the ribbons could show his heels to some of the best in the land. Mr. MacMillan attained a great age—95, and his passing was peaceful. To the surviving members of the family we on behalf of ourselves and horsemen friends, extend our deep sympathy.

W. G. "Bill" Gillespie has been many things in his career and has always made a success of everything he tackled. When he took over the secretaryship of the Prince Edward Island Harness Racing Club we knew that his boundless energy would bring it right to the front. The big entry list last year and the night racing program when the events were run off, will be fresh in many minds. This year he has broken all records with an entry list of 107 two, three and four-year-olds. Fifteen of these are from Nova Scotia, 13 from New Brunswick and 70 from the Garden of the Gulf. The list is well worth the perusal of every friend of horse racing.

These Futurities have been the means of developing many of our best performers in recent years. Take for instance June Morning 2:04 3-5, the fastest pacing mare ever bred in the Maritimes and the fastest pacing mare in the New England States over a half-mile track in 1950. Then take Colonel Dan 2:06 3-5, winner repeatedly at Roosevelt and Yonkers. Both these raced in our futurities. These are just two of dozens we could name that made a modest appearance as a two-year-old and three-year-old and continued on to greater careers.

Burgin Wants Try At Featherweight Title Soon

By CLAUDE WOLFF CINCINNATI, March 9—(AP)—Eddie Burgin, the kid with the soft voice and the iron fists wants a crack at the featherweight title "as soon as possible." Little Eddie had appeared in only two main bouts before scoring a technical knockout over RAY Famechon, the European 126 pound champion, Tuesday night.

Hunters Corner

below a wooded ridge to westward. I left to walk to a neighbor's. I knew I'd pass the woods where one of the big cock pheasants roosted and had a fleeting thought of the pair of horned owls, spotted by the crows, that had set up housekeeping less than a quarter mile from the pheasants hangout, as my eyes rested momentarily on the 22 rifle standing in the corner. I often carry the rifle for company on my woodland jaunts but decided against taking it. I should have played my hunch. I reached the road and had turned east along the pheasant woods. I had a mental picture of the big bird, his long colourful tail draping over a limb as he hugged the trunk of some bushy spruce and at this moment heard impact of wings on spruce or fir boughs and the excited squeal of a great horned owl. It wasn't a hoot. A horned owl has quite a vocabulary although quite a few are unaware of this. A split second later I heard two of them giving out sharp whistles. I was glad of this for it indicated their quarry had eluded them. They sometimes whistle when frustrated or vexed over something. I didn't figure it was the pheasant they were after for I imagine old Ring-necked would raise quite a rumpus if they had been trying to corner him. I waited with both ears cocked and eyes open. Then I saw one of the big birds gliding through the spruce tops toward the lake barrens. Suddenly, a spruce spire less than 100 yards in the woods, sprouted a big owl. It was bare one moment and the next there he was. In the clear twilight that prevails after the sun has set and darkness is in the offing the big bird offered a perfect target. The big round head surmounting a broad breast, that tapered off toward the tail, stood out in bold relief. Involuntarily my arm muscles tensed in a movement intended to bring a gun to my shoulder and then realizing I had left it in the porch, I found myself sprinting back up the lane. I was too late, when I got back to the road the spruce spire was empty. I wondered how many pheasants, grouse or rabbits I'd have saved if I had taken the rifle in the first instance. I went into the woods and tried my luck. Nothing doing. There was only one crop of owls sprouting from the spruce spires this particular night. As the somber night enveloped the old Home Lake barrens, and the stars began to twinkle in the February night sky, I caught a fleeting glimpse of a dark shape floating silently lake-

Sanction Bout

QUEBEC, March 9—(CP)—The Canadian Boxing Federation has officially sanctioned a 12-round title bout for the welterweight championship in Montreal March 12 between champion Johnny Greco and Gaby Ferland. It was announced today by Federation president Wilfrid Samson. The president ruled the fighters would weigh 147 pounds and wear gloves not heavier than six ounces, not less than five ounces.

Hockey Players Injured When Car Overturns

DENVER, March 9—(AP)—Two members of the Denver Falcons hockey team were critically injured and three Omaha players were hurt, one seriously, early today when their car swerved from the highway near Broomfield and turned over four times. The accident occurred at 3:30 a.m., as the five United States Hockey League players were driving north. They had played a game last night. In critical condition at Colorado General Hospital here were Claude (Bill) Warwick, 24, of Regina, left wing on the Denver team and John Holata, 31, of Hamilton, Ont., Denver centre. Both suffered head injuries. Omaha's George Homenuk, 28, formerly of Sherbrooke, Sask., and Bruce Giesbrecht received a fractured shoulder and bad scalp cuts. His condition is serious. Homenuk received scalp cuts and doctors said he lost a lot of blood and is in a serious condition too. Scottish-born Emmanuel (Motto) McLennan, 25, another member of the Omaha team, was released at the scene of the wreck after treatment for cuts and bruises.
